He was murdered in a quarrel with natives on Malekula Island, while trading and was forced to shoot one in self-defense. The natives rushed him with clubs and killed him.

A Military Administration Begins.

Linevitch Will be Given a Chance to Make Good if They Don't Suit.

Japanese Overrunning Siberian Coast and Preparing to Enter Interior.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Japanese Legation today received a dispatch from Tokio saying that Lieut.-Gen. Haraguishi proclaimed a military administration over Sakhalin Island July 30.

CIVIL ADMINISTRATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TOKIO, Aug. 1.—Gen. Saragochi, Commander-in-chief of the Sakhalin forces, ordered the establishment of a civil administration July 30.

TOKIO, August 1, 8 p.m.—An official report from Japanese headquarters on the Island of Sakhalin says: "The Japanese army, July 28, defeated the Russians [illegible] after hard fighting. The Russians retired southward."

COUNSEL PATIENCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, August 1, 1:35 p.m.—The Russ, the Novoe Vremya and other representatives of the Russian press today counsel patience for the brief interval before the meeting of the peace plenipotentiaries and dwell on the futility of attacking men of straw before it is definitely known what terms Japan proposes.

The Chinese Minister at Paris, Souveng, has reached St. Petersburg. He had a conference at a resort in Finland today with Chinese Minister to Russia, Mr. Hoo.

MANCHURIA'S FUTURE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Aimar Sato, secretary and spokesman for the Japanese peace envoys, today declared Japan had no intention of holding Manchuria. The powers, he declared, should, with Japan, see that Manchuria was fully restored to China as soon as the Russian evacuation.

LINEVITCH CONFIDENT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—Gen. Linevitch has telegraphed to the Emperor, under date of July 25, denying the frequently published reports that his army was completely surrounded. He says that the army has never been in any dangerous position. The flanks have never been turned, although the Japanese sought to do so.

"The Japanese, who are some distance from our principal positions, having failed in their attempts to approach them," the General adds, "the morall of the troops inspires me with complete confidence that the army is ready for any task."

STRIKE GETS SERIOUS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

REVAL, Russia, Aug. 1.—The strike situation has assumed a serious aspect. A strike began today at the Dvigatel works, where the workmen offered up prayers before marching on the streets. They visited other factories and demanded a cessation of work. The governor has posted a notice warning the people that arms will be used against crowds refusing to disperse.

Lesser disorders have already occurred. The strikers proceeded to the prison to demand the release of six workers recently arrested, but the crowd that gathered around the prison and in the streets were dispersed. The soldiery is now patrolling the streets.

CZAR STILL MORE WARLIKE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A dispatch to The Times from St. Petersburg says that another imperial telegram, even more warlike than the Emperor's reply to the Orenburg clergy, appears in today's Official Messenger. The Emperor, replying to an address from Khabarovsk, heartily approves the recommendation to continue the war until the enemy is crushed and above all not to think of cession of territory or payment of an indemnity.

HIS "BURNING BUSH."

Moses Ellis Wooster Hears Voices Telling Him to Go in and Polish Off Mann.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, August 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Moses Ellis Wooster, the Californian who originated "Fads and Fancies" and whom Col. Mann, the editor of Town Topics, denounced as a scoundrel, again visited the District Attorney's office today in his efforts to secure a warrant for Mann's arrest on a charge of criminal libel. Whether he is successful or not, Wooster will sue Mann for a big sum for defamation of character.

"I'll spend every dollar I have on earth," Wooster said tonight, "to show up Mann and vindicate myself. He is endeavoring to make a scapegoat of me, at the same time parading his own alleged virtues. There has been no necessity for either. I have received many letters from subscribers and others offering sympathy and substantial aid in my suit to show up Mann, and this thing will be fought to a finish."

AMBITION OF GAGE TARBELL.

HE HOPES TO BECOME THE EQUITABLE'S PRESIDENT.

Serves Notice on Morton That He, the New First Vice-President, Will Not "Stand for" Anyone Being Placed in Hyde's Shoes—Black for Inquisitor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to a morning paper, ex-Gov. Frank Black has been offered the place of inquisitor at the forthcoming insurance investigation authorized by the Legislature. Black is favored by the Assembly members of the committee, who are in a majority and can select the inquisitor. An up-to-date man is wanted, and one free from corporate influences.

Gage E. Tarbell, who started the fight that led to the enforced resignation of James Hazen Hyde, is slated to succeed [illegible] as first vice-president of the Equitable Society. It was stated today by a friend of Tarbell that the second vice-president has served notice on Morton that under no circumstances would he consent to remain in office and keep the agency force intact, unless assured that no man should be brought in from the outside and elected to the place left vacant by Hyde's removal.

Tarbell is ambitious to become president, and believes the first vice-presidency is the stepping-stone. He does not believe the Equitable will make much progress under Morton's regime, and expects to be called upon eventually, "as the brains of the society," to lead it back into a prosperous path.

OUTCRY OVER BALTIC.

Germans Wake up to the Fact That Less Noise and More Warships are Needed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The foolish apprehensions created in this country by the announcement of the British channel fleet's cruise in the Baltic are now beginning to give way to shame-faced recognition of the fact that ridicule has been incurred by unnecessary outcry.

From first to last, the episode has afforded striking proof of the extent to which the German policy depends for its ultimate success upon the long-suffering ignorance or indifference of Great Britain, but, valuable from the British point of view as this indication may be, it is equally well to remember that the consciousness of comparative impotence is galling, and that the German Michael, though for a moment compelled to clench his fist in his pocket, will simply be stimulated by this object lesson in British naval supremacy to go on building ships more feverishly than ever.

JOE HOADLEY ESCAPES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Joe Hoadley, the California multi-millionaire, is wanted by the New Jersey court for contempt. Hoadley managed a deal by which he got back a $60,000 note and a lot of stock for a loan of $25,000. In the face of a restraining order, he disposed of the collateral at auction for $75,000. Hoadley thinks in millions, and is known as one of the most picturesque figures in the financial world.

RUSH OF ALIENS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One million, twenty seven thousand, four hundred and twenty-one aliens were admitted into the United States last year, ending June 31. The figures show a big increase over two previous years, 857,046 being admitted in 1903 and 812,870 in 1904. Russian immigration increased over 36 per cent. over last year.

PASSENGERS DIE AT SEA.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Two deaths and one burial at sea among passengers on the North German Lyoid steamship Bremen was reported when the liner arrived here today. Mrs. Dollie Edmonson Vedder, aged 61 years, a first-cabin passenger and widow of Capt. O. D. Vedder, U.S.A., died July 27. Her body was brought to port. A child who died in the steerage was buried at sea.

RAILROAD RECORD.

CLARK ROAD SECURES DESIRED CONCESSION.

Satisfactory Traffic Arrangement is Made at San Francisco.

Hint Was Put Forth by the New Company That It Would Proceed to a War of Rates—Southern Pacific Will Continue as Heretofore, "Doing the Best That It Can"—Movements of Harriman.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The conference between the officials of the Clark road and the Southern Pacific was brought to a close late this afternoon, after another day's wrangling. At the close of the meeting, it was announced that a satisfactory arrangement had been agreed upon, under which the two roads will exchange business in the southern part of the State. The result is a decided victory for the Clark forces, for it has been generally understood and openly hinted by the Harriman representatives that the Salt Lake road would be granted no concessions in the way of traffic or switching arrangements.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The exact terms of the deal agreed upon by the Clark road and Espee are not made public, nor will the attending officials say anything of the influences that were brought to bear to bring about the final decision of the Harriman forces. It is said, however, that the hint was openly made in the meeting that the Clark road, unless given a satisfactory traffic arrangement in the southern part of the State, would proceed to a war of rates and compete for Southern Pacific traffic by absorbing the Southern Pacific's locals.

It was also hinted to the Harriman forces, so the story goes, that the Clark road was quite able to parallel all of the Southern Pacific's local lines and take chances in Southern California, and that such roads would be built, if necessary, to secure to the Clark road what it considers a fair share of Southern California traffic.

Whatever preliminary squabbling was indulged in at the secret conference, however, the result is that the Clark road has been granted some of the concessions for which it has been striving ever since it became an overland road. Vice-president J. Ross Clark and Freight and Passenger Agent E. W. Gillet finally agreed upon the terms of the traffic arrangement under which the Salt Lake road will be able to handle freight traffic to and from points beyond its own rails. In granting this concession, however, the Southern Pacific, it is said, practically dictated terms, and the Southern Pacific traffic officials figure that their company will not lose much on the transaction.

The conference was prolonged beyond the usual hour when the elevators stop running in the Merchants' Exchange Building, and J. Ross Clark hurried from the meeting to the Palace Hotel and then to the ferry building, where he took the evening train for Portland, where he expects to make an extended visit in company with his wife. The other visiting officials will remain in town a day or two, to close up the details of the big traffic deal.

HARRIMAN LOCATED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

OMAHA (Neb.) Aug. 1.—E. H. Harriman left Salt Lake today for a seven-days trip through the Yellowstone Park. He will enter the park at Monida, spending Wednesday night at Madison Basin. Thursday and Friday will be spent visiting points in Madison River Cañon and Mell's Half Acre. Yellowstone and Shoshone lakes will be visited Saturday, and Sunday will probably be spent at the summit of the continental divide. Monday and Tuesday, the party will visit the geysers and take their train at Gardiner for San Francisco.

It is stated that the stay may be extended to eight or nine days at the inclination of Harriman. From Gardiner, the party will go direct to San Francisco, where two or three days will be spent before taking the steamer for Japan, August 16.

HARRIMAN'S COMPANIONS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BUTTE (Mont.) Aug 1.—A Monida special to the Miner says that Harriman and party left that place this morning for a week's tour of the Yellowstone Park. Harriman was accompanied north by W. H. Bancroft, president and general manager of the Oregon Short Line and first vice-president of the San Pedro line; E. Buckingham, general superintendent of the Short Line; J. Kruttschnitt, vice-president of the Southern Pacific, and by J. C. Stubbs of Chicago, traffic director of the Harriman lines, as well as by several other prominent railroad men. There are twelve in the party, including the family of Harriman, and a special train of six cars is used in traveling.

CANTON-KOWLOON RAILWAY.

SURVEY PROCEEDING SMOOTHLY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HONGKONG, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Canton representative of the South China Morning Post is informed that th. Viceroy has consented to the construction of the proposed Canton-Kowloon Railway. The survey is progressing favorably, and the Chinese are friendly to the enterprise. The correspondent says the Chinese Minister at Washington has offered the American syndicate, which owns the Canton-Hankow Railway concession, $6,000,000 to turn over the concession to the Chinese.

The operating expenses were $4,187,794, leaving net $1,692,808; taxes, $189,574, leaving net income from operations, $1,503,435. Twelve months' gross totaled $68,275,837; operating expenses, $45,517,384; net, $22,858,452; taxes, $2,220,249; net income from operations, $20,628,203.

Road in Receiver's Hands.

BUFFALO (N. Y.) Aug. 1.—The Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern Railroad Company went into the hands of F. S. Smith as receiver today. The company has defaulted in the payment of interest on outstanding bonds, said to amount to $15,000,000.

HELD THEIR MOTHER CAPTIVE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Mary Mulholland, the wealthy Vicksburg, Miss., widow alleged held captive in the Gerald building, Sixth and State streets, by her two daughters, Daisy E., and Hattie Mulholland, has been found by a deputy sheriff at the residence of her brother, Fred Sloat, 5422 Shields avenue. Mrs. May Fovell, also a daughter of Mrs. Mulholland, had begun habeas corpus proceedings. The discovery of the missing woman brought with it a threatened arrest of Miss Daisy Mulholland on the charge of contempt of court. She was taken into custody and then released on promising to produce her mother before Judge Dunn Saturday, where the battle for the aged woman's custody will be fought. It was said that the County Court may be appealed to for an examination into the sanity of Mrs. Mulholland.

CARRIES OFF HER CHILD.

Quick-witted Mrs. Forest of Spokane Defeats Her Husband After a Long Chase.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Frederick Story Forest, a wealthy Spokane woman, today suddenly descended on her former husband, H. B. Nichols, in the railroad station at Greenwich, Ct., struck him in the face, grabbed their 11-year old daughter, jumped into a waiting carriage, snatched the reins out of the hands of the boy who owned the rig and made her escape. The sheriff and her former husband pursued, in an automobile, through Connecticut villages, across the New York line to Port Chester, where she was arrested.

The quick witted woman produced divorce papers giving the custody of the child, and then, when the auto was within half a mile of the village, she sprang on the trolley car, and with her child in her arms, stood on the front platform, pleading with the motorman to keep the car at top speed. So successful was she, that the auto with her pursuers was lost on a by-road, and she got away.

HANLEY'S STOCK SCHEME.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) Aug. 1.—John C. Hanley, publisher of the Alliance Advocate and well known throughout the West as a leader in the Farmers' Alliance and other political movements, has been arrested by United States Marshal Grimshaw on a charge of using the mails in connection with a scheme to defraud.

The charge is that in advertising matter sent through the mails of the postoffice selling stock in the Consolidated Farm and Ranch Company, Hanley represented that this company had acquired the property of the Montana Coöperative Ranch Company, now in the hands of a receiver, which representation is claimed to be false. His hearing is set for August 16.

The Consolidated Company was organized a few months ago under the laws of South Dakota, with Hanley as president and a capital of $150,000. The government claims that the new company has practically no assets, and that in order to induce investors to buy stock in the new company, the promoters pretended to have acquired the property of the old company.

The Montana company is now in the hands of a receiver, and is claimed to have assets of only $45,000, with an incumbrance in the shape of a $17,000 mortgage. In some of the literature sent out by Hanley, it is represented that the receiver has property worth $107,159.

NATIONAL BANK HOLDINGS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The circular of the National City Bank for August shows that the United States has increased the national banknote circulation since the close of the Spanish War $263,000,000, and that in the same time the resources of the national banks have increased from $4,000,000,000 to $7,350,000,000. The resources of banks other than national have doubled in those years from $4,500,000,000 to $9,000,000,000, or a total increase of $8,500,000,000 to $16,350,000,000. The cash holdings of national banks have increased $440,000,000, and other than national banks have increased $130,000,000.

BOILER "B" "DEAD."

Cause of Explosion on Bennington.

Absence of "Life" in Metal What Court of Inquiry Will Report.

Too Long and Continuous Service Leads up to the Horror.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When the report of the Court of Inquiry into the Bennington disaster is formulated, which probably will not be within ten days hence, and forwarded, under double-stamped secrecy to the Secretary of the Navy, it will show that absence of "life" in the metal of port boiler "B" caused the explosion which resulted in the death of sixty-five men, and the wounding of more than forty others.

The Times is enabled to present this exclusive and important news by special permission, in advance of all other papers.

A Los Angeles yellow journal, cut off from private sources of information, and barred by navy officers here for its sneaking theft of an old letter from the cabin of the Bennington, this morning printed in bold type an ignorant yarn purporting to show that a "neglected and rusted" safety valve was at the bottom of the explosion, that if it had blown off when an unsafe pressure of steam was developed in boiler "B," the disaster would have been averted.

The complete absurdity of this yarn may be judged by considering the following statements of fact, which substance will form the gist of the Court of Inquiry's report when that has been formulated:

WHAT EXPERTS FOUND.

An hour's survey of the wrecked boilers "B" and "C," the port forward and after boilers, made this forenoon by the Court of Inquiry, proved what already had been determined but not yet made public by experts; namely, that too long and too continuous use had robbed of all "life" certain portions of the metal of boiler "B," which had become crystallized.

The tensile strength (which in new marine boiler metal is supposed to withstand a drawing out test of approximately 150,000 pounds pressure to the square inch) had become, by the crystallization, so weakened that the crown sheet parted at both ends from the shell of the boiler and dropped, letting the water and steam directly into the fire box.

This accounts not only for the terrific explosion, but also for the fact that the fire and ashes were blown aft through the fire rooms. So fierce was the force of the blow-out that volumes of ash were carried skyward through the hatches with the escaping clouds of scalding steam, covering the whole gunboat with smeary soot, even to the yards of the mast.

The force of the explosion drove boiler "B" aft against boiler "D". The latter, however, while partially wrecked, did not explode. There was only one explosion, as evidenced by the undisturbed wreckage below, viewed by the court today.

STEAM PRESSURE LOW.

The absurdity of the yellow journal declaration that a "rusted and defective safety valve" on boiler "B" was responsible for the explosion in having failed to blow off under an excessive head of steam, is further shown by this fact: boiler "B" was the last of the four boilers to have its fire started. Two or three hours before boiler "B" was fired, boilers "A" and "C" on the starboard side, and boiler "D" on the port side, were fired.

As their indicators, remaining in good condition, show that they had developed not more than 120 pounds, it is plainly impossible for a boiler that was not fired until long afterward to have developed as much steam, to say nothing of a couple of hundreds of pounds more, as suggested.

The simple fact was lost sight of, in shouting the yarn about the "rusted and neglected" valve, that that valve when found in its rusted condition had been lying for sixty hours in a flooded boiler room, and naturally had become rusted. Capt. Young, of the Bennington has authorized the statement that all portions of the gunboat's power machinery had been, up to the time of the explosion overhauled and inspected properly according to regulations.

YOUNG NOT TO BLAME.

The Court of Inquiry will report, on behalf of Capt. Young, that that officer not only was aware of the weakened condition of the Bennington's boilers, but had more than once advised the proper authorities at Washington, and that on the very evening preceding the explosion he had, after receiving rush orders to proceed to Port Harford to convoy the Wyoming to Mare Island, given instructions to his chief engineer that under no circumstances were the forward boilers "B" and "A" to be forced in the getting up of steam, nor were they.

The order given by Capt. Young was to get under way with the after boilers "D" and "C" and not to attempt to get up steam in the forward boilers until afternoon. All night Thursday, the night proceeding the explosion, a water lighter had been lying alongside the Bennington and the ship was pumping water from it into her after boilers. When they had been filled the supply pipe was transferred to boiled "A," the starboard forward boiler, then, finally, to "B," the port forward boiler. Thus boiler "B" was the last under which the fires could be built, and it could not have developed, as the report of the court eventually will show, much more than 100 pounds of steam at the moment of explosion that followed the dropping of its crown sheet.

IMPORTANT STATEMENT.

One of the most important statements to be forwarded to Washington in the court's findings is that the heavy one-inch steel bolts which rivet the crown sheets to the boiler shell snapped off as abruptly as though they had been filed or bitten. It was when this had happened—and happen it did in the fraction of a second of time—that the crown sheet parted and fell. The bolts, through too long and too constant use, had become crystallised, brittle, burned out, lifeless and incapable of supporting the strain. Theirs was the paramount duty to hold in place the crown sheet which is the boiler bottom that separates the water from the fire tubes.

As the explosion has developed, and the Court of Inquiry discovered, the condition of these bolts meant life or death to the crew. It is for the Bureau of Engineering and the Bureau of Construction, at Washington, to explain to the people of the United States why the gunboat Bennington was allowed to be constantly in commission since 1898, a period of all but twenty years, without a renewal of boilers. Was the principle of crystallization of metal under excessive and unremitting use unknown to them?"

ARE THERE OTHERS.

As suggested in dispatches to The Times several days ago, it is altogether likely that the gunboat Bennington is only one of a dozen or a score of the warships of our navy which are today floating hazards because of this same "senile debility of metal" and which have, nevertheless remained, and do, nevertheless, remain, in continuous service when they should be in dry docks having their old, lifeless boilers torn out and new and safe ones put in.

Perhaps after all, the men of the Bennington will have suffered and died not in vain. Perhaps the findings of the court of inquiry, when transmitted to the Secretary of the Navy, will include recommendations startling enough and urgent enough to shock the Washington bureau into actions which at least will safeguard the American navy of the future and preserve hundreds of its officers and men from such a hideous fate as befell the crew of the Bennington.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Only one witness, the first thus far summoned, was examined by the Court of Inquiry today, Lieutenant-Commander Frank W. Bartlett, fleet engineer of the Pacific squadron, who was president of the former preliminary board of investigation appointed by Admiral Goodrich. Lieutenant-Commander Bartlett was in the witness chair one hour. His testimony related to his examination of the Bennington's boilers at the time he was president of the board mentioned. Shortly before noon the court took a recess and adjourned to the gunboat. There they donned overalls and jumpers and went below. They spent an hour inspecting the boiler rooms, fire rooms and wreckage of the explosion. At 2:40 o'clock the court finished its sitting for the day, on board the Chicago, and adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

ORDERS FROM THE ADMIRAL.

A bulletin from Admiral Goodrich made public on board the flagship today contains the following paragraphs of instructions to the court:

"The court will diligently and thoroughly inquire into all the circumstances preceding, attending and following the accident which occurred on board the said vessel and upon the conclusion of the investigation will report to the convening authority its proceedings, all the testimony taken, and the facts which it may deem established by the evidence adduced, together with its opinion as to what further proceedings, if any, should be held in the matter.

"The court will also report whether or not the accident on board the said vessel, on the occasion named, was, in any respect, due to fault or negligence on the part of any officers or members of the crew of said vessel, or to fault or negligence on the part of any other person or persons, and if so, the names of such officers or members of the crew or of such other person or persons, and in what respect and to what extent any or either of them were so at fault or negligent.

"If the court shall be of opinion that further proceedings should be had in the matter, it will include in its report a succinct statement as to the person or persons against whom, and the specific matter upon which, such proceedings should be had.

NEW ORGANIZATION FORMING TO FIGHT THE "TRUST."

Property at Cleveland, O., Purchased by Martin B. Daly of the East Ohio Gas Company—Manager Foster Admits That "Rocky's" Coin is Going Into It.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A. M.]

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1.—The Plain-dealer today says: The National Carbon Company, known as the Carbon Trust, will soon have a competitor with immense financial backing. It developed here yesterday that Rockefeller interests are behind the United States Carbon Company, which soon will be financed with a capitalization close to $1,000,000.

For more than a year the local concern has been closed down. About one month ago, however, the property was bought up by Martin B. Daly, general manager of the East Ohio Gas Company, a well-known Rockefeller corporation. The plant is now being overhauled at an outlay of $100,000. It will be turning out carbon products by September 15, it was announced officially yesterday.

Burton F. Foster, manager of the company, said that in addition to the plant here, branches will be established in the natural gas belts of Ohio and a mammoth organization will be built up rapidly to compete with the National Carbon Company.

Daly is now abroad, but will return August 15, and immediately thereafter the financing will be begun. The company will be reorganized, and will probably be given a new name among other changes.

Foster admitted that Rockefeller capital is interested in the project, and spoke very optimistically of the future of the company about to be formed. He said that the carbon customer has already been secured that will net $100,000 to the concern. He intimated that various lighting plants and electrical concerns will throw enough patronage to the new organization to insure for it great progress. He said that the new company would be maintained as an independent institution, regardless of its backing, and will have the distinction of having been the only independent carbon company on American soil.

WEST'S OIL COMBINE.

RIVAL TO THE STANDARD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] H. E. West, president of the Kansas Oil Protective Association, has started a scheme for an immense consolidation of independent oil interests, greater than any since the Standard Oil Company was launched. He has interested Pittsburgh and Kansas capital, and when the proposed pipe line to the Gulf is completed, the construction of a pipe line from the Kansas oil fields to St. Louis will be started. A refinery will be built in St. Louis to cost not less than $2,500,000.

The Gulf line and the Port Arthur refinery will handle the oil for export and the Southern and Southeastern States, while the St. Louis line and refinery will handle the oil for the Middle West and the Mississippi Valley country. The whole plan involves the investment of $15,000,000. It is expected that the working-out of the scheme will take at least a year and a half.

From Gibraltar, the British second squadron commanded by Rear-Admiral Prince Louis sailed yesterday to spend three months in American waters.

BOY GETS EIGHTEEN MILLIONS.

Zeigler Will Contest Settled by Payment of Big Sum to Widow of Baking Powder Man.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A. M.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—By a payment of $2,500,000 to the widow of the late William Zeigler, the Zeigler will contest was settled today. Justice Giegerich, in the Supreme Court, signed an order authorising Justice Gaynor, executor of the estate, to pay S. Matilda Zeigler $1,200,000 in cash and 5000 shares of Royal Baking Powder Company stock, valued at $1,300,000. William Zeigler, the 14-year-old adopted son of the testator, consented to this settlement, which is a release of all Mrs. Zeigler's rights and dower and other claims against the estate of William Zeigler.

The will, the validity of which the suit was a test, left to Mrs. Zeigler the use of the city and country home of her husband, and an income of $50,000 a year. The remainder of the estate was given to the adopted son. Zeigler left real estate valued at $4,000,000, and personal property estimated at $14,000,000 in New York State, and also about $900,000 in the States of New Jersey and Connecticut. Under the contested will, the value of the estate left to the adopted son amounted to about $18,000,000.

TAFT PRAISES JAPAN AS HOST.

GRAND ENTERTAINMENTS FIT EXPRESSION OF FRIENDSHIP.

Secretary of War Found Official and Popular Wills in Accord Toward Him, and Calls His Visit to Kioto Appropriate Climax to His Splendid Time in Flowery Kingdom.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A. M.]

NAGASAKI, Aug. 1.—[By Pacific Cable.] The steamer Manchuria, with the Taft party on board, sailed at 7 o'clock this evening.

During the afternoon, Secretary Taft and Miss Roosevelt attended an outdoor fete at Osuwa Park, given by the Governor. There was a large concourse of Japanese and foreigners and a hearty reception was given the visitors. Miss Roosevelt was presented a large bouquet by the Ladies' Patriotic Society.

Before the departure of the party, Secretary Taft said to a representative of the Associated Press: "We were wholly unprepared for the enthusiastic reception which we have had at the hands of the Japanese government and people. We feel, of course, that this is due to the kindly feeling of the emperor toward the American government and people, but we are assured from public manifestations that the official and popular wills are in accord.

"During our visit to Tokio, grand entertainments were given in our honor and for our enjoyment and to these our interesting visit to Kioto, the ancient capital, where we saw evidences of the wonderful genius and skill of Japanese artists and artisans, was a fitting climax.

"During our stay we were accompanied by M. Nagasaki and his estimable wife, and also the Count and Countess Terashima, from Tokio, who looked after the interests of the entire party of eighty-three with a degree of foresight, care and kindly patience that enabled them to carry through the long programme of functions during the trip of 300 miles from Tokio to Kobe without a hitch at any juncture."

The party had a fine trip through the inland sea and there was a demonstration of fireworks from launches and sampans when they reached the Straits of Shimonoseki.

HIGGINS FOR DIVORCE REFORM.

ALBANY (N. Y.) Aug. 1.—Gov. Higgins expresses himself in favor of the proposed cooperation of State commissioners to secure uniformity of divorce legislation throughout the country. In a letter to Gov. Pennypacker of Pennsylvania, he says: "I have no authority to appoint delegates to a congress to meet in Washington to consider the subject of divorce, but I think the matter falls properly within the jurisdiction of the commissioners for the promotion of uniformity of legislation in the United States, and I have referred your communication to Walter S. Logan, who is the senior commissioner of this State, and have requested him to communicate with his colleagues, and, if possible, to attend such congress should it meet, on behalf of the State of New York."

POPE PIUS BLESSES ALL OF US.

ROME, July 31.—The Pope this afternoon received in private audience the American pilgrimage, headed by Rev. J. J. Mograne, in a manner flattering to all Americans. After giving each member of the party his hand to kiss, the pontiff made quite a long address, saying that he loves all Americans, even non-Catholics, the latter for the liberty they allow the church. He ended by saying: "America has a good right to be called the eldest daughter of the church, for, although she entered the last among the nations, she has given proofs of her loyalty, devotion and tolerance. The Catholics in America are not only protected but respected." He therefore sent his blessings to all Americans.

GIRL NOT AFRAID OF GHOSTS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Rose Vahilitka was arrested yesterday after spending five nights in an old cemetery at North Beach, L. I. She said it was the only home she knew. The girl, who said her mother was a cigarmaker in an East Side factory, had spent some nights in Central Park recently, sleeping on the ground. She was unable to secure enough to eat in that neighborhood, however, and migrated to Long Island. She was found asleep on the grave of a man who died two months after the Declaration of Independence was signed. A children's society will take care of the wanderer until a home for her shall have been found.

CATHOLIC FORESTERS MEET.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—The seventeenth international biennial convention of the Catholic Order of Foresters was opened today and will continue until Friday. This order is the largest Catholic fraternal insurance society in the country, having about 117,000 members. Contests for various offices, particularly for that of medical examiner, for which there were four candidates made the annual election of unusual interest.

MALE PEDAGOGUES PLENTIFUL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The Board of Examiners has granted 551 applicants licenses to teach in the public elementary schools of this city. Of this number, thirty are men. Last year, forty-five out of 537 candidates were men. So many vacancies exist in the teaching staff that probably fifty per cent. of the newly-licensed persons will be appointed to regular positions this fall.

FIRST GUNS FIRED AGAINST THE BOSSES.

Jerome Begins Political Warfare Upon Murphy, McCarren and the Rest of Them—Citizens, Union Favors Him For Mayor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The first guns have been fired, and what promises to be the bitterest municipal campaign in the history of America's greatest city of four millions of people has begun. Already it looks as though the fight was to be along the lines of 1901, when the revolt from the infamous Van Wyck regime with its red lights, "cadets," Deveryism and personal profit from all sources, swept Tammany from power and elected Seth Low, to give New York City the best administration it ever had.

Low's administration was too short for the masses to understand how greatly they had been really benefited by the change from Tammany misrule. It had some apparent "aristocratic" features that stuck in the throats of those same masses, and the result was at the end of two years, Low's business-like administration was displaced by McClellan and subservience to Murphy, the corporation-owned boss.

Low's administration had inaugurated many brilliant features of city improvement, which Murphy's henchmen have endeavored to carry along. To have failed in at least making an effort to carry out Low's reforms would have proved disastrous, and Murphy is an astute politician. While the red lights are burning again, they are burning under cover. McClellan was allowed his own choice in his appointment of McAdoo as head of the Police Commission, and police graft has not been a stench in public nostrils like it was when Devery was "the best chief of police New York ever had." Though graft is rampant, gambling and prostitution are protected in secret.

The real situation is made clear by the love feast held last night at the Democratic Club between Murphy and McCarren, who for two years past have been the bitterest of political enemies. Jerome's declaration of war on bossism left no room for division between McCarren, the corrupt master of Brooklyn and Murphy, boss of Manhattan and Greater New York. In municipal politics, both are servants of the gigantic municipal combines which united to beat Low and elect McClellan. Both stand for protected vice, for police graft, for everything that corrupt bossism stands for.

Jerome has forced this precious pair to lay aside personal differences and unite against a common enemy. In a long statement issued today, Jerome amplifies his statement that he desires renomination on an independent ticket. In vigorous language, he stated again his position, recently outlined, as being unalterably opposed to political machines in the government of cities, States and the nation.

He referred to his individual stand as a small matter, laying stress upon the principle which he declared was at stake, and which, he said, was of paramount importance in the country's future. In illustration, he told of his experience, soon after his election, with a man who was then in control of the Republican forces. When the leader came to him and presented a list of men who had worked for the party and who "merited positions," Jerome declared he had there and then announced that he would appoint no man whose sole recommendation was political ability. The evil of purely political appointments, Jerome declared, was in a fair way to sap the country of its strength and purity. In further defining his position, Jerome said:

"My views and feelings in this matter do not amount to so very much, but the principle involved is important. The thing is to break down the evil solidarity of the political machines, and to go over the heads of these groups of men controlling the machines directly to the people.

"This is a very appropriate time, in my opinion, to make this test. Throughout the country just now there is a strong feeling of unrest. The New York newspapers, or extracts from them, are very generally read, and the affairs in New York City receive great attention by people outside it.

"The peculiar circumstances surrounding my coming into office and the peculiar conditions which have prevailed during my term of service have caused public attention to be focused on the District Attorney's office in New York City to a degree which has not been true of greater offices throughout the country. It is not usual for a district-attorney (there are several hundred of them in the country) to attract individual attention. Therefore, in advocating this principle, I hope it will be seen by the public at large in the same light as I see it.

"What I hope in this matter is that my effort, whether it be successful or not, will create discussion, and determine whether the people of this country are politically free or not."

CUTTING ON "GRAFTERS."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] R. Fulton Cutting, leader of the Citizens' Union, issued another statement tonight, again denouncing McClellan for subservience to Murphy and demanding the nomination of Jerome for Mayor, as the ideal man to protect the city from subway and gas grabbers. Cutting declares that hundreds of millions of dollars are to be spent in improving and beautifying the city during the next ten years, and calls upon the voters to see to it that the great enterprises be guarded by men devoted to the city instead of their own pockets.

SWIFT'S FIRE LOSS, $50,000.

ST. JOSEPH (Mo.) Aug. 1.—The fire of unknown origin which started here about 1 o'clock this morning in the beef beds of the local plant of Swift & Company destroyed the beef department. The entire fire departments of the packing companies and of the city were called out and after battling with the flames for four hours got the fire under control. The beef and cleo departments were gutted and part of the poultry department destroyed. The loss is estimated at $50,000. The partial destruction of the plant will in no wise interfere with the business of the local live stock market. The loss is covered by insurance. The only thing which saved the plant was the lack of a strong wind.

UNITED STATES TO TAKE PART.

TANGIER, Aug. 1.—The United States government has informed Morocco that it will send a representative to the international congress on Moroccan reforms. Portugal has accepted the invitation of the Sultan to send a representative to the conference.

Accident Shows up the Big Dakota's Strong Qualities.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Today, trained nurses from all parts of the State met here at the second annual convention of the California State Nurses' Association, to discuss needs and aims of the profession.

For several months some of the leading nurses have been issuing a monthly magazine called the "Nurses' Journal of the Pacific Coast," which has done much to bring trained nurses into the association. It is an able publication and has received excellent notices from all the leading newspapers.

The convention is being held at Cooper Medical College, one of the lecture rooms being thrown open for the sessions, and the dissecting room being devoted to an exhibit. A beautiful baby's outfit in filmy white and dainty shades of pink with handsome bisque dolls, illustrating babies, pure-food booths, comfortable surgical corsets in blue and white and ideally easy shoes occupy room where medical students perform their ghastly work, in the ordinary routine of the college.

STATISTICS.

There are 700 graduate nurses belonging to the State Association, 475 of whom are in San Francisco alone, so that the organization is quite a strong one. Many of the most prominent nurses in the United States are present at this convention. Miss Sofia Palmer, editor of the "American Journal of Nursing" and president of the New York State Board of Nurse Examiners, is here, the guest of the "Pacific Journal of Nursing."

Miss Palmer, with Miss J. Hitchcock, who is at the head of the Henry Settlement of Nurses in New York City, has been in attendance at the meetings of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections at Portland, and, with Miss Helen Scott Hayes of Pasadena, are among the notable figures of the gatherings.

"The primary object of the present convention," said Miss Genevieve Cooke, head of the Committee of Reception, "will be an endeavor to advance the educational standard among nurses of the State. It will be, first a public demonstration of work in California, and we expect that nurses will derive many profitable ideas."

CONVENTION OPENS.

The convention opened at 10 this morning with prayer by Rev. Robert Semon. Dr. William Fitch Cheney then made a brief address of welcome. He said physicians and nurses were of one blood so far as their work goes. Doctors more and more appreciate the work of the trained nurse; doctors can no longer get on without the aid of the graduate nurse.

"As a teacher of medicine," he said, "I have been impressed with the aid, even in clinical history, of the nurse in disease. We no more hear anything of bed sores or distensions of the abdomen in cases of typhoid fever. In the old days, doctors, no matter how competent, could not be sure that their orders were being intelligently carried out.

"I am a firm believer in organization and I am glad it has come to nurses, as it came to doctors long ago. We must wipe out the old style of nurse, as we wipe out the incompetent doctor.

"First, however, I should welcome you as a body of intelligent women who are striving to make the world better."

ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

Miss Sophia Rutley, president of the California State Nurses' Association, made a brief address of welcome. She aroused some applause when she said that the association was particularly fortunate in having as their guest Miss Palmer. She commented also on the rapid rise and growth of the organization, from a small gathering of forty nurses, in 1903, to its present dignified status and membership, 700 graduate nurses.

Miss Caldwell of the tuberculosis sanitarium at Monrovia, gave an address on "Care of Tubercular Patients." She recommended in the treatment of tuberculosis patients plenty of fresh air and sunshine. A cold sponge bath followed by vigorous rubbing should be given every day. She then gave an outline of the course of treatment and diet that is used with such success in the sanatorium at Monrovia. Miss Hitchcock of New York spoke briefly on the same subject.

MISS HAY OF PASADENA.

Miss Helen Scott Hay of Pasadena spoke on "State Organization of Nurses." She made a strong appeal for nurses to come into the convention and thus strengthen its power for good. She said the membership had grown rapidly in Los Angeles, and the result was seen in the power that nurses had secured when any subject touching their work came up. She declared that a large membership throughout the State would give them a leverage to have legislative committees and secure needed reforms in laws. Miss Palmer of New York also spoke on the State association.

Miss Katherine Brown, superintendent of the Children's Hospital, San Francisco, spoke on "The Uses and Abuses of the Uniform." She commented on the vanity of some nurses, which led them to seek costumes for their becomingness only, so that they by themselves open to serious criticism. She deprecated wearing the uniform on the street. A national uniform, she said, is impracticable if not impossible, but a uniform of the school is necessary. Some costumes are both conspicuous and ridiculous.

AFTERNOON SESSIONS.

The afternoon sessions were devoted to the meeting of the house of delegates, reports of officers and committees and a discussion as to whether or not dues should be raised so as to allow the journal to be sent to every member.

In the evening a secret session was held and the following officers were elected: President, Miss S. Gotea Dozier, San Francisco; first vice-president, Mrs. Clara S. Lockwood, Pasadena; second vice-president, Miss Louisa A. Huse, Oakland; secretary, Miss Theresa Earles MacCarthey, San Francisco; councilors, Miss Courrier, Sacramento; Mrs. W. Evarts Downing, Fulton; Miss Helen Scott Hay, Pasadena; Miss Condect, Bakersfield; Dr. Loleta Harker Criswell, San Francisco; Miss Katharine Brown, San Francisco; Miss Genevieve Cooke, San Francisco; Mrs. W. H. Pahl, Los Angeles; Miss Fitch, Oakland.

The next meeting of the association will be held in Los Angeles on the second Tuesday in August, 1906.

DISASTROUS FIRES, WHOLESALE PILLAGE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

VISALIA, Aug. 1.—This city was the scene of two disastrous fires tonight, which were accompanied by wholesale pillage, followed by a determined effort on the part of citizens to protect their property under the display of arms.

The first fire broke out at 8:30 o'clock and caused the following losses:

P. Ball's building $8000.

Holt, tailorshop, loss $700.

R. E. Hyde, residence, loss slight.

The first fire had hardly been gotten under control when English's livery stable in another part of town broke out in flames and was soon destroyed. Loss $3000. Nate Levy's building was also gutted, loss $2000. The Holt building was partly burned, loss $2000.

The fire reached the Visalia Abstract Company office and many records were destroyed. The financial loss is $1000. Robinson and Weisher, photographers, lost $1000.

During the fire the city was for a time in darkness and thieves took advantage of the darkness and the confusion to rob many places. So daring did the thieves become in their work that many citizens secured guns to guard property and a delegation went out to the country residence of Capt. Deming of the National Guard to secure the presence of a company of militia to preserve order.

HENEY CALLED AN ANGLER.

ONLY SEEKING BIG FISH.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Aug. 1.—Judge A. S. Bennett, in the United States Court, today commenced the principal argument for the defendants, Biggs, Gessner and Congressman Williamson, and he is continuing this afternoon. H. S. Wilson, counsel for the defense, with Judge Bennett, ended his argument this morning.

Judge Bennett this morning charged that United States District Attorney Heney is indeed seeking the big fish, but not the men big in crime. He asked why the millionaires who have been allowed to steal thousands of acres of the government land, were allowed to go free while the men big only in reputation and standing among their neighbors were chosen for prosecution. He alleged that "Newt" Williamson is the big fish the government is after and that Biggs and Gessner were entangled in the net because they must be caught to get the others. Judge Bennett showed a former good character for the defendants and maintained that this should be a strong point in their favor.

Judge Bennett had not concluded when court adjourned for the day, and will consume about half an hour more in the morning and will be followed by Mr. Heney. Judge De Haven's charge will, it is believed, be brief, and it is believed the case will go to the jury about midday.

KILLED BY PREMATURE BLAST.

FATE OF ARIZONA WORKMAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Aug. 1.—A man named W. A. Marshall was brought to the city about 9 o'clock this morning by a special relief train consisting of a locomotive and caboose, suffering from the effects of a premature blast at the railroad quarry at Chilson's Spur. He had been working for the company only a short time and nothing is known of his antecedents. This morning he was fitting a fuse to a number of blasts, when a premature explosion injured him so severely that he died shortly after reaching Globe. The left side of his face was shattered by fragments of rock and his left breast showed evidence of being crushed by large masses of flying stone which fractured several ribs and doubtless drove the ragged ends into his heart.

He had tattooed figures on both forearms, which may lead to identification. He appeared much above the average workman of his class in general deportment. An inquest will be held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

PUTS NAVY DOCK TO TEST.

BIG DAKOTA UP FOR REPAIRS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SEATTLE, Aug. 1.—The steamship Dakota of the Great Northern Steamship Company's fleet, went on the Puget Sound navy yard drydock late this afternoon to permit an examination of the injuries to her port tail shafts, which necessitated the cancellation of her first trip to the Orient.

By docking the Dakota today the navy yard dock proves its strength and utility, for the Dakota is one of the heaviest lifts that could be given. With her sister ship, the Minnesota, she is the largest freight carrier afloat, and her dimensions are so great that she practically fills the dock, and her bridge deck stands forty-eight feet above the top of the dock.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Professional Gambler Drowns.

Former Peace Justice a Lunatic.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—Former Justice of the Peace Gottlieb C. Groesinger was today examined by the lunacy commissioners and committed to the Agnews Asylum. His mind has been gradually weakening since he retired from office.

Fatal Fall from Mine Cage.

REDDING, Aug. 1.—Edward Lake, station tender at the Bully Hill mine, Delemar, fell from the 670-foot level to the 570-foot level last night. Both legs were broken and he was otherwise so seriously injured that he died. He accidentally fell from an ascending cage.

Corporations Pass in Their Checks.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 1.—Secretary of State Charles F. Curry today received $8810 in $10 checks from 881 corporations, being payment for the tax imposed by the Legislature on all corporations doing business for profit in the State. This is the recover receipt for one day since the new law became operative and all the checks came in the morning mail. Thus far, 4000 corporations have paid their tax, the receipts amounting to $40,000, which leaves 1700 yet to make their payments.

Discharge Valve Fails to Work.

SEATTLE (Wash.) Aug. 1.—Failure of an automatic outport discharge valve to close resulted in filling the ballast tank on the Pacific Coast Steamship Company's steamer Spokane last night. The heavy port list of the ship led to a report that the vessel was sinking at the coal bunkers and the fire department was summoned to pump her out. It was soon discovered that the ship was in no danger. The tanks had been emptied yesterday afternoon for an inspection and by evening the water worked back through the open valve, running over the fireroom floor.

Gold Found in Truckee River Bed.

RENO (Nev.) Aug. 1.—Gold was found in paying quantities in the bed of Truckee River today and all afternoon hundreds of gold-seekers have been at work in the river. The scene of the find is on the site of the proposed new bridge across the stream, located practically in the heart of the city.

Bad Fire in Gladstone Mine.

KENNETT, Aug. 1.—Fire tonight broke out in the Gladstone 20-stamp quarts mill, located at the Gladstone mine, in French Gulch, and before the flames could be checked the plant was totally destroyed. The Gladstone mine is one of the best producers in the district, and the burning of the mill throws 150 men out of work. Loss $50,000, partly covered by insurance.

Had Bad Grip on Shotgun.

WATSONVILLE, Aug. 1.—This morning, the body of Alden O'Neal, with the right side of the head shot completely away, was found in an orchard on Ford street. An examination of the body disclosed the fact that the deceased was lying on his side against a fence with his hand gripping the muzzle of a single-barrel hammerless shotgun. The deceased was a young man. It is the general belief that his death was the result of an accident.

OFF FOR TARGET PRACTICE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Eight battleships of the North Atlantic fleet, under command of Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans, sailed from their anchorage in the Hudson today, bound for Frenchman's Bay, on the Maine coast. At a 12-knot clip, the Maine, the Missouri, the Kentucky, the Kearsarge, the Illinois, the Iowa, the Alabama and the Massachusetts steamed down the river, where the warships had been anchored several days while taking on supplies and preparing for night target practice with illuminated shells about Frenchman's Bay. The white battleships formed the most powerful fighting squadron even seen in New York waters, except at the Dewey naval parade.

A powerful fleet of cruisers which arrived at about the same time is still lying in the harbor.

During the trip to Frenchman's Bay, which will occupy about three days, squadron maneuvers will be executed. On leaving the bay, the fleet will divide into two divisions, the first of which will proceed to Portland and the second to Boston. Later, the squadron will rendezvous off the Isle of Shoals, off the Massachusetts coast, and then visit Provincetown and Newport, remaining at the latter port from August 20 to 28. The annual target practice in Massachusetts Bay will follow.

WASHINGTON.

WARMED UP OVER WOOD.

The General and the Other Generals in Opposition.

Good Luck Versus Good Order in General Staff.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood is once more a "bone of contention." Having secured his confirmation as a major-general, the President is now reported to be trying to make Wood a member of the General Staff against the wishes of that body and Lieut.-Gen. Chaffee. Meantime Gen. Wood is now somewhere in Massachusetts nursing himself back to health, after an operation on the skull, due to a blow suffered some months ago.

Army officers say that Wood always was lucky. That influences have been brought to bear on the President to induce him to boom Wood once more is evidenced by the fact that within a day after the promulgation of orders by the General Staff, which did not mention Gen. Wood, he suspended the orders and the sole reason given was that the health of Gen. Wood might prevent his return to the Philippines. At the time of the receipt of the order of suspension, nothing was known as to the real previous state of Gen. Wood' health, and indications are that he went over the head of everybody to make his condition known direct to the President.

As a result of the President's stand, there are now three recognized candidates for the position on the General Staff, made vacant by the assignment of Brig.-Gen. Tasker H. Bliss to other duties. When the vacancy occurred, Lieut.-Gen. Chaffee named as his candidate, Brig.-Gen. W. H. Carter, now in command of the Department of the Visayas, Philippines. Gen. Carter is the man who drew up and passed through Congress the bill creating the General Staff. For his activity in this respect he was dubbed, the "legs of Root," and among the opponents in the army to the General Staff measure has few friends. The remainder of the General Staff recommended Brig. Thomas H. Barry, now with the Russian army in Manchuria as its candidate. The board directed to choose between the candidates consisting of Gens. F. D. Grant, J. F. Bell, A. L. Mills, John G. Bates, chairman and Col. S. M. Mills. This board overruled Lieut.-Gen. Chaffee and chose Barry. As a compromise, Gen. Carter was transferred to Chicago as commander of the Department of the Great Lakes.

The President has final approval of assignments of generals in the army. Whether or not be approved, the choice of Barry and the assignment of Carter and Bliss is unknown, but the fact remains that such an order was promulgated from the War Department last Thursday, and Gen. Barry was elected head of the War College. Next day the order was suspended by the President, and everybody has been told to keep mum.

The fact that Gen. Wood was overlooked in the rearrangement of the commanding generals would make it appear that the General Staff would be glad to see Gen. Wood remain in the Philippines indefinitely. He has been there less than two years, and has just concluded a triumphant campaign against the Moros, with small loss to his own troops and great loss to the enemy. The army does not understand why he should want a transfer.

Whisperings around the War Department are to the effect that the President would like to see Gen. Wood come to Washington. Army officers are reticent about discussing the matter, but underground muttering shows plain resentment to the forcing of Wood to the front over the heads of other men of larger experience.

Gen. Wood was a recess appointment, as a major-general, and his confirmation by the Senate led to one of hardest wrangles that the body has seen in many years, as well as the airing of Gen. Wood's entire military record. The President fought his battles, and Wood got the nomination. The appointment did not please the army, and Wood gained many enemies in consequence.

COTTON LEAK CASE.

GRAND JURY TAKES RECESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The grand jury today resumed its investigation into the cotton leak case. The New York witnesses, Haas and Peckham, again refused to answer questions having a tendency to incriminate them. The grand jury then adjourned until Thursday.

COTTON PRODUCERS' DEMANDS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—President Jordan and Secretary Cheatham of the Southern Cotton Association today issued a statement addressed to the members of the association, calling attention to recent disclosures in the cotton statistical work in the Department of Agriculture, declaring that efforts are being made to divert attention from the "deficiencies" of the system itself "to the thieving propensities of a few unworthy officials," and setting forth demands to be made on Congress to reform conditions. The statement follows:

"The members of the association have been apprised through the public press from day to day of the work done by the officers of the association at Washington. As a result of their charges, the unreliability of the reports of the Department of Agriculture relating to the cotton crop has been fully disclosed, and the maladministration of that department under its present head has been made evident.

"Following these exposures, efforts are now being made to divert public attention from the main issue, which is the imperfections of the department, toward an attempted prosecution of anybody who can be found as a scapegoat. Their punishment, even if it is accomplished, is of secondary importance as compared with the reformation of the system which has made their performances possible, and the purpose of this address is to secure the cooperation of the members of this association in influencing in every legitimate way a reformation of the system and a reorganization of the department.

"The membership of this association, numbering nearly 1,000,000 includes the producers of the most valuable product of American agriculture. The cotton crop of the United States and its by-products are worth between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000 annually. It furnishes two-thirds of our annual trade balance, and in its production and manufacture employs many million individuals. No other product of the United States is of greater or of equal importance. The practical monopoly of cotton which America enjoys and the narrow balance which has existed for many years between sufficiency and scarcity in the world's cotton supply, render the cotton market peculiarly and acutely susceptible to the reports of the Department of Agriculture regarding the condition and prospects of the cotton crop. Under the present circumstances, a great duty devolves upon the members of the association. We are less concerned with what has been done by a few individuals and the consequences thereof, remarkable as they may be, than with such reformation of departmental methods as shall secure for us just and accurate reports in future. In the system at present in vogue, and which promises to be undisturbed, unless public attention shall be aroused to the need of reform, the reports issued by the Department of Agriculture are, in their last analysis, simply the individual opinion of a few officials of doubtful experience and honor, by which the value of the cotton crop may be and has been affected as much as $75,000,000 in a single day.

"No such power shall be delegated to any individual or statistical board except under conditions which guarantee the most incorruptible, expert and intelligent opinion, arrived at by the application of the most scientific methods and safeguarded by the most scientific precautions. It is therefore urgently recommended to the members of the Southern Cotton Association that through their representations in Congress and by every other means available to them, they exert their influence and that of the association toward securing the immediate reorganization of the Agricultural Department, especially with reference to its reports on the cotton report, and that their representatives in Congress be requested specifically to demand.

"1. The establishment within the Department of Agriculture of a bureau to be known as the 'cotton' bureau,' charged solely with the duty of reporting on the cotton crop and all matters concerning that staple.

"2. The appointment as the head of that bureau, at an adequate salary, of a man whose reputation and antecedents shall be beyond reproach, and whose familiarity with cotton cultivation shall be an additional guarantee of his fitness.

"3. An organization of the bureau so established upon thoroughly scientific lines as will insure that no possible bias in favor of either buyer or seller or producer or manufacturer can be presupposed or asserted.

"4. The passage of a law that will be more specific in its scope, and under which government employés can be prosecuted for giving away or selling valuable information as has been done in the statistical bureau.

"We have no doubt of the zeal of the officers of the department, but it seems to be as misdirected in this crisis as it was in the antecedent period. All the powers and influence of the department lawyers and of every man of the government seems to be devoted to the attempt to drag a lot of irresponsible speculators. That there have been for years leaks in the department is as well known to the trade as the existence of the department, but these are insignificant as compared with the fundamental mismanagement. At this time, however, there is a manifest endeavor to divert attention from the radical errors and deficiencies of the department itself to the thieving propensities of a few unworthy officials. Let us not be misled by any such misdirected energy. Let us reform at the top, and not on the side. Let us root out the offenders, cleanse the personnel, change the methods and renovate the department from root to branch. Then the cause of cotton and good government will alike be served in Roseveltian fashion.

REPORT FROM GEN. MAGOON.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Panama Canal Commission today received a cablegram from Gov. Magoon, reporting that G. H. Skinner, an American employé at Cristobal, and Harry Whittingham, an American non-employé at Panama, have been stricken with yellow fever.

COMMISSARIAT STATIONS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PANAMA, Aug. 1.—Gov. Magoon has informed the Governor of Panama that the Canal Commission has decided to establish comissariat stations for the supply of food, etc., for canal laborers along the zone, excluding Panama and Colon. Until now, the United States has refrained from doing so on account of protests of Colon and Panama merchants, who claimed that their sales would be decreased considerably by the establishment of the stations, but reports to Gov. Magoon state that laborers cannot buy what they need in many instances, and for this reason are refusing to work. Refrigerators will be installed, and the railroad and steamers will import food from the United States.

Panama has not yet made answer to the notifications, but undoubtedly will not be pleased with the measure, which must reduce import duties, the principal income of the republic.

PUBLIC DEBT STATEMENT.

TREASURY CASH INCREASES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows at the close of business July 31, 1905, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,002,049,001, which is an increase for the month of $12,182,229. This increase is largely accounted for by a corresponding decrease in the amount of cash on hand.

The debt is recapitulated as follows: Interest-bearing debt, $895,158,720; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,264,835; debt bearing no interest, $385,491,270; total, $1,281,914,731. This amount, however, does not include $993,726,969, in certificates and treasury notes outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of cash on hand held for their redemption.

The cash in the treasury is classified as follows: Gold reserve, $150,000,000; trust funds, $993,726,969; general fund, $151,044,609; in national bank depositories, $65,715,119; in treasury of Philippine Islands, $3,972,621; total, $1,361,449,018, against which there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $1,084,583,288 which leaves a cash balance on hand of $279,865,731.

LABORERS FOR CANAL.

ITALY DISCOURAGES THEM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Canal Commission is awaiting with slight apprehension the official advices reported today to have been sent by the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs to the Italian ambassador at Washington, directing Italian laborers to be discouraged from accepting employment on Panama canal work. The employés of the commission here have been privately advised that such orders have been issued.

The Japanese government is also reported to have been making inquiries into the conditions under which Japanese would work at Panama. If it should develop that the Chinese can be influenced not to go to the canal works because of the present feeling in China against this country and the boycott movement, the officers might find some difficulty in carrying out their proposal to offer work to 2000 each of the Italians, Japanese and Chinese.

CHINESE EXTEND BOYCOTT.

IS CARRIED TO NAGASAKI.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A cablegram was received at the State Department today from American Consul Harris at Nagasaki, stating that the boycott against Americans and American products now prevailing at Shanghai has extended to Nagasaki. This is the first indication of the spread of the movement into Japan, where it probably is beyond the reach of any repressive measures that might be exercised by the Chinese government over its own citizens.

It is said at the State Department, however, that this last development is not of much importance, because very little of the American trade at Nagasaki is in the Chinese market.

FAKE MINING SCHEMES.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY INQUIRY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Investigation is to be made into certain alleged questionable practices that are common in the United States, by which the names of mining engineers connected with the Geological Survey, are used to boom worthless stocks in fake mining schemes. The inquiry will be begun by the commission as soon as it has time to get around to it.

The attention of the commission has been called to the abuses in question by persons, who have been bitten by promoters of valueless mining stock bearing the indorsement of engineers in the government service. The practices complained of have been carried on for many years.

SITUATION NOT IMPROVED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Notwithstanding the optimistic reports coming from St. Petersburg concernnig the negotiations between Ambassador Meyer and the Foreign Office looking toward the settlement of tariff difficulties between the two governments, the officers here do not think the situation improved.

An officer of the State Department said today that the situation was unchanged, and that it did not look as if there could be a settlement. Russia has not changed her attitude, still insisting that this government remove the heavy duty on sugar, the levying of which brought a retaliatory measure from Russia, which made the sale of American machinery and other products in Russia practically impossible. If the sugar duty is lowered, Russia will reciprocate by lowering the duties on American products.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS.

Weather Bureau Crop Report.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Weather Bureau's weekly crop bulletin says that late spring wheat was materially damaged in Washington by the hot winds of the preceding week, but the early crop escaped injury. The harvest is general in Oregon, with wheat at the average yield. The oat harvest has progressed favorably, and is now becoming general in the more northern States. The reports respecting this crop are highly favorable, but there has been some damage to harvested oats in Oklahoma. Too rank growth and unsatisfactory development of cotton are reported from Oklahoma, but a general, though slight improvement is also shown there. With but few exceptions, the reports indicate a very slight crop of apples.

One Hundred Thousand Dollars in Cash Turned Over to the Monthly for the Benefit of the Coast Line and Shasta Route—Large Expenditure Elsewhere.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—A fortune is to be spent during the next six months in advertising the Coast railway route between Los Angeles and Portland. The sum of $100,000 in cash has been given to the Sunset Magazine, the Southern Pacific monthly publication, as a fund to advertise the 1300 miles of railroad included in the Coast Line and the Shasta route.

A contract has already been made with eastern advertising agencies for spending this amount in the leading daily papers, magazines and weeklies of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco. Articles, profusely illustrated, will be published telling of the features of the rail journey along the ocean by way of Santa Barbara and on up over the Siskiyous to Oregon's metropolis. It is figured that in this way over twenty-five million readers will be kept interested for several months, beginning with the November issues of the principal magazines.

In addition, as one result of a recent conference of Harriman line officials in Chicago, the Southern Pacific will devote a large sum, redoubling all previous efforts, to advertising the resources and advantages of all California, Oregon, Nevada, Utah and other States served by its lines

LOCKOUT ON HILL'S ROAD.

Rio Grande Trackmen Will Go on a Strike Today.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) Aug. 1.—All of the telegraph operators of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific systems were ordered out tonight at 11 o'clock by President Perham of the Order of Railway Telegraphers. According to the officials of the telegraphers' union, between 1900 and 2000 men will be affected by the order.

The railway officials maintain that they will be able to fill the places of most of the men and that they will suffer nothing more than a temporary inconvenience by the move.

ST. PAUL (Minn.) Aug. 1.—Shortly before noon today General Manager Horn of the Northern Pacific Railroad sent an order to all telegraph operators employed by the system from St. Paul to the Pacific Coast that they could accept the terms of settlement of the wage question offered by the company or they could leave the service. Just how many men refused to accept the company's terms is not known. After having published the ultimatum to the men, Mr. Horn gave out the following statement:

"Mr. Perham, president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, this morning advised me that he intends to go the limit both with the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern just as soon as such a course becomes necessary.

"The Northern Pacific started a lockout of its telegraphers because of a step taken May 22. Strike instructions were issued July 5 and these, with the vote, are still hanging over its head, in spite of the fact that several months' negotiations on the points of difference have been pretty generally cleaned up, except the Sunday rule and the raise in minimum. The Sunday rule demanded is different from any in the United States and would add to the pay roll of the operators about $100,000 per year.

"The company's rate of pay is not exceeded, but, on the other hand, is considerably higher than on most roads in the same territory. It has made liberal increases to its telegraphers during the past five years.

"As compared with 1900, the same positions that existed in that year are now paying, in 1905, $110,000 additional. This increase relates only to the positions in 1905 which were in existence five years ago. There are also in existence over 200 more positions than existed in 1900. These, of course, take the 1905 higher rates.

GOT BIG INCREASE.

"Comparing the 1905 positions with those of 1900 as a whole, the telegraphers are receiving an increase of annual pay amounting to not less than $150,000. The increase made May 21 and those agreed upon at the recent conference foot up about $20,000 over and above the incomes paid prior to May 1 of this year.

"The impracticable rules and exorbitant demands made by the committee in the first proposition, and as repeated in their proposition of July 21, are considered conclusive proof that at no time has it been the intention of the committee to make concessions which would enable the company to make a satisfactory settlement. Before the actual negotiations were commenced, they had fully decided to force a strike. When conferences started, July 12, strike instructions had already been in force for an entire week. Last Friday, when we concluded negotiations, they were still hanging over our heads

"The road was in this position: Mr. Perham and his committee could inaugurate a strike of our telegraphers any time they saw fit. They woud neither accept nor reject the company's proposition. This uncertainty the company could not put up with and as a result the lockout was inaugurated today."

CLAIMS OF EMPLOYEES.

The men claim it is a lockout on the part of the road because they will not accept the terms offered them. The company claims that 80 per cent. of the men are satisfied. In a circular to its employés, the company proposes a schedule of wages which it claims gives an increase to the men amounting to $30,000 annually. The men, on the other hand, claim this increase amounts to only $7000 or $8000 annually for about a thousand men.

The men were asked in the circular to decide whether they wished to continue in the company's service and be governed by its new rules and regulations. When the men refused to accept the proposition they claim that they were at once discharged.

President Perham of the railway telegraphers' union said today: "But one man has failed. Elsewhere they have gone out uniformly. I want to make it clear that this is not a strike but a lockout."

A statement issued by the Great Northern says, in part: "All the points at issue between the men and the company have been satisfactorily adjusted with one exception. This is a rule governing the payment of overtime, at special rates, of Sunday work.

NEW SCHEDULE ACCEPTABLE.

"In view of the fact that it has been impossible for the officers of the company and members of the telegraphers' committee to reconcile this difference, it was decided to prepare a schedule of rules and rates which, with only this exception, embodied concessions made to the committee.

"Copies of the new schedule and a list of the new rates of pay have been sent out to the various divisions, the men on the line being requested to signify their intentions as to acceptance without the concurrence of the telegraphers' committee. The canvass of the telegraphers on the system so far made indicates that approximately 80 per cent. of the telegraphers on the line are satisfied with the new schedule and rules.

"It is expected there will be no difficulty in maintaining a regular and satisfactory traffic over the company's lines."

ON PACIFIC COAST.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SPOKANE (Wash.) Aug. 1.—A. Beamer, superintendent of the Idaho division of the Northern Pacific, has left for the Coast to get the decision of the telegraphers regarding the ultimatum of Manger Horn. Tomorrow, he will close all offices where the men remain with the union. The union is strong on this division. Chairman Tanquerry of the O.R.T. will arrive tonight to direct the fight from this city.

TRAINS TO MOVE ON TIME.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

GREAT FALLS (Mont.) Aug. 1.—All operators on the Montana Central, excepting dispatchers, numbering 50, have gone on strike, leaving their keys about 11 p.m. Officials here say that passenger trains will be moved on time.

ALL RESTS WITH HILL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PAUL, Aug. 1.—The only chance of an adjustment of the trouble rests with President J. J. Hill, who is in New York and to whom President Perham of the railway telegraphers appealed in a telegram last night. The orders affect about seven hundred and fifty operators and agents on the Great Northern and about twelve hundred on the Northern Pacific.

NEW OPERATORS PLACED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TACOMA, Aug. 1.—Division Superintendent Albee of the Northern Pacific left Tacoma this morning in his private car, in which were a number of non-union operators. At each station between Tacoma and Portland Mr. Albee asked the operators to sign an agreement that they would not go on strike but remain faithful to the company under all conditions. It is reported that new operators were placed at South Tacoma, Buconda, Tenino and other points between Tacoma and Centralia.

The operator at Lakeview refused to sign the agreement and the wires were cut out.

NOT A WHEEL TURNING.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

MISSOULA (Mont.) Aug. 1.—The Rocky Mountain division of the Northern Pacific is tied up tight by the strike. On the entore staff, all quit on signal sent except two. Train No. 1, due here at 11:25 tonight, was brought into the depot by hand-car signals. Not a wheel is turning, as it is considered too dangerous to travel without orders. All wires along the road are down, but whether due to interference or a terrific electrical storm which passed over Western Montana at 11 o'clock tonight is not known.

ON DENVER AND RIO GRANDE.

TRACKMEN ORDERED TO STRIKE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DENVER, Aug. 1.—With the approval of John T. Wilson, president of the International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employés, an order was sent out today by the Joint Protective Board of the Brotherhood on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad to all track and water service men on that road who are members of the brotherhood to go on strike at 6 o'clock p.m. August 2. The strike is ordered in consequence of the refusal of the officers of the company to accept a schedule presented by the brotherhood or submit the matters in dispute to arbitration. More than two thousand employés are affected by the strike order.

The concessions asked for by trackmen include an increase of $10 a month in the wages of section foremen and of 35 to 50 cents a day in the wages of section hands and rules of government such as have been given to other branches of the service. The union also demanded that foremen recently discharged because of activity in the brotherhood, as they allege, be reinstated.

John T. Wilson, president of the International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employés, has come to this city from St. Louis, to take personal charge of the strike. In preparation for the strike, 30,000 copies of a circular in which is printed the correspondence between the grievance committee and General Manager Ridgeway and other officers of the road have been spread broadcast throughout the State.

Chicago Teamsters Get Old Places.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Police were removed today from the wagons of many firms that have been strike-bound four months. Correspondingly many union drivers were restored to their old places. The Employers' Association, following the determination of the Lumbermen's Association to reinstate union teamsters in a body, has decided to lift the ban placed on all strikers a week ago. The action was taken despite the fact that the coal teamsters' union had ignored the employers' threat not to rehire any of the strikers until all should vote to call the strike off. A boycott against five big coal companies is still on.

DIVORCE CASE OF TAGGART.

CAUSE CELEBRE OF AN ARMY MAN AND HIS WIFE.

Much of the Future Developments in the Trial Rests on the Testimony of a Filipino Girl—Deposition Was Taken at Manila Last December.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WOOSTER (O.) Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Every step of the procedure in the famous Taggart divorce case in which Capt. Elmore W. Taggart of the United States Army is plaintiff, and Mrs. Grace Culver Taggart is the defendant, is being fought bitterly by the attorneys. The case was called Monday morning before Common Pleas Judge Eason, who granted the plaintiff a delay until Wednesday noon. Hon. Ed. S. Werts of Wooster and James Sterling of Canton, O., represent Capt. Taggart, and Congressman M. L. Smyser appeared as attorney for Mrs. Taggart. Capt. Taggart arrived here yesterday morning, but has been kept in hiding by his attorneys. He will appear in court Wednesday.

Many of the witnesses who will testify at the trial have arrived. It is believed that Mrs. Taggart received a letter from Capt. Taggart, not many weeks ago, in which the captain asked for reconciliation on the grounds that the disclosures to be made at the coming trial will forever disgrace the children. Mrs. Taggart denies receiving any such letter recently. Tomorrow morning, the court will decide on a motion argued by the attorneys in which the plaintiff demands the privilege of seeing all the written testimony which the defendant expects to introduce. The trial will proceed Wednesday afternoon. There are some twenty depositions to be offered in evidence, and the testimony of about three hundred people will be heard. It is estimated that the trial will consume two weeks.

Tomorrow Judge Eason will rule on the preliminary motions made in the case and at 1 o'clock p.m. the first move in the trial of the famous case will be made. On the deposition of a Filipino girl rests much of the future story of the trial. This deposition was taken at Manila, December 5, 1904, and it is alleged that it contains allegations against Mrs. Taggart of the most sensational kind. It is this deposition which connects Capt. Bash with the Taggart troubles, and the testimony of Augustina de la Cruse, who was a domestic in the Taggart home at Manila, alleges that she discovered Mrs. Taggart and Capt. Bash together in Mrs. Taggart's bedroom and that both of them had disrobed.

In a cross-petition, Mrs. Taggart names the girl as a co-respondent. If the written testimony of this girl is rejected, it is believed that many other sensational depositions of the plaintiff will be stricken out by the judge.

Capt. Taggart arrived here tonight, after visiting his mother at his old home. He refuses to discuss the case in detail, but says that his misunderstanding with Mrs. Taggart began before their marriages. Capt. Taggart asserts he was deceived as to the family connections of Mrs. Culver, and that when he learned she was only an adopted daughter of William Culver, the Chicago millionaire, he would have broken off the nuptials, only two days away, but with a threat of breach of promise suit forced him to conclude compact, which was only a farce.

Mrs. Taggart said tonight that her case was in the hands of her attorneys and that she believes her very life depends upon the outcome of the case.

"We are going to win, though," said Mrs. Taggart, "and my name will be cleared of the foul aspersions cast on it by the attorneys of Capt. Taggart."

Trouble Between Louisiana and Mississippi on.

Increased Number of Deaths in New Orleans Now.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Aug. 1.—Advices from Baton Rouge, the capital of Louisiana, state that a clash between the Mississippi and Louisiana authorities over the quarantine situation is imminent. It is said that Mississippi soldiers, employed as quarantine guards, have invaded Louisiana soil with arms. Dr. Souchon, president of the Louisiana Board of Health, has asked Gov. Blanchard to wire the proper authorities in Washington to intervene at once.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—Following is the yellow fever record up to 6 p.m.: New cases, 42; total cases to date, 346; deaths, 8; total deaths to date, 68; new foci, 4; total foci to date, 50.

The day's record shows a continued improvement so far as new foci is concerned, and, with no secondary infection from any of the existing foci, the general situation is regarded as hopeful. The large number of new cases, the largest yet reported in a single day, shows that the tertiary infection among the panic-stricken people of the original district is appearing, which was to be expected. One of the new cases is on Jackson avenue, in the residence district, and the victim has returned recently to the city from his summer vacation on the coast.

Today witnessed an increase in the number of deaths from yellow fever, a fact that was not unexpected, in view of the high temperature that has prevailed the past two days. There was, however, the usual large preponderance of Italian names in the list both of new cases and deaths, which has characterized the reports since the time when the fever was first officially announced as existing here.

In spite of the increased mortality, the health authorities exhibited no concern over the situation, contending that with the accumulation of cases there must be expected an increase in fatalities to maintain the average death rate of the fever. It is still possible to trace all the new cases that are appearing to the original focus.

RESULTS OF OBSERVATIONS.

Meantime, the health authorities and citizens are making arrangements to give the results of their observations of the foci outside the original district. The scientists have declared that the female stegomyia can only receive the poison of a yellow fever patient into her system during the first three days' illness, and that she is unable to communicate it until ten or twelve days thereafter.

In from seventeen to twenty days it will become evident whether or not there is to be a spread from any of the outlying foci, and the health authorities will by the beginning of next week include in their daily tables, beside the appearance of new foci, the disappearance of existing foci from which there has been no secondary infection. On the results of these observations they will be able to determine whether, as they hope now, they can control the disease and ultimately subdue it.

The war against stegomyia still continues and the oiling of gutters and cisterns goes on with great energy and persistence, though a light rainstrm this afternoon caused a temporary suspension of the work and will doubtless require the forces to go back over much of the gutter territory they have covered to replace the oil washed away.

Meantime, an effort is to be made to remove all ponds where water stands and serves as a breeding place for the insect. To this end, an ordinance was introduced in the City Council tonight providing that all vacant lots and other places where water stands for more than six hours shall be filled to the grade required by the City Engineer's survey. Fine or imprisonment is to be the penalty.

BUSINESS INTERESTS BUSY.

The business interests continue to exert every effort to secure some modifications of the quarantine regulations, which have had the effect of bottling up the city commercially. With this object in view, President Souchon of the State Board of Health, who is in thorough sympathy with the efforts to secure a relaxation of the subordinate quarantines in Louisiana, today issued a proclamation on behalf of the State Board of Haith to all parishes and municipal health officers. He announces that he has accepted and recommends the acceptance by subordinate officers of the Marine Hospital Service health certificates to through passengers from northern points transferring in screened coaches to New Orleans. He declares that passengers from New Orleans, after a detention of five days in Marine Hospital Service camps, who are given certificates of free pratique should be admitted without detention into all parishes and towns of Louisiana.

President Souchon says, as to the handling of freight: "While recognizing the pressure under which certain localities have quarantined against shipments of merchandise from New Orleans, the State Board of Health earnestly appreciates such restriction as applied to merchandise and express matter, and recommends that no such restrictions be imposed after it becomes known that all freight cars from New Orleans are being fumigated by the United States public health and Marine Hospital Service before leaving the city."

REACH ACUTE STAGE.

The relations between the States of Louisiana and Mississippi have reached an acute stage and from indications tonight it will change from interviews about the concealment of cases to a much more serious matter. From information that has come to hand, the dignity of the State of Louisiana has been offended by an armed invasion from the sister State, and this morning Gov. Blanchard communicated with the captain of the naval brigade, which has a fully-equipped gunboat, with a view of having it dispatched to the borders to protect Louisiana citizens from further indignities.

Mississippi has five armed boats patrolling the coast to prevent fishermen from breaking through the quarantine lines. These vessels are also assisted by the United States revenue cutter Winona. The Mississippi boats will not allow Louisiana fishermen to enter Mississippi Sound east of St. Joseph Light, but from reports received here it appears that one of these patrol boats came into Lake Borgne, which is distinctly Louisiana territory, and one report says it came up to the mouth of Lake Borgne Canal, which extends from the lake to Mississippi River, a distance of only four and a half miles. The naval brigade vessel Stranger draws too much water for service in that vicinity, but a light-draught boat would be impressed into service armed with a Howitzer or two and manned by officers from the bridge and will be sent out to prevent further aggressions.

Some of the territory now patrolled by the Mississippi boats is now in dispute before the Supreme Court of the United States, both States having laid claim to it since the Legislature of Louisiana created an oyster commission and passed laws to protect the valuable oyster beds in that vicinity.

The State Board of Health received official notice of the appearance of fever in three other parishes today, but as the victims are all Italians or Austrians, and the connection with the infected district in New Orleans has been established, no alarm is felt over the news.

TEXAS MORE SCARED.

The Texas scare has evidently grown some in the last day or two. Monday, the quarantine against the whole State of Louisiana was reinstated and today Dr. Tabor practically put an end to communication between the two States and to transcontinental traffic as well.

President Souchon received the following telegram from Dr. Tabor: "On account of continued spread of yellow fever Texas has declared quarantine against entire State of Louisiana and will require detention of all persons from or through New Orleans six days on Texas border."

Following the receipt of this telegram, Surgeon White of the Marine Hospital Service announced that no more persons would be received at the Avondale detention camp, which was designated for Western travelers on the Texas & Pacific and Southern Pacific roads. This announcement of Dr. Tabor is interpreted to mean that even after a person has remained five days in the detention camp he will have to spend six days more at the Texas camp at Echo, making eleven days.

Later developments in the controversy between Louisiana and Mississippi do not lessen the seriousness of it. Commander Bostwick of the Naval Brigade and Gen. Perilliat are preparing a report to the Governor, following their investigation, which will be continued. It is now reported that one of the Mississippi boats drove a Southern Yacht Club yacht far into Lake Ponchartrain.

TRAVELING MAN STRICKEN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SHREVEPORT (La.) Aug. 1.—Barney Tracey, a traveling man of Chicago, is in the detention camp just outside the corporate limits of this city, suffering from yellow fever. There are no other cases in the detention camp nor any cases in the city. The infection has been traced directly to New Orleans, although Tracey spent but a few hours in that city.

When the existence of the disease at the doors of the city became known through an official diagnosis there was almost a panic, several hundred people leaving on outgoing trains.

THE REVOLT IN RUSSIA.

DUKES TALK OVER DETAILS.

Council of Ministers in Session With Czar.

Conference to Deal With Oil Situation is Called.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Council of Ministers assembled at Peterhof this afternoon, under the presidency of the Emperor, to examine the project for a national assembly. The meeting was preceded by a Te Deum. The ministers will reside at Peterhof during the discussion, which is expected to occupy several sessions.

Those present numbered forty-four, including Grand Dukes Alexis Vladimir, Alexander Michaelovich and Nocholas Nicholaievich, all the ministers, Senators Borbrinsky, Shirniski and Naryshkin and Professors Kijutshewski and Pavioff of Moscow, nearly all of whom are members of the Council of the Empire.

A bureau of the council composed of officials of the Imperial Chancellerie has taken over from the committee of ministers the work of elaborating a project for the convocation of the national assembly.

The project is to be thoroughly recast and of a more liberal form. When complete, it will have little in common with the scheme presented by Minister of the Interior Bouligan.

The council will not touch upon the question of principle, confining itself to details, on which there are differences of opinion.

After a five hours' discussion over the details of the project, an adjournment was taken, the members of the council returning to St. Petersburg.

UINTAH LAND RUSH PROCEEDING ORDERLY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GRAND JUNCTION (Colo.) Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When the doors of the registration place were flung wide this morning, at 9 o'clock, a mighty cheer was given by several thousand people who had gathered. A line of homeseekers three blocks long, 400 of whom had been in line all night, were waiting. The first-nighters slept on blankets during the night and bathed their faces in a ditch near the line this morning. Boys peddled sandwiches and coffee, and without leaving the line, the homeseekers dined.

Many women were in line. They started an opposition feminine line, but were told that they must get in the line first started, and did so. The crowd was good natured and there was no disorder. In two minutes and a half after the doors opened, twenty persons, including one woman, had registered. When the day closed, over two thousand names had been registered. Many notaries remained up all night preparing affidavits for homeseekers, etc. It is evident that unless there is great increase in the number of homeseekers, the clerks here will have no difficulty taking care of the applicants.

Several women who are seeking homes will register under the deserted wife provision. William Waybright, of the Camp Bird military was the first man registered here.

SLUGGERS MAINTAIN TORTURE CHAMBER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Apparent evidence that labor sluggers maintain in Chicago a place where systematic torture is meted out to those who incur the displeasure of the sluggers has just come to light in the strange case of William N. Wilder.

Wilder was formerly an army officer, and at the time of the recent teamsters' strike was claim agent for a Chicago package express company. He disappeared July 6, was held captive for three weeks and was then set at liberty, half starved and so dazed that he has not been able to give a coherent account of his captivity. He was found by a friend wandering aimlessly about near the union depot, at Canal and Adams streets, and was taken to his home at Downers Grove. Physicians pronounced his physical and mental condition such that he may not recover. Much of the time he raves wildly and, as though still under torture, begs for mercy. Marks all over his body show that he had been bound with heavy cords. Over a hundred dollars he is known to have had on his person is gone.

Wilder is an Englishman who saw service in the American army in Cuba and the Philippines and held a commission as a second lieutenant in the regular army. He is a bold, outspoken fellow of 37, who gloried in his physical ability to take care of himself and defied pickets or sluggers to intimidate him.

JAPANESE OVERRUN SIBERIAN TERRITORY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The impossibility of defending the coast of the Ussuri territory resulted in the abandonment of the entire province bordering on the Pacific almost before the Russian people knew the Japanese were planning to occupy this territory.

The Japanese are already at Port Castries, with 30,000 men and 72 guns, with a view of occupying the lower territory of the Amur River. They are preparing to operate from Sakhalin along the Amur, which is only eighty versts from Port Castries, the route being along a good cart road to Sofinsk, on the Lower Amur. Thence they can advance north to Nikolaievsk and south to Khabarovsk. It is expected this movement will be accomplished by the dispatch of a flotilla of gunboats and torpedo boats to the Amur River.

The entire Russian force in the Ussuri consists of nine battalions of infantry. This leaves open to the Japanese the shore of the Ussuri territory south of Port Castries to the Gulf of Peter the Great.

Russia can expect the return of this territory only as a result of peace negotiations.

HE JUST CAN'T STOP STEALING.

YOUNG NEGRO HAS PENCHANT FOR TAKING HORSES.

Two Rigs Valued at Thirteen Hundred Dollars Make His Record for Two Days—Taken to Detention Home as Incorrigible—Two Brothers in the Reform School.

Because he just can't keep from stealing fine horses and buggies, 8-year-old Leroy Brasher, a colored youngster of No. 1224 Birch street is locked up in the Detention Home as an incorrigible horsethief.

Two horses and rigs valued at $1300 stolen in two days, is a pretty fair record for so youthful a kleptomaniac, and makes the police records of his two brothers in the Reform School seem like Sunday-school pranks in comparison.

Tuesday the little negro stole a Shetland pony and phaeton from J. J. Van Allen, No. 1230 Central avenue, and attempted to dispose of the property to a gang of boys after driving all about town as proud as a cannibal chief with a new necklace of missionaries' hock bones.

For this the youngster was apprehended, but sent home to his parents on account of his tender years, and with their promise to keep him out of the horse business in the future.

But yesterday bright and early young Leroy was at it again. At Santa Fé and Central avenue he came upon the fine blooded horse of J. Riddle of Fifty-first and Figueroa streets, harnessed to a natty runabout and tied to a hitching post.

The temptation was too much for Brasher. A minute later the strap was untied and the incorrigible youngster was in the seat speeding the fine spirlited black down Santa Fé avenue.

Riddle appeared just in time to see his valued rig hitting the high places fifty yards out of his reach.

Deputy Constable Coleman joined in the general chase which howled at the heels of the runaway. But for several blocks the little "nigger" gave them all the merry ha ha until a dray wagon and a passing street car shut him in for a moment, and the pursuers came up.

Seeing capture inevitable, the dusky imp deserted his prize and streaked off down a side street, his nimble bare feet twinkling over the pavement so fast that he was caught only after a hot chase by Coleman, and carried off bodily, kicking and howling lustily, to the City Jail, whence he was remanded to the Detention Home to await a hearing on two charges of grand larceny.

GAMINS START INCIPIENT RIOT.

STREET URCHINS AND GREEKS BATTLE ON BROADWAY.

Theft of Shoe Laces Starts Fight During Which Sticks and Stones are Used and Windows of Business Houses Broken—Combatants Finally Parted by Citizens and Police.

With sticks and stones, battered heads and broken windows, a juvenile race riot raged about the front of the Homeopathic drug store on Broadway between Fourth and Fifth streets early last evening.

Three Greeks headed by John Xidis, who runs a bootblack stand at No. 445 South Spring street, stood off some twenty-five gamin native sons who surged about them howling and hooting like a pack of fox terriers snapping at a cageful of rats.

The youngsters tried volley firing with brickbats, but their aim went wild and smashed two windows in the drug store. Adolfo Rivera, leader of the attacking gang, fell into the clutches of Xidis and was smartly rapped over the head with a blacking brush, retaliating with a brick, which caught the Greek fairly amidships, and put him out of business.

When the trouble, which started through a half-dozen gamins stealing a handful of laces from the bootblacks, began to blockade the sidewalks and endangered the safety of passers-by, a number of citizens took a hand, and marched the ringleaders forcibly off to jail, where they were reprimanded, and released on their own recognizance to appear to answer for the damage done to the windows of the drug store.

DID A-GUNNING GO.

Love-sick Jockey Threatens to Kill Woman Who Had Rejected Him but Girl Prevents Tragedy.

After going out gunning for his lady love yesterday morning Jockey W. J. Narvaez of San José is enjoying the discomforts of a cell at the City Jail.

For some time past Narvaez has been forcing his unwelcome attentions upon Miss Louisa Mugnemi of No. 1111 San Pedro street. Enraged at repeated rebuffs from the young woman he visited her home yesterday with the avowed intention of killing her. But his evil designs were frustrated by plucky little Loretta Brown, who lives in the same house, and who, although a cripple, threw herself upon the unwelcome visitor and held the hand in which he gripped a revolver until assistance came and Narvaez was disarmed.

CRIME BRIEFS.

OLD MAN'S SUICIDE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "I believe I am too old—80 years," said an unidentified man today to a group of children with whom he had been playing in Garfield Park. Then he waived the youngsters farewell and waded out into the lagoon deliberately, until the waters closed above his head and he disappeared. After romping with the children until his gray hair was tousled, he said to his playmates: "I was once young like all of you, but I believe I have gone beyond the limit. Good-by, little ones, good-by."

Marks is Wanted.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Detective Gibson of San Francisco arrived here this morning for M. H. Marks of the Alexander Loan Company on a charge of having given a worthless check in San Francisco. Marks will resist return, as he claims the check was given in settlement of a gambling debt, and he is not legally liable.

Dwarf's Life Sentence.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Although convicted of murdering an unsuspecting man, George Plummer, the 31-year-old dwarf, was today sent to the penitentiary for life. It was brought out on trial that the boy was a fiend, torturing children, birds and animals, but the judges said: "He's too small to hang." The prisoner showed no feeling when given a life term.

TO HAVE MURDER BUREAU.

AN INNOVATION FOR CHICAGO.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Chicago will soon have its own Scotland Yard. Chief of Police John M. Collins announces that in a few days he will establish a murder bureau, under the tutelage of Assistant Chief Schuettler. The assistant chief will have on his special staff eight of the best detectives in the city and will work in harmony with the State's Attorney's office.

One object of the innovation is gathering and holding evidence. As soon as a murder or any other big crime is committed the "runners" from Schuettler's office will be on the scene with a photographer and an artist or a draftsman. Every bit of tangible evidence will be picked up, labeled and used by the detectives in working up the case and in its prosecution in the criminal court. The plan is in practice in Berlin, London and New York.

Theory of Officers is That Contractor Riggins Shot the Major in the Back and Shot Him in the Breast When Down—Accused Held Without Bail.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The inquest on the body of Robert A. Deane today strengthened the opinion that the killing was an atrocious murder. Dr. Perry, the autopsy physician, testified that three bullet wounds in the back were made by shots from a distance, while the one in the breast was so close that the flesh, as well as the clothing is powder-burnt.

The theory of the officers is that Contractor Riggins shot Deane in the back as he was going for his coat, and then, when Deane fell backward, Riggins bent over and fired the last shot into the breast of the dying man. Riggins's 11-year-old daughter at first said that she did not see the shooting, but on cross-examination admitted that she saw her father raise his arm and fire. Riggins is held without bail.

Deane was the son of a millionaire dealer in hotel supplies of New York, and he had occupied several important newspaper positions in the East, but lost them through drink. He was once managing editor of the Philadelphia Press.

NEW YORK FEATURES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Maj. Robert Deane, who was shot dead in Fresno, first came before the public in a domestic way three years ago, when his wife tried to get possession of the 16-year-old daughter, Mrs. Deane, who was the widow of Dr. Loomis, a wealthy Philadelphian, secured a divorce for drunkenness and cruelty. Daisy was spirited away and placed in school until she was old enough to decide for herself. She went to her grandmother, with whom she now resides in this city.

AUTOMOBILE HOLD-UP.

CHICAGO PEOPLE LOSE HEAVILY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—An automobile party consisting of two men and three women was held up and robbed last night on the Sheridan road, between Winnetka and Glencoe, by three masked bandits. The robbers opened fire with revolvers on the occupants. Two bullets punctured a front tire and then struck the side of the machine. Owing to the tire being punctured, escape was impossible.

The robbers, flourishing their weapons, compelled the occupants to hand over their valuables. The highwaymen then made their escape.

The victims were: C. A. Woodruff, purchasing agent for Armour & Co.; Mrs. C. A. Woodruff, H. G. McClelland, Mrs. H. G. McClelland and Mrs. W. A. Schlossman. The total value of the plunder taken was several hundred dollars. Woodruff was robbed of $35, Mrs. Woodruff of jewelry and a small amount of money, McClelland of $40 and a valuable watch, Mrs. McClelland of rings torn from her fingers and Mrs. Schlossman of a diamond brooch valued at $300.

A short time before the automobilists were held up, Carl Miller, an expressman living near Hubbard Hill, was attacked in his house by the same three men and robbed of $18. He was severely beaten over the head with revolvers.

Half an hour after the automobile hold-up, a barn in the vicinity was discovered on fire. It is believed that the robbers set fire to the barn to divert the attention of the police in the event of a posse being organized to run them down. The barn was destroyed.

CARLTON'S NEMESIS.

NEEDED WITNESS FOUND.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The most important link in the strange case against Frederick Carlton was obtained today in the finding of Miss Wilmetta Sherwood Bird, whom detectives have been seeking for weeks. Miss Bird is the woman whom Carlton is alleged to have married in this city under the name of McCandless, eleven years ago. She is the only person, the authorities say, who is able to prove Carlton guilty of the charge of poisoning.

Miss Bird is a person of much refinement and culture, and a member of an excellent family. She was fortified with a marriage certificate, which proved beyond doubt the truth of her assertions. She picked Carlton out of a long line of men, and in the presence of a score of detectives and prison officials charged him with having twice tried to poison her before he left her, shortly after the honeymoon.

Merchant's Young Wife a Suicide.

ST. JOE (Mich.) Aug. 1.—Mrs. Fred Schneider, the 18-year-old wife of a merchant here, committed suicide last night by jumping into St. Joseph River before the eyes of several hundred people. She sank before assistance could reach her. The body was recovered.

Banker Must Go to Prison.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Walter Brown, a banker of Elkhart, Ind., failed today to secure from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals the reversal of judgment of the District Court of Indiana. As a result, Brown will be forced to go to jail for eight years. He was convicted of abetting Justis L. Broderick, president of the Indiana National Bank of Elkhart, Ind., in the misappropriation of funds and credits of the bank.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Life sentences were imposed by Judge Albert S. Barnes today upon three youthful holdup men who pleaded guilty to murder and for highway robberies committed last May. George Plummer, 17 years old, was sent to the Joliet Penitentiary for life, and Thomas Kelly, 20 years old, and Thomas Sherman, 18 years old, his companions, were given life terms in the Pontiac Penitentiary. They were not held responsible with Plummer on the murder charge.

Before sentence was passed, there was presented the usual spectacle of judge and prosecutor debating in open court the advisability of hanging the boy murderer. "He's too small to hang, so I'll send him to prison for life," said the judge.

HAS HURRIED TO HONDURAS.

'FRISCO MAN IS AN ABSCONDER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—Allen Howard, for years a business man of this city, devoting himself chiefly to loaning money, is an absconder. He hurried to Honduras several days ago from New Orleans and took with him all the money he could rake together from the various investments of his clients, which is thought to have approximated $100,000.

The news of his flight was received by his wife in a letter dated New Orleans, July 27, in which he said he would be in Honduras when it was received. He added that it was either flight or suicide.

It had been suspected for some time that his business affairs were in bad shape and recently he was arrested by one of his clients on a charge of felony embezzlement. The case was set for this afternoon. When Howard left this city he said he was going to several interior towns to look after some cattle ranges.

SUICIDE OF AN ELK.

HE LOVED SHOUP'S NIECE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VIRGINIA CITY (Mont.) Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Disappointed in love, Charles E. Reese, one of the best-known men of Southern Montana, shot himself through the head, this morning, in a cemetery by the grave of the sister of the woman who had refused to become his wife, after several years of wooing, Miss Ida Steffens, niece of United States Senator Shoup of Idaho. One hand of the corpse grasped the photograph of Miss Steffens. Reese was prominent in the order of Elks, who will conduct the funeral. He was 50 years of age and Miss Steffens was 30 years younger.

Woods Sentenced to be Hanged.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—Frank Woods was sentenced by Judge Carroll Cook in the Superior Court today to be hanged at San Quentin State prison October 6 for the murder of Policeman Robinson, about three years ago. Immediately after sentence was passed, William Henderson, who was with the gang on the night of the killing of Policeman Robinson, and who turned State's evidence, was called, and, with the consent of the District Attorney, he was set free.

ZIONIST CONGRESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BASLE (Switzerland) Aug. 1.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Zionist Congress, at its session today, voted several money grants, including an annual pension for ten years of $3200 to the family of the late Dr. Theodore Herzl, founder of the Zionist movement.

The congress adopted, with practical unanimity, the Warbourg motion, providing for the maintenance of the Palestine Commission, with an annual subsidy of $3000, as well as a motion offered by Rev. Judah L. Magnes of Brooklyn to deliver to the Palestine commission for more thorough examination the documents and data collected by the El Arisch Commission.

Owing to the lateness of the hour, the congress adopted without discussion the financial reports for the last two years and gave the commission a full discharge. The commission of the congress which has been examining into the question of national funds has decided that the purchase of land in Palestine cannot be made with national funds until there is a possibility of its purchase with clear title.

MOODY SEES THE PRESIDENT.

WORK OF INVESTIGATION OF COTTON LEAK EXPEDITED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 1.—The President and Attorney-General Moody were in conference at Sagamore Hill throughout the day, and Mr. Moody tonight is a guest of the President. After the disposal of the President's executive business, this morning, they had an opportunity to consider uninterruptedly the questions which brought the Attorney-General to Oyster Bay. They spent the day about the Sagamore Hill grounds, taking a horseback ride this afternoon. No statement about the results of the conference was made. Mr. Moody will tomorrow leave for Washington.

HIS MISSION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 1.—Attorney-General Moody has been cruising for a week along the North Atlantic coast in the Dolphin. After he was landed here, the Dolphin proceeded to the New York Navy Yard, where she will be fitted out for the use of the Japanese peace envoys. They will make the trip from Oyster Bay to Portsmouth, N. H., in the vessel.

Attorney-General Moody's mission here at this time is to consider with the President the cases which have been turned over to the Department of Justice from the Agricultural Department. Inquiries are now being made by the Attorney-General into the scandals caused by the leak in the cotton report and the case of Dr. George T. Moore, who resigned because of his connection with a nitro-culture company.

The President today authorized the publication of a telegram which he had received from William S. Harvey, president of the Board of Trustees of the Carroll Museum of Philadelphia and of the Advisory Committee of the Board of Trade, concerning the work of Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture. In his interview last evening, Secretary Wilson referred to this telegram, but he had not been shown a copy of it at that time. The telegram follows:

NEW YORK, July 31. The President, Oyster Bay: Investigating and advisory committee of the government crop reporting board appointed by the National Board of Trade, an impartial, unprejudiced body of men representing all sections of the United States, are familiar with the work of the department under Secretary Wilson and the great practical and substantial results to the nation of his administration. His rugged, sterling integrity commands the respect and admiration of all good people. No true patriot with an eye single to the honor and service of his country will take advantage of recent disclosures to suggest that he should resign. Do not forget interested motives have made the section these men represent denounce all government reports that do not favor them. Their attitude on ginner's reports illustrate. Impartial, trustworthy, public-spirited men are ready to coöperate with the Secretary for a broad comprehensive reorganization of the statistical work, and suggest the safeguards and penalties to insure, as far as possible, honesty and integrity in the future.

[Signed.] WILLIAM S. HARVEY.

DISTANCE is growing between Mabel Soule, the new queen of the scholarship contest, and Arthur Carpenter, the deposed king. The little South Pasadena lady has put herself about seven thousand points in the lead. There was no report from "the Little Giant" of Compton yesterday. When he does reappear it may be in regal force and splendor. Much will it be to his credit if he is able to recover a leadership won away by so worthy a contestant as Miss Soule.

When a contestant gets near the top

recommended as manly and respectful.

all the people who ever knew him or who have been acquainted with his family manifest an interest which they have felt all along. Ofttimes the contestant would fare better if the assistance were given in the early part of the struggle. It is those way down the score list who most appreciate the voluntary coupons and the voluntary subscriptions which give such uncertainty to the fate of the contestants.

Neither Mabel Soule nor Arthur Carpenter have been the recipients of very many voluntary subscriptions. Both many friends who are out inducing subscriptions in their favor. But some of the other contestants have had more done for them through the mails and news agencies.

Mabel Soule stands very high in the estimation of all those who know her and she has not a disposition which will be spoiled by success in any direction. Maude W. Erickson, her teacher in the South Pasadena city school, writes from Avalon:

"I am very much interested in seeing my pupil, Mabel Soule, coming so rapidly to the front. She is a bright, enthusiastic girl, conscientious in her work. She is very anxious for a musical education and her friends are glad to see this worthy girl succeed."

ARIZONA HEARD FROM.

Orestes Orfila, the popular Arizona boy, moves up the score list from the twentieth to the sixteenth place. He has not a large population to work on, but the population of Arizona more than makes up in quality what it lacks in numbers. Yesterday he sent in 4250 points.

HIGH SCORES MADE.

Other high scores made yesterday are as follows: St. Clair Morton, 2620; Helen Pitner, 2000; Mabel Soule, 2370; Gesiena Brunjes, 1995; Louise Scherer, 1910; Minnie Ponedal, 2228; Bruce Moore, 1193; Earl V. Weller, 1219; Merle Melvin, 1024; Myrtle Graham, Leroy Miller, 1026; Tessie Tag, 1395; Hazel Doyle, 1491; Anna McNaughton, 1344; John A. Wharton, 1781; Carrie Macloskey, 1520; Meta Brunjes, 1663; Florence Griggs, 1232; Harold C. Beeson, 1325; William C. O'Connor, 1246.

The following changes in relative position of the contestants occurred yesterday, thirty-three in all: Rex R. Gile, from 9 to 10; Minnie Ponedal, 10 to 9; Audrey Newton, 11 to 12; Merle Melvin, 12 to 11; Blanche Cunningham, 13 to 14; Jessie Mae King, 14 to 15; Myrtle Graham, 15 to 13; Albert B. Copran, 16 to 17; Gesiena Brunjes, 17 to 18; Iva Engel, 18 to 21; Lonnie Gorham, 19 to 20; Orestes Orfila, 20 to 16; Louise Scherer, 21 to 19; Leroy Miller, 22 to 23; Tessie Tag, 23 to 22; Anna McNaughton, 25 to 26; John A. Wharton, 26 to 25; Cecil Gibson, 29 to 31; Meta Brunjes, 31 to 30; Idell H. King, 34 to 35; Gertrude Wetzel, 35 to 36; Florence Griggs, 36 to 34; Charlie Yglesias, 39 to 42; Waldo Stein, 41 to 43; Harold C. Beeson, 42 to 39; Thomas E. Green, 44 to 45; Sarah Harris, 52 to 54; Edith Hamilton, 54 to 55; Robert Howard, 55 to 52; Wilbur Brayton, 58 to 59; Amber C. Day, 59 to 60; Joe Granas, 60 to 61; Burton Thrall, 61 to 58.

WORKS EARLY AND LATE.

Minnie Ponedel, a winsome little 13-year-old girl with blue eyes, blonde hair and rosy complexion that she inherits from her German ancestors, is getting a good deal of help from several prominent people of wealth and influence in the city who are interested to see her win a scholarship in music, for Minnie has high ambitions in that line and has already had three years' instruction on the piano. "I want to do something in the line of Paderewski," she remarked yesterday when outlining her plans and ambitions and she is not afraid to set her mark high. She plays compositions from Beethoven and other classic music now and if her talent equals her enthusiasm she will not fail to hit the high standard she is aiming at. She works from 8 o'clock in the morning till 6 o'clock at night and some one who evidently wants to test her enthusiasm has promised her a subscription if she will call for it at 7 o'clock this morning, and Minnie will be on time you may depend on it.

DETERMINED AND DESERVING.

Louise Scherer of 1636 East Fourteenth street is making a strong effort to capture a scholarship under rather trying conditions. Her mother has been an invalid from rheumatism for a year and Louise is one of ten children. Her father has a small grocery store and for the past three years Louise has assisted him in the store beside helping with the housework, so she has not been in school since she was 13 years old. To add to the family misfortunes, a sister of Louise's has been ill for six months and doctor and hospital bills have made a big hole in the family income, so Louise has determined to secure a business education in some commercial school if she can win a scholarship so she can get a position as stenographer and bookkeeper. It is to this end that she has entered the contest. Every Wednesday and Saturday she has to devote to household duties, so she has but four days in the week to canvas. Yesterday her brother got a new year's subscription for her and Louise was very much encouraged with the thousand extra points it brought her. Louise is a native Californian and was born in Antelope Valley.

MUSICAL AND PRACTICAL.

Carrie Macloskey turned in over a thousand points yesterday. She is a pretty, dark-eyed girl of sweet 16, and sings in the choir of the Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer on Jefferson street. She graduated from the Thirty-ninth-street grammar school last June and she has an ambition for a commercial education in one of the business colleges.

CARRIE MACLOSKEY,
Working for scholarship in a business college.

THE PRINTER'S BOY.

Robert Howard, the printer's son, is one of the youngest contestants, but he bears his ten years with a great deal of dignity. It is not yet two weeks since Robert entered the contest, so he is away down the line as yet, but he is such a winning child that he is sure to make a good record. Robert is a natural musician. "I have a piano, a zither and a violin, and I can play them all," he says, and his violet eyes sparkle with enthusiasm as he talks about it. He is a native Californian, too, and has taken violin lessons for some time. He is a sturdy little chap and has no hesitation in telling just what he wants and, more than that, he knows exactly why he wants it, too. "I want a scholarship in the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music and Art," he says, promptly in answer to the question, "because I want to be a great violinist. I love my violin," and no one can doubt it from his animated face. Robert goes to the Alpine-street school and his field of canvasing lies round about Angeleño Heights.

GUSSIE CATCHING UP.

Gussie Marcus has been canvassing for a week now and yesterday brought in enough points to bring her score up to the 2000 mark. She is a motherless girl and lives with her aunt on Pasadena avenue. She inherits a love of music and is earnestly trying for a scholarship in a conservatory of music where she can take piano lessons. But for the unfortunate illness in the family whereby Gussie lost several weeks' time by reason of the quarantine, she would doubtless have been well toward the top by this time.

LOYAL TO THEIR OWN.

Helen Pitner is getting a good deal of help from the members of Westlake Methodist Church, where her father was pastor for a period of four years. This church is accounted the wealthiest in Los Angeles Methodism, and its members are rallying handsomely to the support of their protegé. She is a student at the big Methodist University of Southern California, where she is taking a course in English literature and Spanish and she wants to win a musical scholarship for it is her ambition to study piano and become sufficiently accomplished to be an accompanist. Santa Ana and Huntington Beach have given her splendid support and when one stops to think how many Methodists there are in Southern California and how very loyal they are to their own, it seems likely that Helen will be restored to first place again, of which she was deprived by two days' illness which kept her out of the field.

PROMISES FUTURE SPEED.

Ernest Waldo Stein, 1039 Newton street, is not satisfied with the progress he is making in the contest. He took a contract to run a milk route on one of the beaches, before he entered this contest, and he is discharging that obligation. In about ten days he will be released from this work so that he may canvass for scholarship points. Then watch the dust that will be whisked up by his automobile speed. Here is a man well-known for discernment who speaks very well of this boy:

Scholarship Manager, Times-Mirror Company: I am pleased to state that I know Ernest Waldo Stein very well. He was born in Los Angeles city, April 11, 1891, his mother died November, 1895, and he was adopted by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Stein.

He is now a pupil in the Polytechnic High School of Los Angeles city, but would prefer scholarship in Throop University, where his many friends will endeavor to place him.

He is a manly, respectful boy, one that will be a credit to any educational institute that he may enter.

Truly yours,

F. G. HALEY,

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE.

Attractive Scholarship in Pioneer Institution of Higher Education.

St. Vincent's College which offers a scholarship to Times contestants is the pioneer institution of higher education in Southern California was founded forty years ago and has steadily grown and expanded from a little school down at the Plaza to the great institution surrounded by ample grounds and splendid college campus out on Grand avenue and Washington street. Three years ago a large addition was built, doubling its former capacity and the college now is one of the most imposing public buildings in the city—a massive brick structure four stories high. Last year over three hundred students were enrolled. It offers three courses of study—the collegiate, the High School and the Preparatory. The first named is a four years course and may be either classical, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, or scientific, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science. In the classical course special attention is given to Latin and Greek, while English, Mathematics and History have a prominent place and a full course in Moral and Mental Philosophy is given in the last two years. In the scientific course, a modern language—French or German—takes the place of Latin and Greek, while a solid course is given in the natural sciences—physics, chemistry, astronomy, geology, botany, zoology and physiology the other studies being the same as in the classical course.

The students who pursue the High School course have, besides the classical and scientific, a commercial course as well open to them, which gives a thorough business training, conducted along practical lines, and diplomas are awarded to those who complete in an approved manner the studies of the High School department. Considerable attention is given to oratorical and dramatic work and there is a splendid hall, with a seating capacity of over a thousand, and with remarkably fine stage settings, scenes and equipment for this purpose.

Students are required to take a military drill which is held twice a week under a competent instructor and all students wear a college uniform which is cadet in style and of olive-drab cloth—the same as was recently adopted for service uniforms for enlisted men of the United States army.

St. Vincent's is a Catholic institution but students of any denomination are admitted, provided they are willing to attend with proper respect the religious exercises prescribed for the student body. There is a splendid gymnasium and the faculty encourages interest and activity in athletics. The great college campus is provided with bleachers enough to accommodate 3000 people and a new one-fifth mile running track has been laid out. Last June a fine college eight-oar boat, the "San Vicente," was launched at Playa del Rey, and the institution claims a championship record in baseball and general athletics. The scholarships offered to The Times contestants may be regarded as a special dispensation as there are but two scholarships at St. Vincent's—the Father Meyer and the O. W. Childs Scholarships established by the president and Board of Trustees—no others having been founded, Several gold medals and prizes are annually awarded to students winning the highest averages in certain departments. The scholastic year consists of two sessions of nearly five months each, opening early in September.

Walnuts and Lima Beans at Montebello

The photograph above shows 5 acres set to walnut trees and lima beans at Montebello. The beans were planted 3 years ago and have been bearing continuously ever since. This is positive proof of the total absence of frost in this most favored district. Montebello is only 4 miles east of the city and a part of one of the most fertile sections in California. Many people have been attracted to this beautiful spot because of the inexhaustible supply of pure water. It is piped in front of every lot. Five water shares are deeded with each five-acre lot, the owner becoming a stockholder in the water system.

Dudley White, a Montebello berry grower, says: "Montebello suits me perfectly. The soil and the water facilities are all that could be desired."

Mr. Smith, who finds orange culture very profitable, says: "The soil, climatic and water conditions at Montebello are positively unequaled."

All fruits and vegetables thrive successfully. The Salt Lake R.R. passes through the property, giving excellent opportunity for the quick marketing of products.

Five-acre lots may be secured from $255 to $370 per acre—¼ cash, balance in from 1 to 4 years at 6 per cent. Free excursions daily at 8 a.m., 11 a.m. and 3:40 p.m. Tickets may be secured at the office of D. O. STEWART & CO., 138 S. Broadway. Tels. Main 1780; Home 1933.

The office is open Sunday from 9 to 10:30 a.m.

FOR SALE—

WATER ULTIMATELY FINDS ITS LEVEL. The spirit of WASHINGTON street finally recognized.

It is 100 FEET wide, it is being paved; it is the MAIN thoroughfare to the beach resorts, and, when fully paid, will command this immense travel; it has a LARGER TERRITORY from which to DRAW trade than any east and west street in the city.

The inhabitants of this territory are well-to-do, THAT CLASS whose patronage makes FIRST-CLASS business. WASHINGTON st. CORNERS the heretofore excellent business properties, and good paying investments at present prices.

During the past two weeks, probably more sales have been made on WASHINGTON than any other street in the city.

Washington is also a wide street, and the S.W. corner of Washington looks down this broad thoroughfare, and being so far removed from established business houses, makes it not only an excellent business location, but is now ripe for and invites the same.

We have an option on this corner at 20 per cent. below prevailing values.

TWO GREAT BARGAINS IN HILL STREET PROPERTY.

We have 55 by 115 feet on the east side of Hill street between Third and Fourth, right close to the new Homer Laughlin extension, improved with brick building now renting for over $4000 per year. This property pays now 4 per cent. net on the price asked. It is $200 per foot cheaper than anything else in the block. If you will investigate it, you can be convinced. Price only $75,000; $35,000 cash, and the balance in mortgage at 5 per cent.

We have another piece on Hill street between Fifth and Sixth, near Sixth, 60x155 to alley, income about $160 per month, that we can deliver for $1500 per foot. It will only necessitate investigation to prove to you how very cheap this property is. Remember, it is a 60-foot lot and backs up to Broadway. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been invested on Hill street in the past two years, and hundreds of thousands of dollars more are going to be invested in the next two years. It is soon to be lighted like Broadway and will pay big interest on good improvements now. Those skeptics who have feared a water famine should certainly feel encouraged at the present outlook. The new bonds will go through with a swoop, and the wise ones who go in now will reap a rich harvest. We can loan $50,000 on this lot at 5 per cent., and we are conservative when we say that there is $15,000 profit in this property in twelve months. See us for further information.

NEW BRAND OF AUTO ROWDIES.

Angeleno Heights District Rudely Awakened.

Steam Applied to Horn on a Big Car the Cause.

Police Make Futile Efforts to Stop Nuisance.

With all lights extinguished, careering at full speed in an erratic course, with the exhaust of its engines turned through a huge siren horn, a big red automobile filled with convivial spirits disturbed the slumbers and peace of mnid of the residents of Angeleño Heights from 10 o'clock to midnight last night.

Alarmed and mystified on being aroused from their slumbers by the wailing shrieks of the siren as the machine circled block after block, residents of the neighborhood rushed to their telephones calling up the Police Station, the fire department and the offices of the morning papers to ask an explanation of the mystery.

The usually quiet district was so rudely upset by the ghastly streak of noise streaming in the wake of the machine that many nervous women and children were scared almost into hysterics, and the multitudinous telephonic demands for an explanation, if not an abatement, of the nuisance turned in at police headquarters brought visions of riot and murder to the minds of the police.

Patrolman Jack Walsh was hurried out to the neighborhood, and for some little time sought in vain for the source of the trouble. When on the point of reporting a bad case of spooks or jimmies as ruling the district, he was almost stunned by the echoes of a hideous scream, "a block and a half long," he says, which went by him in the dark unlighted street at a speed of sixty miles an hour.

But whatever superstitious dread of the almost supernatural noises which might have held Walsh rooted to the spot were dispelled when he saw the "noise" shoot out under an electric light and take on the shape of an automobile, well known and patronized by midnight roisterers about town. He immediately gave chase, calling upon the occupants of the car to stop.

The only effect his summons produced was an abrupt cessation of the noise. The midnight revelers continued at full speed, going down Temple street to Spring and continuing southward until they had outstripped the policeman.

The same machine ran amuck among pedestrians Sunday night, and was reported by half a dozen policemen who tried in vain to stop it. Now the whole police force is looking for this car, and interesting developments are promised the next time it appears on the streets.

PERSONAL.

Will J. Rudesill of Ville de Paris, has returned from the East.

J. R. Eckstrom of South Main street has returned from a two months' trip throughout the East. He says everybody is coming to California.

W. A. Amend, who has been general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association at Watsonville for the past year, and who has accomplished a very successful work there, has resigned that position and has returned to Los Angeles. Special inducements were held out to cause him to retain the Watsonville position, but private interests demanded his presence in this city.

S. M. McCalmont, whose term as Mayor of Morrison, Ill., recently expired, is a recent arrival in the city. Accompanied by his wife, he is visiting Dr. Garnett, and will tour the State and visit the Portland fair before returning home. This is Mr. McCalmont's first visit to California, and while paying tribute to the wonderful developments that meet him on every hand, his greatest surprise was expressed at the wonderful mildness of the summer climate that Southern California has to offer.

SANTA BARBARA.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 1.—The County Board of Horticultural Commissioners is waging a war on fruit pests. Crops in the northern part of this county have been greatly damaged by the San José scale and the commissioners are making preparation to examine all orchards and to do away with the pests as far as possible. All infected orchards will be quarantined.

Dr. Lorenzo Yates, the Santa Barbara commissioner, is inspecting fresh fruit in the local markets and has discovered a large quantity of pears infected with the San José scale. These he condemned to be destroyed at once or to be shipped out of the county. The infected pears were shipped in from San Francisco, and it is feared that the pest might spread from them to the local pear orchards, which have not as yet been infected with the scale. A rigid quarantine is kept over the infected fruit in the northern part of this county, and considerable indignation is expressed that the San Francisco horticulturists should allow infected fruit to be shipped out.

PLAYGROUND OPENED.

The hildren's public playground was opened this afternoon under the auspices of the Woman's Club. The school children's park is known as Vera Cruz Plaza, and occupies a block between Haley and Cota streets near the business center of the city.

SAND BLOCKS ROCK ISLAND.

COLORADO SPRINGS (Colo.) Aug. 1.—The Rock Island Railway is temporarily out of action in this city as a result of the cloudburst that struck north of town late yesterday evening. The cut through which the road enters Colorado Springs is about one hundred feet wide and twenty feet deep, and it is declared to have run full of water when the force of the flood reached that point. The tracks today for a distance of nearly a mile are buried under from eight to ten feet of sand, and traffic is reaching the city via Denver.

A Wash Goods Event
Of Importance to Every Woman in Town

Our Eastern man has sent us five cases—over 11,000 yards—of seasonable wash novelties that he was fortunate enough to secure at a figure very near the half-price mark, and tomorrow (Thursday) the entire lot will go on the counters at a like reduction.

Tomorrow's Price
Nine Cents a Yard

We can say of these new arrivals and without fear of dissappointing even the most critical observers, that:

The styles, colorings and designs are positively new.

They are representative of this season's best products.

They are fine and sheer and dainty, in both color and texture, beyond anything you've seen at twice the prices we are going to sell these at.

There is every fashionable color you could ask for, dark, medium or light; large or small designs—floral, foliage and dots of all sizes; plain or fancy weaves, stripes and fine cord effects; many look for all the world like the most expensive imported fabrics.

It's not only the largest lot of such goods we've ever handled at one time, but, taken as a whole, it's the prettiest lot we ever saw. And when one considers that the warm season has only just begun these values will be appreciated.

ANNA SHAW'S SHARP SPEAR.

Mistress of Satire Pierces Her Men Questioners.

Venice's Woman Suffrage Day Warmest of All.

Keen Thrusts Entertain the Large Congregation.

An audience of less than nine million women, all watering at the mouth for a chance to vote, passed up questions scribbled on bits of paper, to Rev. Anna H. Shaw at the Women's Suffrage soiree at Venice yesterday.

She speared them in mid air as neatly as the vaudeville man catches potatoes and flying missiles on a fork.

Miss Susan B. Anthony was featured as the main speaker but only said a few words. Rev. Anna Shaw was emphatically the "whole works."

The play of this woman's adroit and splendid intellect was delightful. A past master in the extremely delicate art of ridicule, possessed of a jolly sense of humor, a forceful and slashing logician, it was a fascinating fencing match.

Anna Shaw spearing with her eye glasses.

Hon. Francis Sylvester Monnett, the great reform attorney-general of Ohio, was but an appetizer for her; she took him at a mouthful.

Miss Shaw is a woman with what the theater people call "presence," a carriage that is almost regal, a gown that has a certain quaint old-fashioned twist, and a voice that is melody itself.

She undid the first question and simply glared.

"Now what do you think of that?" she said in mock despair, reading aloud, "'Do statistics show that voting makes good wives and mothers?'"

She started to make a reply, but suddenly broke off and said: "Here, you come around to my house and see whether I am a good housekeeper or not. I live with a niece of Miss Anthony's. Come around and see if you find any untidyness there; that's all I have to say."

The next question was: "What shall we do to elevate our Mormon sisters?"

She looked reproachfully over her glasses. "Elevate yourselves," she retorted coldly. "I have seen several of 'our Mormon sisters' who could elevate us considerably. You're too anxious to reform other people."

Next question: "What is to become of our home life if women vote?"

She looked resigned and sighed heavily.

"That same old chestnut!" she said wearily. "You would think that a woman naturally hated a husband and a baby so that she couldn't be induced to have either if she had sense enough not to."

SHE WARMED UP.

Miss Shaw suddenly unlimbered her eye glasses and warmed up to it. "Why," she said, "Men used to be having this same variety of panic when women first went into the business world.

"They said, 'If women grow to be independent of us, they won't marry us.'

"Huh! They must think that a woman only gets married when she is starved into it. That if you starve 'em down sufficiently and give them the alternative of marriage or starvation, they may weaken and choose marriage. Do you suppose a woman only loves a baby when a man stands over her with a club and tells her to love babies or be clubbed!"

She was still mumbling with smothered indignation when she unwrapped the next question.

Some chump had sent up this bright idea:

"Why should not all we women suffragists become socialists?"

This was the pipe dream advanced by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Stetson Gilman, or Gilman-Stetson, whichever was the order they came in.

"Well we will wait until we get the ballot first and then decide what to do afterward. I have retired from the occupation of nursing any more infant political parties. When they get big, they always cast us off.

"No, sir," she continued emphatically, "if the Lord will forgive me, I will never make another political speech for infant parties. I did once for the Prohibitionists. I don't know whether the Lord can forgive me for being such a fool. I'll promise never to again.

"No, sir; I whoop la'd for them as loud as I could, but I whoop la for no more political parties until they begin to whoop la for me."

Someone asked a most astonishing question. "If men are failures and women are responsible for them, are they fit to govern?"

Rev. Miss Shaw took her glasses off her nose and hooked them on her dress and then unhooked them again. She was bewildered by the very inanity of such a remark, but replied with one of her best shots.

"If men are failures and women caused them, they ought to recognize what a mess they have made of it and do the governing themselves.

"But," she added, her rich voice rising, "men are not failures. They are not saints; I never have seen any halos lying around; but I want to say this: The average American man is a decent institution; he's trying to be just and honorable and fair and do the best he can. If I didn't believe that, I would be perfectly despairing. I would go home to my farm and live there. No, he may have growing pains, because he is growing, but the American man is a success. On every hand we see splendid struggling men, working for the right and (impulsively) I want the right to help them struggle."

"MANAGING MEN."

Another question was about "managing men."

She drew a long breath; her reply was gorgeous.

"That makes me think of a preacher in the church I was turned out of," she said, smiling. "I once heard him address a Chautauqua meeting on this wise topic.

"He told the women how to manage their husbands. He said not say to to their husbands, 'Gimme a bonnet' (I don't know what kind of women he had been associating with.) He said to feed the man a good dinner and then broach the topic gracefully, after dressing up in a pretty dress, etc."

"How can any woman," she said, her voice tingling with anger, her eyes flashing, "how could any woman have sat there and not defended men from such a beastly accusation as that? Gluttony! Stuffing them like geese!

"If ever there were two people who ought to be able to stand up and look each other levelly in the eyes, it is a husband and wife.

"What do you think of advising a woman to lie and trick her husband out of money that belongs to her anyhow? A woman who will resort to this 'managing' acts like a thief, because she feels herself a thief."

Another question: "Why don't women turn out to vote in the States where they have the right?"

FIRE 'EM UP.

"Now," she said, "the same question was asked of me by the Mayor of a town in Ohio. He said the women didn't seem to take interest in elections.

"I said to him: 'What do you do to interest women in school elections, (the only ones they have the right to vote in there.)

"'Nothing,' he said.

"Then I asked him if he did anything to interest the men voters the last time he was a candidate for office.

"'Well,' I said, when he had told me, 'the next time you have a school election, you just spread bulletins all over town; drag Secretary Taft and three Senators to the scene and have seven brass bands, a balloon ascension, a parachute jumper and fireworks in the evening, same as you did then, and I'll guarantee you'll have some women turn out to vote.'"

She kept this up for possibly half an hour. One of the last questions was: "Will not suffrage make the individual the unit instead of the family?"

"Even if you call the family the correct unit," she said, "seems to me that you have left out the chief unit of the unit. If the mother hasn't a right to part of a family, I'd like to know who has."

"Oh, as to that, you have probably noticed that even men never get to the final heights without a dress on. A decision can't come from the Supreme Court until they get on their frocks, and the church is the same."

DRIVES IN FRONT OF CAR.

Through a collision with inbound Eastlake car No. 92, W. F. Fickett of No. 145 East Avenue 18, driver for the Union Consolidated Oil Company, was thrown from his wagon at Leroy and Main streets about 5 o'clock last night and painfully cut and bruised about the face and body. His wagon was hurled to one side of the track, and the front trucks were completly wrecked. In turning out to avoid an outbound Eastlake car, Fickett drove across the inbound tracks immediately in front of a rapidly-approaching car. The front glass in the vestibule was smashed, but the car otherwise suffered no damage

CLOSE FINISH FOR THE CITY.

Uncle Sam Near to Getting Owens River First.

Engineers Positive as to the Amount of Water.

Mojave River Project Fully Abandoned by Experts.

Just how close a finish Los Angeles had in the race for the water of the Owens River is aptly illustrated in the following telegram received yesterday from Washington, D. C.:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The boundaries of Sierra Forest Reserve have been considerably changed by a proclamation just issued by the President, enlarging the reserve at various points. Most important of the additions made to the reserve are two tracts, containing an aggregate area of about three hundred and seventeen thousand acres, lying along the eastern boundary, mainly in Mono and Inyo counties, which contain a portion of the highest of the Sierra Nevada Mountains and some of the contiguous foothills, forming watersheds of the Owens River and other streams. As the greater portion of this region is drained by tributaries of the Owens River, preservation of the forest cover at their sources is essential to the success of the reclamation service project for the construction of a dam on the Owens River and the building of a storage reservoir in Long Valley for the reclamation of Owens Valley.

This telegram also shows the necessity for the city's acting quickly to secure absolute possession of the land now held on options.

Acting on reports made several months ago by the engineers in the reclamation service, the President has taken steps for protecting the source of water for proposed new irrigation projects.

But the reservoir which the government contemplated building in the Long Valley could not now be built even by the government itself. The city owns land in the Long Valley, which would be flooded if the government were to build that dam. In order to do so, it would be necessary for the government to bring condemnation proceedings in the Federal courts. These courts have always held that the first use of water is for domestic purposes and that water to be used for such purposes cannot be condemned for irrigation, but, on the other hand, water used for irrigation can be condemned and used for domestic purposes if it is shown that it will work the greatest good for the greatest number.

That dam which the government once contemplated in the Owens River will some time be built by the municipality. When Rickey's ranch belonged to a cattle company it would have been easy for the government to condemn the land for reclamation projects. But that ranch is now held in the name of the city of Los Angeles and not the United States government itself can take from us the water that we need for domestic consumption.

"We have nothing now to fear from the Reclamation Department," said Superintendent Mulholland last night on being advised as to the action of the government affecting the Sierra forest reserve.

PROJECT GIVEN UP.

"What the President has done will throw a safeguard about the source of our new domestic water supply. The plans of the government as outlined several months ago, included a reclamation project for Owens River Valley. I have just been advised this evening that at a meeting of government engineers in San Francisco yesterday they practically decided to abandon the proposed reclamation project for the Owens River country.

"Such action is almost compulsory on their part, for the reason that they cannot take away our domestic water for any irrigation project.

"Extending the Sierra forest reserve is a needed protection of the source of our new water supply."

Superintendent Mulholland and the members of the Water Board do not take kindly to the suggestion from certain engineers that the board would have done better to purchase water rights in the Mojave River east of the San Bernardino Mountains.

Mr. Mulholland yesterday afternoon took from the files of the water department a lengthy report made by consulting engineers Lippincott & Parker on the water supply of the Mojave River.

MOJAVE NO COMPARISON.

This report shows that the total area of the Mojave watershed above the Victor dam is 435 square miles. Of this area eighty-six miles, or about one-fifth of the watershed, the most productive part, is included in the impounding reservoir now being constructed by the Arrowhead Company as a part of its reservoir system. This leaves a net drainage of 349 square miles. Of this, 166 miles are mountainous and 183 miles are composed of desert plains containing practically no water.

Report shows that the aggregate mean flow of the Mojave River above Victor dam for the last seven years has been about 2900 inches.

To bring that water here it would be necessary to build a conduit ninety-five miles long. Ten miles of tunnels would be required to secure a gravity flow.

"Some people think that we just heard of the Owens River project a few days ago," said Mr. Mulholland with a strong expression of disgust. "They imagine that we jumped at it just as soon as it was dangled before our eyes. If they will come to the offices of the water department I will show them engineers' maps covering months of arduous labor.

"If that Mojave River water can be brought to this side of the San Bernardino Mountains so easily, why has it not been done before this? The project has been discussed for twenty years. A number of companies have been formed for the purpose of bringing that water over to this side for irrigation purposes. There are thousands of acres of arid land between here and the San Bernardino mountains on which it could be utilized to advantage if the project were practicable."

Summing up the whole project in one contemptuous sentence Mr. Mulholland exclaimed, "Those people want to sell a gold brick to the city and they know that we are next!"

THE WATERSHEDS.

The watersheds of the Owens River comprise over 2900 square miles, embracing over a dozen peaks which are among the highest in the United States. Some of them are above the snow level in the region of perpetual winter.

This territory furnishes a water supply of probably 100,000 inches. On the lands held by the city alone there is in sight at the present time probably 40,000 inches of water. This is the period, however, when the streams are running bank full, fed by the melting snows of Mount Whitney and half a dozen other snow-bound peaks.

The water is lowest in the late fall. Then the amount in sight will probably not be more than 20,000 inches. The water commissioners expect to even up this unequal flow by building impounding reservoirs.

So porous is the gravel soil of the valley that streams which leap through the mountain passes carrying a tide of several thousand inches of water wholly disappear before they reach the Owens River. The underground flow, however, reaches the river bed at a lower level and is easily captured and impounded in reservoirs for future distribution.

The Times this morning prints the first official map published of the land streams now held on options by the city. All the streams on the west bank of the Owens River have their sources in lakes and springs on the slopes of the Sierras.

Cottonwood Creek is not a tributary of the Owens River but empties its 2000 inches of snow water direct into Owens Lake. The present project includes lifting this stream bodily into the municipal conduit and carrying it prisoner to the headwaters of the Los Angeles River.

The department yesterday afternoon received an official report of the flow of Bishop Creek, a magnificent water course lying about fifteen miles north of the proposed headworks for the new water system. This stream alone is now flowing over 15,000 inches of water. The land along its banks can be purchased for about $10 an acre, including the riparian water rights. It is probable that the commissioners will decide to extend the conduit far enough north of Charley's Butte to embrace the flow of this stream.

SAYS PRESIDENT FAY.

"There appears to be practically no opposition to the proposed issuance of bonds to cover the purchase price of the land now held by the department on options," yesterday afternoon said President Fay of the Water Board. "The people are convinced that we need a new water supply and I think that they are willing to trust us to select the best possible source.

"In the Owens River there is water in abundance; with that stream singing at our gates we would have a supply equal to that of any other city in the country.

"Just as soon as people begin to understand that the water question is settled for the next hundred years, our population will increase by leaps and bounds until we outstrip even our own imaginations.

"I have visited the Owens River country and have personally inspected some of the streams on which the city now holds options. It is one of the greatest sources of water supply in the West."

INVESTMENT WILL PAY.

Some conservative property owners are inclined to regard the statement that the revenues of the water department will be sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund on the bond issues as almost too good to be true.

The records of the department for the last year, however, bear out the assertion that not more than one-fourth the present water revenue is used for the current expenses of the operating department. Three-fourths of the revenue which this year will approximate $1,000,000, is profit. In the past most of this money has been utilized in attempts to develop more water in the San Fernando Valley. If we are to own the Owens River it will not be necessary to pursue development further in and about the city.

The commissioners can easily care for the interest and sinking fund of the proposed bond issue of $1,500,000. This they have pledged themselves to do. To purchase the Owens River and other streams in the Owens Valley will not add one penny to the tax rate, neither will it increase the present water rates.

Objection has been urged to taking all the money for bringing the water here out of the water-revenue fund. This objection is based on the fact that the water development would be of value to the entire city, while at the present time one-third of the real property in the city pays the entire revenue of the water department. It is urged that it would not be fair for this one-third to pay for bringing water to enrich the value of the other two-thirds. This is a question, however, which the people will have an opportunity to decide for themselves at some future election.

The most pleasing phase of the proposed enterprise to the average taxpayer is that Los Angeles can secure a river that will settle for at least the next five generations the vexed water question, almost for the asking. If the project should be voted down water rates would not be reduced; it would be necessary for the Water Board to expend the surplus in developing water in the San Fernando Valley. If the city were to attempt to go elsewhere for its water supply it would be compelled to buy all the land in the watershed in order to secure the riparian water rights—and land in Southern California is valued about one hundred times as high as that in the Owens Valley.

OPPOSITION.

The only opposition to the water project now in sight comes from the Los Angeles Examiner, the electric-light and power companies, who dread seeing the city get a power supply of its own, and men like Lieut. Miner, who have been interested in a private scheme to sell other water-bearing lands and water rights to the city.

BIG TAXPAYERS FAVOR PROJECT.

URGE PLAN FOR SECURING THE CONFIDENCE OF PUBLIC.

Suggest That Commission of Business Men Act With Water Board in Obtaining Exact Estimate of Cost of the Work—Unit in Voting Need of Increased Supply.

Heavy taxpayers, the men who will be called upon to meet a considerable portion of the expense involved in bringing the Owens River to the gates of Los Angeles, spoke yesterday of the project.

All were in favor of the plan for increasing the supply; none found fault with the amount that it is proposed to expend, and there was general satisfaction among them that a solution had been found for a most puzzling problem.

The keynote of the remarks of most of these gentlemen was that careful estimates by experts should be made of the cost and feasibility of the project before the matter is submitted to the people, these estimates to be supplementary to those already made, and simply for the purpose of instilling confidence in the plans.

The suggestion also was made that a committee of prominent citizens and taxpayers be selected to cooperate with

PUBLIC SERVICE—OFFICIAL DOINGS.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Active campaigning has commenced for Councilmanic votes in the library muddle; three legislators are reported to be pledged to the support of the directors.

F. W. Braun's contribution of $3000 yesterday won him the old St. Louis café saloon license.

Police Commissioners Mason and Johnson yesterday asked their colleagues on the Police Commission to revoke the saloon and restaurant liquor license of the Palace, Imperial and Bristol cafés.

In short order the jury in Judge Smith's court yesterday returned a verdict against Joseph Snaidecki of murder in the first degree. The revolting crime and the impudent allegations of the defendant while on the stand deprived him of any scintilla of sympathy. The penalty is death.

The Woodbridge scandal is to be exploited after all. The testimony adduced was of such a character that Judge Oster continued the hearing until Mrs. Woodbridge shall have a chance to make her answer.

AT THE CITY HALL.

FATE OF BOARD IN THE BALANCE.

THE LIBRARY DIRECTORS HAVE THREE FRIENDS IN COUNCIL.

Campaign for Votes Has Commenced. Kern, Hammon and Hewton for Investigation—Mr. Lummis Assumes Active Control as Head of Library. Club Women Confident.

Campaigning for Councilman's votes in the library muddle has commenced. In the preliminary skirmish the library directors have secured a tactical advantage.

Three votes are already pledged in support of the board, those of Kern, Howton and Hammon. They will ask that the Council hold an investigation as a preliminary.

Smith and Blanchard have been reckoned as supporters of the club women; but neither will be in the city next Monday; that is unless they cancel present dates, cutting short their summer vacations.

Howton is now in Portland. Before leaving he gave Miss Jones his assurance that he would vote for the removal of the library board. But since he went away his labor union bosses have delivered his vote to the other side. When he returns he will find himself under the painful necessity of reversing himself.

Friends of the library directors say that they have received private assurance that Both Kern and Hammon will oppose confirming the Mayor's message of removal.

In an address to the heads of library departments, Mr. Lummis yesterday afternoon said: "I am librarian—and shall be plenty long enough for you and me to acquire the fixed habit of pulling together in our common duty. Nothing short of a board appointed for that purpose can change this status—and that will not be soon."

Not in the least daunted by this array of hostile conditions, the club women who first took up the cause of Miss Jones against the library board are campaigning away with unabated vigor. They hope to secure the indorsement of the Council to the Mayor's message of removal and the appointment of a new board, who will restore Miss Jones to her former position.

The club women have learned that they can work more effectively by the use of male proxies and their campaign is being largely conducted through use of the telephone and by private conferences.

Ward organization is resorted to and when some of the Councilmen return from their summer vacations, they will be attacked from quarters whence they least expect it.

The consensus of opinion in municipal circles appears to be that the Council will decline to hold an investigation, but that it will indorse the action of the Mayor, while at the same time questioning whether he acted in good faith, and will recommend that the library directors make their fight against the Mayor before the people who elected him and who placed the clause in the charter giving him the appointing power of all commissioners.

In this the legislators would appear to be following the line of least resistance. The Councilmen are known to be practically a unit against holding an investigation; they do not desire to be drawn into a squabble that is not of their own making.

Anticipating favorable action by the Council, the club women are now working on a—well, what in political circles would be called a slate, for successors to the four directors, whose fate is hanging in the balance. They ask that at least one member of the new directorate shall be a woman. A number of names have been suggested. Among them are Mrs. John D. Hooker, Mrs. Horace Wing and Mrs. Roy Jones.

Messrs. Trueworthy, Dockweiler, Marshutz and Wright and preparing for their defense before the Council. Outwardly at least they are confident that the legislators will not approve the Mayor's action. Mr. Dockweiler, who is acting as spokesman and attorney for the quartette, yesterday said that the directors are preparing for an investigation, which they expect the Council to hold, and that they are confident the legislators will sustain them in the removal of Miss Jones.

Charles F. Lummis is now librarian de facto, as well as de jure. He has shortened his vacation a month. Yesterday afternoon he assumed active control.

During the afternoon he met the library department heads in three relays and delivered a short address to each, outlining his policy and telling the fair assistants what he shall expect of them.

Promptly at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the first relay, fourteen in number, white gowned, flushed and expectant, filed into the librarian's private office and stood consciously in line like an old-fashioned spelling class, awaiting orders.

LUMMIS'S ADDRESS.

Standing near the head of the row, enfilading the ranks with lightning glances that seemed to be everywhere yet nowhere in particular, the new librarian outlined briefly his position in the library controversy and advised his assistants, "don't worry."

"I have found in this world that we always get along better by a clear understanding at the outset," said Mr. Lummis. "That, though no fault of ours, you and I are in a situation not without embarrassment, makes such understanding all the more apparent."

In every branch of business there must be a head. The public service is business. In this department of that service I am now head. If you will realize this, it will add to your present comfort and efficiency—for nothing is more disquieting in any service than uncertainty and fear of change. You are being told many things. Don't worry. Who was, could or should be librarian is no longer our business. I am librarian—and shall be for plenty long enough for you and me to acquire the fixed habit of pulling together in our common duty. Nothing short of a board appointed for that express purpose can change this status—and that will not be soon.

When I, myself, give up this library, it will be when I have so developed and established in it the larger plans for which I have come, that the common sense of the community will demand their retention; when I feel that I have done my share and that some other citizen should bear the penalties which always surround such duties. The duties we must share; the penalties I shall, as far as possible, take upon myself and keep from you.

Meanwhile, none of us are here to "do politics" for ourselves or for anyone else; not to be bothered by politics done by others; not to make, nor be involved in, agitations. It is your place and mine to see that, so far as we are permitted, this institution shall be a utility at home and a credit abroad. There is no attitude to prevent any other person who desires from advertising it or any feature of it as a discredit to the city; but it is my business and yours to see that they shall have no honorable justification for doing so. We are here to make the best library we can. There are plenty of other people to attend to other things. You and I are here exclusively to find out how far we can make so many books go, to do the greatest good to the greatest number. My responsibility is to devise means and administer them; your responsibility is to help me devise such means and to help me carry them out. While I am here you can devote yourselves to your duties without fear of anyone or anything. The only question that shall ever be asked of you or about you is, "How does she do her work?"

I am going to give this library the best there is in me. That means that I shall give as much also to you. You shall have absolutely a square deal, and besides that, any help that I can give, I, in turn, shall need your help and the library needs that you give it. Only by mutual understanding and co-operation can we secure the only object which you and I have any business to consider—the constantly-increasing efficiency of an important public service. There is no institution in the world so good that it cannot be made better, if enough people work long enough, hard enough and intelligently enough for that purpose. I am here not to criticise but to construct. In asking your co-operation I ask it in good faith. I mean to give you mine. Loyal service to the public merits support. When I ask you to do your best for the public, I pledge myself to stand by you. You know your work. I am going to trust you to do it. I am going to know, also, exactly how well you do it. I simply wish to remind you again that your work is the only thing you need worry about, and even that, you will do better if you don't worry. You will never be blamed if you do the best you know how—remembering, of course, that no person ever yet knew as much at any one time as it is possible for the same person to know with more time. We all need to learn every day.

Politics, up stairs, or downstairs, have no place in this library. They shall never have, while you and I are in partnership. In case agitation is urged to the further detriment of this library, I wish you to understand distinctly that you are perfectly safe to tell the truth as you see it, without fear or favor of anyone. You cannot be "punished" by anyone active for doing this or any other duty. The only thing for which you are responsible, to me, to the public, or to any individual amid the public, is the way in which you do your duty as women and as library staff. When I will not protect you in the proper discharge of such duty, you will owe me nothing. Until then, you owe me what every man and woman owes a chief—that honest and intelligent co-operation by which alone we get results in private or public business. You owe it to me not as a person, but as an officer. I owe you as much as you owe me; justice, courtesy, and any assistance that can be given.

I mean habitually to make these things a matter of record. It is much better than leaving them to be forgotten or misunderstood. I don't like to write my talk; but this is the general definition by which I shall judge you and by which I wish to be judged.

With this definition made, I beg to add that you are going to have not only justice but sympathy. I mean to know, presently, your exact capacities. I shall be on the watch to give each one the largest chance. Nothing will gratify me more than discovering what any one of you can fill a larger position than she now holds. Nothing could gratify me more than to find in any one of you the qualities which can be developed to make her the ruity competent librarian of this public library. You can depend on that.

DONATION WAS "SUFFICIENT."

LIQUOR LICENSE IS SOLD.

F. W. Braun's donation of $3000 to the city's cash fund yesterday won for him the old St. Louis Café saloon license. Commissioners Johnson and Mason objected to accepting Braun's offer for the reason that he was a stockholder in the old café, but Mayor McAleer and Commissioners James and Gates overruled this objection. They said that Braun was not in harmony with the former management and that if he fails to conduct the place according to the rules of the commission, why they can take the license up and hold another donation sale.

Representatives of the local brewing companies were in the commission room when donations were offered, but they showed no disposition to compete for the prize. Braun is the local agent for a Seattle brewing company.

WANTS THREE SCALPS.

Police Commissioner Mason yesterday asked his colleagues to revoke the licenses of the Palace, Imperial and Bristol cafés for alleged violations of the rules of the Police Board. Commissioner Johnson supported Mason in his attempt to secure these three liquor licenses, but the Mayor and the other commissioners secured a postponement of two weeks for further investigation. Commissioners Mason and Johnson say that they are prepared to produce evidence that the rules of the commission are persistently violated by these three cafés.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

DEATH PENALTY IS HIS PORTION.

JOSEPH SNAIDECKI CONVICTED OF BRUTAL MURDER.

Jury Returns Verdict of Guilty in Half an Hour and Makes No Recommendation of Mercy—This Makes It Mandatory Upon Court to Impose Capital Sentence.

Joseph Snaidecki must hang.

His brazen and feigned attempt to blacken the character of the woman he so foully murdered availed him nothing. A jury in Judge Smith's court yesterday returned a verdict of murder in the first degree after being out only about half an hour.

The jury failed to fix the punishment at imprisonment for life and consequently the court has no option but to pass the death sentence.

When the verdict was received the crowd that filled the court-room came near breaking out into marks of approval. Not for a long time has so much feeling been apparent in a crowded court as during this trial of Snaidecki, and more particularly since he went upon the stand in his own defense and sought to defame his victim.

Indeed, though the exact plea was not raised by Attorney Drake, counsel for Snaidecki, the defendant himself practically asserted self-defense for his act when he charged the deceased, Mrs. Cecilia Salmon, with having attacked him with a pair of scissors.

A number of witnesses were put forward yesterday morning to testify as to the mental condition of the defendant, and strangely enough they all testified that in their opinion Snaidecki was sane. Dr. Hasse, house surgeon at the Soldiers' Home, his assistant, Dr. C. W. Bonynge, one of the police surgeons, and others all agreed that however erratic the defendant might be, he was sane.

This phase of the case was made easy for the prosecution. Nevertheless Deputy District Attorney Donnell put on a number of witnesses in rebuttal. J. Prinz, who lived two and a half years in the Salmon home, and married the eldest daughter last June, and W. L. Pollock, another boarder in the family, both testified to knowing Snaidecki very well and forming the opinion that he was as other men, though somewhat eccentric.

The only point that Attorney Drake could make for his client in arguing to the jury was the inadequacy of the motive. Snaidecki was madly infatuated with Mrs. Salmon and therefore killed her, when he failed to win her consent to join her destinies to his. Around that central fact the counsel wove his argument, but it proved to be non-convincing.

It was about a quarter past 4 o'clock when Judge Smith concluded reading his instructions to the jury, and it was almost ten minutes to 5 o'clock when the jury announced their readiness to make their return.

The courtroom was filled with people, and more surged in when it was learned about the corridors that the jury had agreed. The defendant sat stroking his long mustache and moved uneasily in his chair. When the verdict was announced by the foreman, Snaidecki stared at the jury for a moment and then hitched back in his seat moving the arm that he claims is helpless, with his other hand. Then he arose and followed the bailiff out of the room with head erect.

A HYPNOTIZED BRIDE.

ELOPED WITH STEP-FATHER.

For a long time William A. Boren made his headquarters in this city, though for varying periods he was away looking after his business. He took contracts for railroad grading and was doing fairly well until his infidelity brought things to a crisis.

When he married Mrs. Dora Boren at San Bernardino in October, 1891, his wife had a daughter by her first marriage, and as the girl budded into womanhood, she became very handsome. Strange as it may appear, Boren fell desperately in love with his own step-daughter, and as his wife was more or less sickly and the work incumbent upon her was hard, the fresh young strength of the daughter appealed to Boren more than the faithful attention of his wife.

Witnesses yesterday told Judge Bordwell, in the divorce application of Mrs. B. Boren, that the girl had told them that Boren dominated her and she didn't know how it was but he could do with her as he would. The climax was reached when Boren and the step-daughter eloped to Arizona, and there he is now carrying on his old business. He still has with him his hypnotized bride and the wife and mother broke down on the witness stand and wept bitterly as she told of the treatment she had been made to endure at the hands of her husband and her own daughter.

In granting the decree the court made an order that the husband pay to the wife a lump sum of $500, that order being made in preference to an order for monthly alimony inasmuch as suit can if necessary be begun in the Arizona courts and the amount collected.

BOY DESPERADO'S ACT.

TRIED TO BREAK FROM HOME.

Clyde Gribbel, a burly youngster of 14 years, tried to brain Maj. Oliver, one of the deputies attached to the Detention Home yesterday morning, and now he with his sworn chum, Everett Burnett, is confined in the County Jail. Maj. Oliver, meanwhile, is nursing a scarified scalp.

Gribbel and Burnett were brought to the home on Monday from Pomona with a charge of grand larceny against them. The juvenile law makes no distinctions, and a young ruffian so long as he is under age, is ranked with the merely dependent boy who is neither criminal nor refractory, but only unfortunate. But both classes are herded together.

Yesterday morning Maj. Oliver was returning from the rear of the Detention Home and in ascending the flight of steps leading from the boy's playground inside the home, noticed Gribbel sitting on a chair at the head of the stairway. In the act of passing the lad, the latter thought he saw a chance to fell the deputy, take away his keys and win freedom. Acting upon that idea he stood up and swung the chair and brought it down—whack! upon the rather bare pate of Maj. Oliver. But bad as the blow was it was not forceful enough to have the effect desired. Oliver staggered, but wheeled around and faced the aggressor. Gribbel realized that instead of paralyzing the guard he had succeeded in only making himself a felon, and he made no further attack. Burnett was standing close by but he, too, saw that the attempt had failed, and none of the other boys are supposed to have been let in. They were scattered around and there was no indication of their being on watch for any untoward incident.

Oliver retired toward the iron door separating the rooms, where the boys are confined and backed out locking the door behind him, and then began to feel very weak about the knees. A 'phone message was sent over to the County Jail and in a few moments two deputies arrived and escorted Gribbel and Burnett over to jail, where they are now confined as ordinary prisoners.

Though the blow on the head was pretty severe, arnica bandages will probably repair all the damage wrought, and Maj. Oliver will continue his duties as heretofore.

BROOKS CALLED DOWN.

JUDGE THREATENS ATTORNEY.

"Mr. Brooks, if you don't sit down I'll have to use the authority of the court," and as he uttered the words Judge Conrey looked severely at J. Marion Brooks, who was engaged in doing one of his various stunts. A fine for contempt was imminent. But the attorney would not be subdued. He left the court and in a little while returned and interrupted the hearing of a case to speak his little piece.

The trouble all arose out of a habeas-corpus proceeding by Eugene Esposito to recover his girl and boy, that he accused his wife of stealing from him. The mother was in court with the girl, aged 12, and the boy, a little chap of about 5. Since the divorce of the parents and the awarding of the two children to the father, the mother had married a man named Albert Belderein, and in his petition Attorney Brooks averred that neither Belderein nor his wife had any fear of God, man, or the devil. As no proof was adduced, that clause was barred by Judge Trask before he signed the order and made the writ returnable before Judge Conrey, who heard the divorce proceeding.

At the time of the trial it was shown that the wife was an improper person to have the children, and the husband got his divorce on the ground of adultery. Remembering these facts, Judge Conrey ordered the father to take possession of his children. Then there was an odd little scene in court. Attorney Brooks acted as court echo.

"Mr. Esposito," said the court, "will take possession of his children."

"Mr. Esposito," echoed Brooks, "you will go and take possession of your children," and he pointed a long, fat finger at the boy and girl, who sat wondering by the side of their mother.

But the girl wouldn't budge, and shook herself free from her father's grasp. The boy stuck his fists in his eyes and began to cry. The father wouldn't use any force and the mother sat with a pleasantly sarcastic look upon her face.

Then Brooks insisted that the court take action, but Judge Conrey was loth to do so. But the attorney shouted and yawped around until the court told him to keep on just as he was doing—if he wanted to be punished for contempt. He sat down for about sixty seconds and again jumped to his feet and proceeded to instruct the court as to his duty in the premises. It was about this time that Judge Conrey uttered the rebuke in a tone that meant business.

Judge Conrey said that despite the fact that the father had had possession of the children for a long time he certainly had not gained control of his children, or they would not refuse to go with him. Mrs. Belderein was called back to the witness stand, and she stated that the father did not care for the little ones properly and that they had voluntarily gone to her. The court said that the question of the propriety of appointing another guardian could be raised in a proper way, but that meantime the children must go with the father. He ordered the mother to leave the Courthouse, and pointedly said that he suspected there was some outside pressure, and if so he would know how to deal with it. The mere hint was enough and Mr. Belderein arose and went with his wife out of court.

Somewhat hesitatingly the children then accompanied their father into the Judge's chambers, and there awaited until the coast was clear when they were returned to their proper home.

REOPEN ENTIRE CASE.

WOODBRIDGE SKELETON.

When Judge Oster refused a continuance to the plaintiff in the Woodbridge divorce case, and the trial proceeded on the husband's cross-complaint, it is probable that he did not know of the varied nastinesses that he had to listen to. Attorney Rossiter, leading counsel for Mrs. Edith Gertrude Woodbridge, was debarred from putting in his side of the case, and could only cross-examine the witnesses put forward by the other side to sustain the contentions of the cross-complaint of Dr. Woodbridge. But though the testimony of the husband and his witnesses did not cover much that was spicy at the first telling, it ran perilously near the border line; sufficiently near to allow the court to form a judgment as to what lay behind. Consequently Judge Oster yesterday continued the hearing until September 7, in order that Mrs. Woodbridge may be present. But even then she will not be allowed to put in her case as originally outlined. In order to whipsaw around this legal prohibition, Attorney Rossiter will be permitted to file an amended answer to the husband's cross-complaint, and then Mrs. Woodbridge will probably make a full showing. And if that is done the trial will be so scandalous that it is reasonably certain that the doors will be closed. All the scandalous features which were first hinted at will be inquired into, and the true inwardness of the actions of Mrs. Eunice Groome, mother of Mrs. Woodbridge.

SCRAMBLE FOR TERMINAL.

SAN PEDRO VS. LONG BEACH.

The towns of San Pedro and Long Beach are at loggerheads as to which town will gather in the beach lands intervening between them, and which instead of being merely sand dunes, are proving to be veritable piles of gold. Yesterday James Weir, president of the Board of Trustees of San Pedro, applied in the Superior Court for a writ of prohibition to prevent Long Beach from snatching this prize.

On July 11, it is alleged by the petitioner, there was filed with the San Pedro Board of Trustees a petition properly signed, asking that an election be called to determine whether certain territory adjacent be annexed and taken to the bosom of the municipality that wanted to mother it. Then the Trustees at Long Beach got busy and on July 17 there was filed with that body a properly-prepared petition asking that body to call an election to pass upon the question of annexing certain adjacent territory that Long Beach desired to take in out of the cold. The Long Beach Trustees called an election for August 16, and that is what is bothering the San Pedro people, for if the election is held it is claimed that the Long Beach citizens will vote upon the admission of territory that was included in the petition filed at San Pedro. And such a thing would be very unneighborly to say the least.

The writ of prohibition asked for is to prevent Long Beach voting the territory in before San Pedro has a chance to do the same thing, on the ground that the San Pedro petition was first filed.

MONTHLY REPORTS.

INCREASE STILL CONTINUES.

County Clerk Keyes reports that the office receipts during the month of July just ended were approximately 100 per cent. increase over the same month's receipts a year ago. The detailed statement filed yesterday was as follows:

The regular monthly count of the money on deposit in the county's treasury was made yesterday by the officers appointed by law, and the following money was found on hand: Gold, $952,570; currency, $99,736; silver, $1604.24; total, $1,053,910.24.

SAGO PALM. The sago palm, of which many are scattered about the city, is slow growing and flowers only at prolonged intervals. There is one now in the Courthouse yard that is in flower and is attracting a great deal of attention. This particular specimen has a bed all to itself and faces the fernery at the north end. It is two years since it last flowered. The single blossom is a cone-shaped affair rising from the center of the palm for about ten or twelve inches. It is yellow in color and curious rather than beautiful.

MINES AND MINING.

OPERATIONS ON MOUNT SIEGEL.

LOS ANGELES COMPANY GOING DOWN FOR GOLD.

So Far the Wonderfully Rich Surface Ore Has Not Continued, but There are Good Values and Work Continues—Greene Gold Company's Dividend.

Charles W. McCrossan, secretary of the Goldfield Mining, Brokerabe and Investment Company of this city, has issued a statement to the stockholders in reference to the work carried on by the company at its property on Mount Siegel in Nevada and at Goldfield.

Five men are working at the former property and surface prospecting shows the vein to be continuous for several hundred feet. Sinking for twenty feet near the apex of the mountain, ore has been taken out assaying $112 a ton in gold. Lower down an incline shaft has been run for sixty-five feet, the first thirty feet being on the vein and the last thirty-five were sunk on a more upright angle, the vein dipping very flat. It is intended to cross-cut at sixty-five feet coming under the apex of the mountin in the hope of striking the shoot in which such good results have been obtained for the first twenty feet.

This shows that the rich surface ore assaying $104,000 that was first found has not continued with depth so far but the management is not discouraged on this account.

From the Goldfield properties the secretary considers returns encouraging and many rich strikes are reported on all sides of the company's holdings. Work is to be commenced on the claims shortly.

GREENE PAYS DIVIDEND.

President W. C. Greene of the Greene Consolidated Gold Company has issued a circular to the company's stockholders announcing that a dividend of 20 cents per share was determined upon by the directors on July 14 and made payable at the close of business on the same day. This was due to the difficulties which the company with those whom President Greene speaks of as a "coterie of speculators" and because, he says, they had threatened injunction to prevent the payment of a dividend for the month of July and thereby endeavor to save the many thousands of dollars' loss which their acts entailed upon them, the management considered it best to pay the dividend without lengthy notice, thereby avoiding the possibility that the stockholders, through litigation, might be deprived of the money due them for an indefinite period.

President Greene declares that the efforts of these parties are directed against both the Greene Gold and the Greene Copper companies which are under the same management. He declares hat he is getting excellent reports from the property and that it is hoped that the next dividend will be double the last in amount.

In conclusion the president denounces the author of the attack on his enterprises in scathing language, referring to him as "the unfortunate, deluded degenerate" and expresses the opinion that he was merely a tool in the hands of others higher in the financial world who, after using him for their own ends, have now deserted him.

THEIR DAY OF DAYS.

Picnic of Orphan Home Children Which Generous People Could Profitably Provide Oftener.

Just ninety-eight little orphan girls and boys from the Orphans' Home at Alpine and Yale streets danced in the white spray and swam like so many little fishes in the plunge at North Beach bath-house yesterday.

It was their yearly picnic and never was more fun crowded in their short lives. Through the courtesy of E. P. Clark they had a special car which took them to Santa Monica, where they were given a reception. Mrs. D. G. Stephens, the acting life president of the association, welcomed the little folk.

Roy Jones donated the bathing suits and plunge to the delighted youngsters and never was such a tangle of curly headed, brown-headed blue-eyed and black-eyed mites seen in the plunge.

It was a merry two hours of the morning that they spent there. Then the Santa Monica ladies who had furnished a delicious luncheon took them in hand. Cakes there were and ices and fruits and candies and sandwiches and cookies.

Mrs. William H. Perry solicited ice cream and cake from her friends and the following ladies contributed money and cake and fruits: Mmes. Low, Newmark, King, Eggleston, Southerland, Hutton, Bliss, Dyke, Griswold and Dr. Hunt. Mr. Reynolds contributed money for cake and fruit and S. J. Wetherton gave eight cakes. Groceryman Johnson of Santa Monica gave these poor little homeless ones one hundred bananas from his stock. The youngsters were chaperoned by Miss Love and Miss Talford, matrons of the home.

In the afternoon the camera obscura man held them dazzled for an hour and the remainder of the time was enjoyed on the sand.

JEFF A-GOING BEAR HUNTING.

Will Take the Governor of Nevada Along.

Edward Partridge Nearly Loses His Life to Bruin.

Boom Due to May Sutton. Six-day Carnival.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO (Nev.) Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Early next week Jim Jeffries and Gov. Sparks are going on a bear-hunting trip to Grizzly Valley, the home of the cinnamon in the Sierra Nevadas. Several prominent Nevadans will go along. A pack of hounds will comprise a portion of the outfit and the aim is to remain away about three weeks, the time to be spent exclusively in search of large game, bears preferred. The trip is the result of plans made during the visit of Jeffries to Reno, several weeks ago, when he acted as referee in the Root-Hart fight. Jeffries then met the Governor for the first time, and friendship sprang up. The hunt next week will be the result.

Edward Partridge of San Francisco killed one of the largest bears seen this season near Deer Park Inn in the Sierra Nevadas today. In doing so, however, he came near losing his life. Partridge and a guide had been hunting, and coming suddenly upon the bear, he fired, the charge taking effect in the animal's body. The bear attacked, and in trying to escape Partridge fell. The next moment the bear was upon the helpless man, and would have killed him, but for prompt action of the guide, who sent a bullet through the bear's brain.

HAL CHASE'S PLAY.
PLACING HIM IN FRONT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Clark Griffith, after today's game, in which Hal Chase, the Los Angeles first baseman, made one of the most remarkable catches ever seen on a ball ground, said: "Chase, in my opinion, is one of the greatest ball players developed in the past ten years. I don't know of any player who can take advantage of an opening more quickly. Let a catcher or baseman make the smallest kind of a slip, and Chase is there to take advantage of it to the limit. At the close of this season, he will be just as good a ball player as there is in America."

DOUGLAS SHOOES IT.
TROTTING GAME VANISHING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gov. Douglass is credited with a movement against pool selling at the Grand Circuit trotting meeting in Massachusetts. Chief Shaw of the State police has already issued orders to suppress pool selling. The meetings scheduling for Readville August 21 to 26 is likely to be transferred to Providence.

The whole trotting game seems threatened, and drivers are largely to blame, as the "strong-arm work" became disgustingly manifest, almost from the opening race of the season.

SIX-DAY CARNIVAL.
FOR CHUG-CHUG CARS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Six-day long-distance races are to be the main feature of the automobile carnival which opens at Long Branch August 13. The races will consist of a non-stop run, a fuel-consumption test and a tire-trial test. The races will cover almost the entire sea front of New Jersey.

BOOM IN TENNIS.
DUE TO MAY SUTTON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Mail says: "There's nothing like the success of a native-born player to stimulate interest, no matter what the branch of sport may be. Since the triumph of May Sutton, the eighteen-year-old California girl, in the women's championship of Great Britain, the game hereabouts has gathered fresh impetus. For a time the argument was advanced that tennis was too violent for women, but this theory has been dispelled."

BUTCHER BOW CUP DEFENDER.

SAN DIEGO CLUB SELECTS A FAST RACING YACHT.

Hardy Likely Will Sail Her in the Races for the Lipton Trophy at End of Month—Detroit and Other South Coast Boats to be There—Greatest Contest on West Coast Expected.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At a general meeting of the San Diego Yacht Club tonight, the Butcher Bow was selected as the defender of the Lipton Cup in the yacht races the last three days of this month. The yacht is owned by Kent Hamilton, but was built for George Hardy three years ago, and he owned her until recently. She is sloop rigged and of salmon boat style.

Undoubtedly the Butcher Bow is the fastest boat of the thirty-foot class on the bay. It is probable that Hardy will sail her in the races. At present the carries two tons ballast, having one ton of lead on her keel and one ton of ballast inside. Her racing sails will be patterned by J. G. Burne, who is the club's official measurer for the regatta. Commodore Pugh of the South Coast Club writes that the Detroit and nearly all the boats of the fleet will be entered for the races.

FISHING AT ITS BEST NOW.

HOT FUN AT THE TENNIS.

Bundy and Rising Continue Their Good Work.

Miss Dobbins Has Plenty of Fun With Miss Ryan.

For the first time in recent tennis history, guesses as to the identity of the ultimate Southern California singles champion are now in order.

Not since the good old days when Young and Rowan and Art Bumiller were heavy artillery in the court battles, has a local tournament been brought off in which some Freeman, or a Bell or a Hendrick did not stand out head and shoulders above his strongest competitior, but this year a combination of circumstances, fortuitous for the best interests of the game, contrived to keep the lists fairly open. Half a dozen knights of the racket now figure to win.

With the narrowing down of the open event and the discarding of such deadwood as is unable to weather the storm of the preliminary round, the class of play is steadily improving, and interest is growing keener with each match.

On form displayed thus far, well versed fans are finding many nice things to say of Tom Bundy's gritty uphill game, and yesterday's showing by H. Rising of Santa Monica in putting out the youngster Hal Gorham, who has wrecked the aspirations of more than one veteran proved that Bundy is likely to have some competition from an unexpected quarter. Add to these the seasoned warhorse, Way; young Bob Variel, who is the "divvie himself" when he "has his day," and others who still have a chance—the result is the hottest contest this end of the State has seen in tennis circles for many moons.

Perfect weather and a bigger, noisier crowd than ever made of yesterday's tennis play an even more startling success than that which opened the tournament.

A refreshing innovation was inaugurated by Tom Bundy and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, who, contrary to the rule of tennis players, lived up to their newspaper reputations on their next public appearance.

The average racketeer cannot stand press prosperity. True, May Sutton and some others might be cited as the exceptions that prove the rule, but a rule it is nevertheless. Bundy and Miss Ryan forgot the hidebound etiquette of the game in this regard, and yesterday proceeded to earn additional encomiums by playing the finest kind of tennis on top of having their pictures printed.

MISS RYAN AGAIN.

Those who think Miss Ryan shows signs of budding Sutton greatness see no cause to change their minds after "Bunny's" retirement yesterday at the hands of that sterling and steady player, Miss Gabrielle Dobbins of Alhambra. This fine type of the athletic girl had her work cut out from the first service.

Little Miss Ryan was nervous and realized she was up against the hardest game of her career; that same nervousness eventually beat her, but it was one of those defeats that do not bring disgrace.

The Dobbins-Ryan set-to—for that it was, and something more—came on about mid-afternoon before the crowd and society settled itself back comfortably in its chairs, grew composed, and prepared to witness the dismemberment of the young lady from Santa Monica.

Society, as usual, had to guess again. Miss Ryan started like a ten times loser, and dropped the first few games as if she had formed the habit. Then Brother Gorham, Sr., from the sidelines began to chortle words of encouragement that acted like magic.

One might almost have fancied a Sutton stood there smashing and cutting the ball past Miss Dobbins.

The play of Mrs. T. H. Dudley's protegé was almost a revelation. She had Miss Dobbins chasing about from one corner to the other; running up in vain after some splendidly placed short chop that just cleared the net and fell dead, or scampering to the back court after a well-nigh perfect lob that had "18 K. Pure" stamped upon it.

The score sped to deuce games, and Miss Ryan began to forge ahead, using a fast forehand drive that skimmed over the neet like a scared bird and bounded low. Miss Dobbins was about mastering it, when the Santa Monica lass changed pace on the stroke and mystified her opponent again.

Miss Dobbins was "on Queer street" as the boxers say. The dazzling strokes of the young girl had the Alhambra expert up in air.

Had Miss Ryan been able to stand the pressure, there would have been nothing to it. But she couldn't and briefly that tells why Miss Dobbins finally nosed out the first set 9-7.

The second was almost a repetition of the first. Again Miss Dobbins started at her steady gait, and took the first four games love. It looked all over, but the shouting.

Then Miss Ryan began to rally. Really Gorham, Sr., ought to be charged with an assist as they say at ball—he helped materially to brace up the flagging spirits of "Bunny" Ryan.

The chop strokes were trotted out again, and the fast overhand drive was called into play.

Again the referee's left arm began to ache from turning over the games won on Miss Ryan's side of the register. From four love, the Santa Monican pounded out four all, only to "blow up in the stretch" like one of her parent's polo ponies. Miss Dobbins took the set and the match 6-4, but after twenty-six games such as she would not care to repeat every day.

All Miss Ryan needs is a little more tournament experience, and the steady self-confidence that it brings. With these additions to her tennis assets, the young lady will verify every prediction made of her, and it will take a Sutton to beat her.

BUNDY ON DECK.

Tom Bundy yesterday disposed of two more of his antagonists in rather hollow style, and is improving steadily. He is in tiptop condition, and never played better tennis in his life.

Townsend was Santa Monica Tommy's first victim and two 6-2 sets let him out.

In the fourth round Bundy had harder game in Prof. Hobbs of Chicago, who is numbered among the "past greats" with the racket, but is by no means a "has-been" as yet, though hardly in shape to do himself or his game justice. He held Bundy to 4-6 the first set, but got only one game in the last.

In point of spectacular interest, the duel between H. Rising and Hal Gorham was easily the best thing of the day. Gorham is hard game, and would be a great player if he stroked a little less. The lad is not gunning for the stand particularly, but he likes to "see 'em bounce," and often tries to smash balls that had better be played safe. In Rising yesterday, Gorham met a brainy player who was quite willing to let him bang away, and didn't mind risking an occasional round arm stroke himself.

Rising has improve immeasurably in the last year. He has a most remarkable talent for handling fast strokes. Gorham gave him plenty of chance to show his ability in this regard yesterday and the way Rising put 'em back was really sensational. A sort of half-volley that sailed high and far back in the court, effective as any lob, was a great point gainer for him, and he had Gorham chasing all over the lot. It was no hollow victory; the slender lad put up a hot fight, and more than once gave Rising his troubles, but lost the first set in 6-4, and the second in 7-5. The pair were well enough matched so that the gallery was kept in a half suppressed uproar throughout.

Archie Way put Gowan out of commission by the same score, and is likely to prove a stumbling block in somebody's path today. He meets Bob Variel first, and a pretty battle of speedy smashes against scientific headwork may be expected.

Miss Merrita Seymour fell before the southpaw strokes of Miss Eleanor Peralta, the left-handed Ocean Park miss of the cut drives, after a successful start that looked very much "Seymour." Miss Peralta finally steadied her game, and profited by Miss Merrita's occasional bursts of wildness. Scores were 6-4, 6-3. Meanwhile Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Bruce were having more fun in another court than the traditional Manila monkey could shake a stick at. The Redondo matron had her English screw service right with her, and unpacked the same before starting. Mrs. Bruce made quite a mess of it two or three times, and the pair ceased hostilities on each occasion to join in a mutual laugh which was not long one sided, Mrs. Seymour lost two sets, but both players were winners, for they had enjoyed half an hour of sportsmanlike sport without working their hearts out as some of the younger girls often do.

The junior final will be between Huntington Barker and Cecil Henry. In a ding-dong duel, Huntington retired his brother Parrish Barker by 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 after playing a good half of the afternoon. Each lad knows the other's game in all its points, and the victory was a hard one.

SYSONBY LEADS THE RACERS.

HORSE'S WINNINGS THIS YEAR OVER FIFTY THOUSAND.

Total for Two Years Not Far from the Hundred-Thousand-Dollar Mark—Little Jockey Knapp on Top at Brighton—Notes of the Turf Here and There.

Up to the present time Jim Keene's Sysonby leads all the horses of any age in winnings, his total being almost $51,000 for 1905. With the $40,093 won by him as a two-year-old his total for the two years is $91,543 and will thus arrive early at the $100,000 mark. He has met but one defeat and that was in the Futurity of last year when he ran third to Artful and Tradition. In the two years he has won eight big stakes and ran a dead heat with Race King in another, which was the Metropolitan handicap. This is certainly a record to be proud of. His record is as follows:

1904—Sweepstakes, 5½ furlongs, 107 pounds up, in 1.07 4-5, value $850; Brighton Junior stakes, six furlongs, 112 pounds up, in 1.13, value $12,000; Flash stakes, 5½ furlongs, 125 pounds up, in 1.06 4-5, value $5000; Saratoga Special stakes, 5½ furlongs, 122 pounds up, in 1.07, value $14,000; Junior Champion stakes, about six furlongs, 127 pounds up, in 1.09 3-5, value $6270.

1905—Metropolitan handicap, one mile, 107 pounds up, in 1.41 2-5, value $5565; Tidal stakes, mile and a quarter, 126 pounds up, in 2.05, value $15,000; Commonwealth handicap, one mile and a quarter, 111 pounds up, in 2.07, value $11,575; Realisation stakes, one mile and five furlongs, 126 pounds up, in 2.47 value $18,210.

"Big Bill" Knapp, the little kid who was a rider at Ascot last winter, led all the jockeys at Brighton up to last week with fourteen wins, nine seconds and eight-thirds. Jack Martin is second and Hildebrand is third, where he rests securely because he rides so many heavily played horses place and show when they are favorites, just as he did at Ascot last winter. McDaniel is doing very well, having ridden three winners in two days. Miller is away down the line for he is an in and outer. The Brighton meeting has been a bad one for the public, for but thirty favorites won in ninety-six races. In one week twenty-four favorites were beaten in the thirty-six races. During one week only nine favorites won out of thirty-six.

Jockey Fuller, who was here last winter and runk a good part of his time, according to paddock information, is about to get back into the game again, his case of blood poisoning turning out better than was expected. The surgeons of the hospital where he now lays say that he will be able to use his leg again and can ride when he comes out of the hospital. When he was here last winter he had hard work to ride at 110 pounds but his vacation in the hospital has put him down to ninety pounds and if he has not too much of a scare on when he gets into a race this winter he should do business with the other boys for he is tricky and knows all the ins and outs of the game of crowding and bumping and scaring the other jocks on the backstretch. His enforced abstinence will doubtless cure him of the desire to kill all the goose within reach.

All horsemen who have an idea that

Corrigan's old horse McGee has developed gout or rheumatism and his legs are so bad that he will be put in the stud next spring. He is an imported horse and was bought by Corrigan in England when he was a yearling. He won fifteen races in 1904.

Pat Gorman of the firm of Gorman & Bauer, who was ruled off at Ascot last winter for some funny business, has been reinstated at last. Jockey D. Hall, who was ruled off at Oakland about two years ago for queer riding, has also been taken back into the fold.

The governing turf bodies have decided that in case a horse is overlooked by the starter and the field is sent away without him, all bets will be declared off. Such a thing happens occasionally.

Pen Points

Will the Council stand by the ousted members of the library board? Ladies, shall they be allowed to do it?

Monday was Miss Jones's day at home. And, as far as can be learned, Mr. Lummis also remained indoors.

If Miss Jones gets back—or stays in, whichever is the correct expression—the books that Mr. Lummis wrote will occupy a prominent place in the library—but not in this library.

Director Rodman may not be "the darling of the gods," but he's a lucky man, just the same. He stands well with the women.

The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world, including the public libraries of the various municipalities thereof.

The library incident may at least serve the useful purpose of teaching the other municipal boards the wisdom of steering clear of the Friday Morning Club.

What's the matter with running the Owens River along the same route and using some of the surplus water to sprinkle down the dust on the King's Highway?

"Men must work and women must weep," says the song. But it is not so much that way now as it used to be. A good deal of the weeping business has been cut out.

According to Mr. Dockweiler and the others, the famous lines should probably be altered to run as follows: "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that throws the rocks."

Yellow fever turns a man the color of a gold dollar. And it is being proved at Panama that, in trying to turn the one, many a poor devil only succeeds in getting the other.

Women, in our hours of ease, are said to be uncertain, coy and hard to please. And yet can it be said that it was in the library board's hour of ease that all this happened to them?

A Los Angeles female fortune teller who has somehow become mislaid in Chicago, predicts that flames of fire will soon consume that town to ashes. Doubtless her judgment was warped by the weather.

Africa is said to be an exceptionally fine country, and yet it is next to impossible to induce emigration in that direction. Most people seem to prefer to wait until the jungles are better provided with sidewalks.

A recent correspondent in The Times declared that "club women make him tired." We violate no confidence when we state that the gentleman is not one of the four ousted members of the library board, either.

Mr. Lummis having thoroughly posted himself on the Indian question, perhaps it might now prove profitable to him if he would divert his mind against a solution of that other world-old problem: "Why is a woman?"

Premier Katsura told Secretary Taft that Japan regarded the United States as her sponsor, but all W. H. said in reply was to look wise. You bet those little yellow men can't play horse with a man who was born and reared in Ohio.

A great many of those signposts that are to be put up in the desert should be made of asbestos. There are certain heat spots on that great sand waste where wooden signs would burn to cinders in a day, and iron would melt in less than forty-eight hours.

It will be remembered that Capt. Miles Standish based his opinion of Julius Caesar's greatness on the fact that Julius was "both a writer and a fighter." But we have men in this country now who can write and fight and talk the arms and legs off of a life insurance agent in the bargain.

It is noticed that Emperor William travels around a great deal, paying visits to those other monarchs whom he is supposed to boss. From an American point of view this rather weakens William as a dominator. He can never set himself up as a real boss until he can stay at home and make the other fellows come to see him.

It is now being freely predicted that gold will become so common that a man won't want to take it in change for stage money. In order to allay the fears of the cashier downstairs, however, we take occasion to state that we will continue to accept the stuff in lieu of salary for a few Saturday nights yet to come.

There can be no doubt that Jacob Riis is a good man. He started life as a newspaper reporter, and therefore never had a chance to learn anything bad. But whether he would make a good Mayor for New York is another question. Several men have been known to act differently after they became Mayors.

BUSINESS.

Official denial of serious damage from black rust caused a weak opening in the Chicago wheat market. Final quotations on September were 84⅛@ 84½. The New York Stock market demonstrated good absorptive powers yesterday. General interest was lacking, and the close was easy.

THE YELLOW KNOCKER.

The Boycotter's Own has not come out squarely against the project to supply Los Angeles with an abundance of pure water, but in its own furtive way it is seeking to incite distrust and to instigate opposition to the most important move yet made or proposed in the development of Southern California.

It is but four days since the Owens River project was disclosed in its general plan and scope to the public through the columns of The Times, and day by day the details are being made known and discussed, yet Hearst's paper is filled with insinuations that facts are being concealed and that there is a job to rush the thing through before the people can examine into it and give it intelligent consideration.

The Hearst organ professes to be desirous of more light. Under the thin and outworn pretence of quoting unnamed business men, the Examiner attempts to discredit the city officials who have been working out the great plan, and says "it is time for them to cast off the cover of darkness and tell the people everything they know." Taxpayers, "from the day laborer up to the merchant and banker," according to the Daily Totem, are howling themselves hoarse for more information.

Nobody else seems to have heard the clamorous demand for all the details of the engineers' notes and figures in one installment, but if there is such a demand—if the general features of the proposed water development have not been made clear or comprehensible to the intelligence of the Examiner's readers—it is up to the Hearst organ itself to supply the light.

The Examiner has asserted—in excuse for not printing the news—that it has been in possession of full and accurate knowledge of the plans and operations of the city officials from the start. It has declared in editorials its own responsibility for all that has been done. The question of water supply was raised "a year ago" by the Examiner.

Of course, Los Angeles never knew she needed water until Lowenthal the impossible came to town.

The water commission was appointed "at the Examiner's suggestion," every move made was "in accordance with the Examiner's suggestion." If all that be true, obviously the Examiner is able to supply the information so clamorously sought by its host of business men in buckram.

But it is almost needless to say that there is no more truth in the insinuations of public dissatisfaction and distrust than in the yellow faker's self-proclaimed invention of the water question and foreknowledge of the news which it failed to print.

A CHINESE VIEW.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Chinese Free Press, of San Francisco (published daily by the Tai Ting Yat Bo Publishing Co.) takes a serious view, fully justified by the facts of the situation, of the commercial relations at present existing between merchants of the United States and those of the Flowery Kingdom. In a strong editorial, the Free Press denounces the indignities to which, it alleges, intending immigrants from China have been subjected by subordinate officials of our government. "It is folly," says the Free Press, "to expect Secretary Metcalf, the President, or even Secretary Taft, who has given the matter much attention, to be cognizant of the vile schemes conceived and practiced by the subordinates of whose actions the Chinese complain." The writer goes on to tell how "a medical inspector, for the purpose of making a record, will transform a simple inflamed eyelid into a malignant disease;" how "an outside physician, when at Honolulu, under pretense of a medical examination, injects into the eyes of twenty-four Chinamen, at a charge of fifteen dollars each, an irritating substance, so that by the time of arrival at San Francisco, the officers shall have apparent grounds for their detention and subsequent deportation, or for further monetary bleeding, or to enable the steamship company to earn the price of the return passage." It is further related that "an infant of five years, for whom coin was not forthcoming, was torn from its parents' arms and deported, without a single person on the crowded steamer to care for its welfare;" also that "private papers were forcibly taken from the person of a Chinaman in transit, plainly in violation of the United States Constitution, to be used as evidence by a bribe-taking official." It is also stated that locks are often broken and unlawful entrance made in search of evidence against the incomer, "when the 'graft' is not at hand for quick disbursement;" that "habeas corpus proceedings are prosecuted vigorously or feebly, as rewards are or are not bestowed." With "secrecy as the prime factor in the procurement of unlawful emoluments," it is assumed that the Washington government must be unaware of the fraudulent practices which are at the bottom of all the mischief. To establish a case at law, rigid proofs are requisite, and the secrecy governing the actions of the guilty parties precludes the obtaining of such proof, so that "diplomatic interference by the Chinese government is also rendered futile—as useless as the personal protests of the victims." Continuing the Free Press says:

"The merchant of China fully comprehends the magnitude of the scheme of boycotting the goods and merchandise of a great mass of people; he knows that a recoil may injure himself, but he has confidence in his own power to concentrate upon one subject, upon the unanimity of his fellow-merchants, and upon his own endurance. He understands the discomforts and losses which will attend his refusal to accept American goods, the cutting off of American exports, declining to trade in the cotton products of the South and East, the machinery of the Middle States, the flour, lumber, etc., of the Pacific Coast, and the withdrawal of transport business from vessels of American register. He feels justified in applying this drastic measure. He has commenced to show his earnestness. The news comes daily that chambers of commerce from Peking in the north to the Malay Peninsula and the Straits Settlements in the south have taken steps to persuade the commercial people—the captains of industry—of the United States that the cry for relief must be heeded.

"The Chinese mind conceives that a remedy for such wrongs should be found. Appeals to the department at Washington, with rare exceptions, result in the endorsement of the acts of the criminal underlings at ports of entry, and in the greater number of cases the expense makes such appeal prohibitory. The Chinaman, then, has no recourse but to resort to retaliation; not to illegal acts, however, but to the right of revolution when suffering under unbearable wrongs. In the present emergency that right to revolt has assumed the character of a peaceable boycott. No blood is shed; the governments are not involved; no physical harm is done to either nation. But by the boycott, independent of the government and within the law, the merchants of China hope to forcibly call the attention of the American authorities to the wrong, crime, and brutality now attending the execution of the exclusion law, that they may prescribe and enforce an efficacious remedy. The use of the boycott has of late years assumed quite a dignified place in the science of political economy, and the Chinese merchants propose that its exercise in the interest of a broad humanity shall correct otherwise irremediable evils."

From the Chinese point of view, there is full justification for such action as has been taken by Chinese guilds and merchants. The "boycott" which they have instituted against American goods is unattended by violence. It is not directed against any particular firm or individual. It lacks the elements of a conspiracy, for it is openly proclaimed, and is general in its application. But it is not true, as stated, that "the case of the boycott has of late years assumed quite a dignified place in the science of political economy." As known and practiced in the United States, and practically in all civilized countries, the boycott is disreputable, unjustifiable, and often criminal. This, however, is when conspiracies are formed against some individual or company. The Chinese case is different, in most essential respects, from the ordinary boycott. It is a withdrawal of trade relations for reasons which, we are bound to confess, are not without foundation.

If harsh, abominable and inhuman practices such as those above noted have been practiced by subordinate officials of the United States, it is high time that such actions should be investigated, and that those who have been guilty of such atrocities should be punished as they deserve. Secret service men of the United States would not find it a matter of great difficulty to procure evidence sufficient to convict, if the statements of atrocious treatment are true.

As the case appears, the Chinese do not ask anything more than that courteous and decent treatment shall be accorded to such persons of Chinese nationality as are entitled, under present laws, to land in the United States. Coolie immigration is not asked nor expected. Certainly, if this be the sole demand of the Chinese, it should be complied with to the letter, in strict accordance with the President's recent order. Violation of the order, whether in letter or in spirit, should be an offense sufficient to insure the speedy dismissal of the offending official.

REORGANIZATION NEEDED.

Information comes in the form of a dispatch from Oyster Bay that the President has directed Secretary Wilson to reorganize thoroughly the bureau of crop statistics of the Agricultural Department. This is a branch of the public service which ought to be reorganized, on a reliable basis, as soon as effective reorganization can be accomplished. Facts that have come to light relative to careless or false crop statistics—particularly in relation to cotton crop estimates—show that a thorough overhauling of the crop statistics bureau is requisite to the continued usefulness of that bureau.

It will doubtless be worth while, on general principles, to overhaul other bureaus of the department, to the end that the highest possible efficiency may be attained. Secretary Wilson announces his intention to make a rigid investigation of these other bureaus, and it is to be hoped that his hand will not be stayed until the task shall have been completed, and every portion of his department shall have been purged of all taint or suspicion of corruption.

Secretary Wilson expresses an intention to create a new board, with Assistant Secretary Hays at its head, which shall handle all crop statistics. The board is to be composed of four men—two from the North and two from the South. They are to be men of scientific attainments, of recognized standing, and "experts in whom the country will have absolute confidence." All field reports are to be placed at the proper time in the hands of these experts, and each will make out a separate report, from which the head of the department will deduce the reports given to the public.

"Through the work of this board," declares Secretary Wilson, "I think we shall have perfectly reliable estimates made of all crop conditions," and he points out that this plan "will be better than that providing for only one man at the head of the bureau of crop statistics," because "that one man might leave the department, might get sick, or might prove to be a rascal. This idea," continues the Secretary, "eliminates any of these possibilities. Then, too, it will insure perfect security and confidence."

Perfect security and confidence—these are what the people pay for in providing the money which makes crop statistics possible. The people have a right to require that all crop reports, forecasts, and statistics of every sort, issued from the Agricultural Department, shall be thoroughly honest and as accurate as human skill can make them. In proportion as these results are realized the crop statistics will be of value and the people will be satisfied with them.

A PARABLE.

Together came two souls at Heaven's gate;
Strangers to each in their transfigured state.

Before them stood the servant of the Lord—
A shining angel with his flaming sword.

Then to one trembling spirit of the dead
The guardian angel of the portal said:

"Dost thou thine earthly enemies forgive?"
"Aye," came the answer. Quoth the angel, "Live."

Then said the angel to the other one:

"For him be it what fate is thine to say:
As he shall judge, so shall it be this day."

In silence stood he there, and none may tell.
What dreams were his of torture and of hell.

But when at last he dared uplift his eyes,
Wide swung the gate and there was Paradise!

—[Frank Dempster Sherman in the Congregationalist.

The Chinese Guilds.

What is really true is this. In seeking to evade their stipulations the Chinese love to put forward the opposition and power of the guilds and make that an excuse for not doing anything. But it is found that when the interests of their own require it they do know how to bring even the guilds to terms. Some years ago we had a case of this kind at Swatow. The guild at that place tried to prevent an American from occupying a piece of ground that the government itself had conveyed to him, and in dispatch after dispatch sent to the American consul they avowed their willingness to make good the conveyance, but said the guild was opposed to it. The American consul at that time was Mr. Joseph C. A. Wingate. He got tired of this dallying and wrote to a very high official, saying that he knew of a treaty made by the government at Pekin, but he did not know of any made with the Guild Hall of Swatow. If, however, the authorities at Swatow continued to put forward the guild as an authority in the matter, and if they were a rightful authority, then let them state it in writing and he would know what to do. It is needless to add those authorities never again mentioned the name of the Guild Hall. They met their own responsibilities. The guilds of China are not the government of China.—[Letter to Boston Transcript.

There Will be no Rumbling.

Among orators of the dismal type who regard the future of the republic with gloomy forebodings it is now fashionable to refer to "the rumbling of the death carts" during the French reign of terror and to intimate that the same awesome sound will be heard in our own cities when the commune begins operations. This, however, is one apprehension that we need not give way too. With the present popularity of rubber tires we may be sure that even the death carts will be equipped with them during our reign of terror. Consequently there will be no rumbling.—[Chicago Chronicle.

SOU' BY SOU'WEST.

When the Count Stopped.

During the summer months the citizens of Arizona and New Mexico, who can get away from their ranches and mines, come "inside," as they say, and live in comfort in Los Angeles. At the Hollenbeck, where they foregather, politics and the Statehood imbroglio are taboo, but on any other topics they talk freely and they are loaded with good stories of the Southwest.

Col. Greer of Albuquerque, who manages railroads, ranches, cowboys and several thousand cattle, was induced the other evening to tell how the social regeneration of a New Mexican railroad town was brought about.

"The young lads of the town," said Col. Greer, "were behaving rather wildly and making the saloons noisier than seemed necessary. The town didn't like it, and the saloon-keepers themselves were disgruntled. So all hands chipped in, raised a fund, hired an adobe store and fitted it up as a clubroom, with a billiard table and card tables, and then organized the boys into a club. They took to the scheme all right, elected their own officers and ran the club in good shape, and acquired a new sense of responsibility and importance. The club gentled the town a whole lot.

"After awhile the club began to get exclusive and haughty and took to blackballing applicants for membership. One of our ranch hands known as 'Rusty' tried to get in and was blackballed by the kids because he was a cow puncher.

"Rusty thought that was drawing the lines of social distinction rather fine, and he brooded over it until he accumulated a lot of bile and a grievance. One day he announced that he was going into town to wipe out the insult, and he invited another puncher called Spanish to go along and see that he made a good job of it.

"When they got to town, of course, they considered the matter with due deliberation before the bar of a saloon. Liquor exhilarated Rusty, but Spanish was one of those fellows who become drowsy with drink, and after a few libations he would go to sleep standing in his tracks. Rusty drank and brooded until he was ready for action, and then he said to Spanish: 'Come along and watch me stampede the bunch. You needn't help none; you just stand outside and count 'em while I throw 'em out.'

"They went down the street to the clubroom, and Spanish propped himself against an awning post and went to sleep. Rusty went into the club, where the boys, who had heard of his hostile intentions, were laying for him with billiard cues and other handy articles. There was something doing for a minute, and then Rusty was thrown bodily out of the door, across the sidewalk and into the street.

"As Rusty hit the ground and heard Spanish say 'one,' he remarked resignedly: 'That'll be all, Spanish.'"

PEOPLE OF THE COAST.

Press Woodruff, for many years a newspaper man in the Northwest, made his début in vaudeville in Seattle last week.

J. P. Hofman of Seattle is building an airship with which he is confident he will be able to solve the problem of aerial navigation.

Former Secretary of War Daniel S. Lamont, who died last week, was a nephew of Rev. Daniel Lamont of Fallbrook, San Diego county.

Walter F. Horner of Brennon, Wash., has been granted permission by the government to build a road and trail leading into the heart of the Olympic range.

Otto Krampath, a Bakersfield banker, acting as the agent of an eastern surgical supply house bought a large rattlesnake of the "side winder" variety the other day and shipped it to New York by express.

Mrs. Jack May, a former California girl, whose husband is now clerk in a federal department at Nome, has just received a check for $20,000 as her share of a clean-up made by a miner to whom she advanced $700 as a grubstake last fall.

Prof. J. G. Lemon and Mrs. Lemon, both accomplished botanists, are now in Southern Arizona searching for rare flora of that region. On a recent trip the professor was siezed with pneumonia and for two weeks lay under a sagebrush where he was carefully tended by his devoted wife.

Theodore Wores, the California artist who has achieved fame for his paintings of life in San Francisco's Chinese quarter, has been making sketches about Santa Barbara. "There are great possibilities for a painter in Santa Barbara; it is the most paintable place I know of," said Mr. Wores to an interviewer.

Col. John McCracken of Portland, who crossed the plains in 1849 settling in Oregon, has been visiting friends in Seattle. The colonel was appointed United States Marshal for the District of Oregon by President Buchanan in 1857 and served until after the inauguration of Lincoln.

C. E. Kelsey, a resident of San José, has been appointed by the Secretary of the Interior to make an investigation into the condition and the needs of the Indians of Northern California.

Buell and Hausen have disposed of the Escondido Times to Charles K. Hamburg. Mr. Hamburg was a former owner of the property.

Capt. James M. Partlow, pioneer of Oregon and one of the best known of Columbia River pilots in the early days, died in Portland recently. Capt. Partlow was a veteran of the Mexican War serving in the Second Missouri Cavalry under Col. Sterling Price in the famous march from Fort Leavenworth to Santa Fé in 1846.

John J. Watterson, now living at Chihuahua, is the sole survivor of a party of eighteen that arrived there forty-three years ago, sent out by the Union Iron Works of San Francisco to erect the mill at the Refugio mine at Ocampo. The men and machinery were shipped to Aglampo on the Gulf of California and from there packed by mules over the mountains to Ocampo.

P. M. Reardon, managing director of the Bully Hill mine at De La Mar, Shasta county, is the owner of a historic flag. It was made by Mrs. John C. Fremont shortly after her marriage and presented to her husband on his departure for the Rocky Mountains in 1842 on that expedition which was to end on the shores of the Pacific and aid in giving California to the Union. The flag was given to Mr. Reardon by Mrs. Fremont some years ago. It is the identical banner that was unfurled by the intrepid Pathfinder on Fremont's peak.

"Pomes With Long Hair."

The following remarks on Tennyson were recently handed in on an examination paper by a schoolboy in an English literary class: "Lord Alfred Tennyson was a celebrated poet, and he wrote a lot of beautiful pomes with long hair. His greatest pome is called 'The Idle King.' He was made a lord, but he was a good man and wrote many oads."—[Harper's Weekly.

WITTE'S WIFE A JEWESS.

Is of Obscure Birth, but is Devotedly Attached to Her Statesman Husband.

[New York Tribune:] Countess Witte, wife of the eminent statesman who has just been appointed by the Czar to be his principal plenipotentiary in the peace negotiations with Japan at Portsmouth, N. H., is a Jewess, a fact which I have not seen mentioned in any of the reviews of the career of the count published in connection with his nomination. Those who recall the treatment of the Jewish race in Russia by court, government, and people will be able to appreciate the extent to which this union has handicapped De Witte, the situation being rendered still more difficult by the fact that the countess, besides being of humble birth, was formerly the wife of the obscure official subordinate of De Witte, to wed whom she obtained a dissolution of her first marriage.

It is true that the countess is a clever woman, that her second marriage was a love match, and that she and her husband are a devoted couple. Moreover, her salons at St. Petersburg are frequented by "La Haute Finance," born Russian and foreign, which has led on more than one occasion to totally unfounded and slanderous rumors, circulated by her husband's political foes, to the effect that the habitués of her salons used them to hatch "coups de bourse" on the money markets both at home and abroad with official information and secrets obtained through her from the count. On one occasion the charges of this kind took such a pronounced form that De Witte demanded of the Czar an independent inquiry into their foundation, which resulted in the establishment of the groundlessness of the accusations.

With all that, however, Mme. de Witte has until now not been received at court and the great world at St. Petersburg has followed suit, that is to say, the feminine portion thereof. In fact, the late Demitri Sipiaguine, who was murdered a few years ago while holding the office of minister of the interior, incurred no end of ill will, not only in society but also at court, when not long after his marriage to Princess Vyasemska he was led by his warm friendship for De Witte to take his bride to call upon the latter's wife. Indeed, the widowed Czarina did not hesitate to manifest her displeasure in a marked manner to Sipiaguine about the matter.

De Witte is devoted to his daughter, who has been in a particular way her father's companion and confidante. She is married to a member of the illustrious house of Narishkine, which, although untitled, is one of the oldest and grandest of the Muscovite aristocracy, several Czarinas having been Narishkines, including the mother of Peter the Great.

Might Change His Mind.

The marriage service had proceeded without a hitch so far, but the responses proved a stumbling block. Neither the groom nor his partner had received much in the "eddication" line; so, when the parson in his most dignified tone asked the usual question, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" Jack immediately answered "I 'ull."

"You must say, 'I will,'" corrected the cleric, and asked the question over again.

The irate clergyman threatened to stop the service altogether if the response was not properly given. This was too much for Sally, who broke in, quite savagely:

"Garn along wid ye, mon; thee 'ull 'ave our Jack saying he won't in a minute or two wid ye worryin'."

The service was resumed.—[Mariner's Advocate.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

UNION IN AT KERN RIVER.

Big Corporation Buys Land for Reservoir Site.

Will There be Competition With Associated?

Or Will the Two Co-operate in Selling Kern?

At Bakersfield a few days ago was recorded a deed by which John Enos transferred to the Union Oil Company ten acres in the southeast corner of section 6-29-28 on the edge of the Kern River field. According to the deed the price was $1000 or $100 per acre.

The sale is a notable one in several ways. Section 6 lies just west of the properties of the Monte Cristo, Mercedes, Del Ray, Cortez and San Joaquin, located on section 5 and south of the Green & Whittier on 31. The ten acres purchased lie directly north of and adjoining the reservoirs, tanks and offices of the Standard which are on Section 7. West of Section 6 are more reservoirs of the Standard.

Section 6 has never been touched by the drill. John Enos, the owner of the entire section, refused many flattering offers during the days of the boom and insisted upon leaving it untouched and unimproved for reasons best known to himself and on which he never condescended to enlighten the public. When the oil belt became well determined it was conceded that there was very little chance, if any, of finding oil on No. 6, and then no one sought it except for a building or reservoir site. If the price named in the deed be the one actually paid it is hard to see what Enos has gained by holding on so long, as during the boom it is probable that he could have obtained three or four times this amount.

It is not at all likely that the Union has any intention of drilling for oil. In fact it is stated that it intends to build a 300,000-barrel reservoir. This will be, of course, for storage purposes and there is much speculation as to the motive behind the matter. At first sight it would look as though it were intended in some way to compete with the Associated for business at Kern River, but unless there is much more to follow it would seem like a weak attempt at competition, even with an independent company, to say nothing of as fierce and stubborn a fighter as the Associated has shown itself to be. From this very reason there must be an understanding between the two big corporations, but on the other hand the Union has never shown the slightest disposition to surrender its independence although it might possibly enter into a working agreement as to certain territory or lines of business.

The Union has never done as much business in the Kern field as in the southern and coast fields, although it has one property on Section 32, the Claremont. It formerly owned a half interest in the Green & Whittier, now a Associated holding. It also owns a refinery located on Section 8 near the Southern Pacific tracks. It is possible that it is the Union's intention to store its oil from the Claremont and wait for a better market rather than to leave the oil in the ground while the Associated and others continue pumping and draining the sands of the entire district. This is what a number of independents are talking of doing if no agreement for next year is reached with the Associated Oil Company.

If on the other hand the Union intends to fight the Associated in the latter's territory to offset its entrance into the former's chosen center of operations at Santa Maria it is likely that the next six months will witness the opening of the fiercest war in the oil business that has been seen on the coast. That either side would deliberately choose such a course is questioned by many. On the other hand there is much to show that the two gigantic corporations are likely to clash in many parts, especially as the Associated has gone upon the ocean and invaded the markets of Alaska, Hawaii, Oregon and Washington and threatened to reach out to the Orient and to the south.

While Associated stock has trippled in value during the last few months under the stimulus of booming by brokers and speculators and by the big deals made with the Amalgamated, the Kern independents and the Pacific Oil and Transportation Company. Union stock has also advanced until it is now above par—$100. Yesterday is was quoted at $105 on exchange. A few months ago it was at about $90 or less. The steady advance in these two stocks is construed by many as a further confirmation of the belief that the two corporations have agreed upon a working basis, arranged a truce as it were, covering at least some points, such as the price of oil sold in certain territory, as, for example, the 40-cent basis in Los Angeles. Coöperation for mutual interests at Kern River or elsewhere might be perhaps possible provided the Union retained its absolute independence and control of its property. This there is every reason to believe will never be surrendered by the present owners.

ASSOCIATED AFTER CONTROL.

That the Associated is moving steadily, if slowly, with a view to control seems to admit of no doubt. It was a long and hard struggle to win over the Mattson people and at least six months elapsed between the time that it first became pretty generally known that pressure was being brought to bear upon them and the final consummation of the deal. Will it get this control? That is the question. So far it appears to have succeeded in its different moves, but now the Monterey pipe line is about to be duplicated by independents unless this enterprise is headed off.

ANOTHER COMBINATION?

MORE WAR ON STANDARD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That a new combividual interests in Kansas and Individual interests in aKnsas and Indian Territory fields is being formed for war on Standard Oil interests was rumored yesterday from the west. The negotiations for this purpose are in the hands of the Mellon interests of this city, who financed the J. M. Guffey Petroleum Company and control that concern. One of the wealthiest men in close touch with the Mellons is H. C. Frick.

BREEDEN'S DENIAL.

SAYS NO DEAL PENDING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Commercial today says this: "H. C. Breeden, treasurer of the Pacific Coast Oil Company, which handles the product of the Standard Oil Company in California, has been in the city for several days, as have also representatives of several Southern California oil companies. Their trip east at the same time gave rise to the report in Los Angeles that a deal for the acquisition of large tracts of oil lands by the Standard Oil Company was pending. One report gave the consideration as $15,000,000.

When asked today at No. 26 Broadway, whether he was carrying on such negotiations, Mr. Breeden replied: "I am not negotiating any deal either for $15,000,000 or for $15. Furthermore, no negotiations are being carried on, nor is any deal pending for purchase of any California oil properties by the Standard Oil Company."

SEVERAL GOOD SALES.

Property Which Has Gone up a Thousand Per Cent. in Five Years.

H. J. Hollingsworth & Co. report the following sales of real property just closed up:

Thomas McKeever sells to Henry S. Williams No. 1135 South Hill street, a lot 48x155 feet, with a nine-room house, for $19,200 quoted price. This is exactly $400 a foot, for Hill street below Eleventh.

Dr. Henry West Hughes has bought a half interest in 150x159 feet on the southeast corner of Hope and Ninth streets for the quoted consideration of $37,500. There was some trade in this deal, but it is said to be gilt-edge. Dr. John R. Haynes is the owner of the other half. This is at the rate of $366 and a fraction per front foot of the Hill street frontage.

Mary Tyler has sold to William D. Stephens, Nos. 116 and 118 Car street, between Main and Hill, a lot 80x100 feet, for $8000.

The sale of No. 736 South Broadway, a lot 51x155 feet, between Seventh and Eighth streets, for W. E. McVey has been made at $90,000. The deed passed to the Title Insurance and Trust Company, but is for a local investor whose name is withheld from the public.

The agency reporting these sales with the coöperation of Lee A. McConnell has closed a deal by which Fleming Franklin conveys to Adolf Klan, a lot 45x110 feet, No. 512 West Seventh street, improved with two small brick stores for the quoted price of $46,000, or $1000 per foot. This is just west of Olive street. The property sold about five years ago for $4600. It has, therefore, enhanced 1000 per cent. or 200 per cent. a year.

Thos. J. Norton has sold to Dr. Benbrook and Dr. Holmar No. 844 South Grand avenue, a lot 60x165, improved with a somewhat old frame house. The price is quoted at $27,500. This is $458.33 2-3 per foot.

EVENTS IN LOCAL SOCIETY.

ONE of the loveliest of Los Angeles maids has just returned from an eastern visit of nearly a year and now we are to lose her. She is Miss Jessie Evelyn Hall and the man who has won her heart is Walter Wilson Williams of Hoopeston, Ill. The wedding is to take place in the early part of September.

Miss Hall is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Hall of No. 668 Edgeware, and is one of the most cordially liked girls in her set. She is a popular member of the Delta Iota Chi Sorority and a graduate of the Los Angeles High School. Her many friends will be interested in her happiness.

Miss Hall arrived on Monday afternoon after a year's eastern trip. She spent time in all the different States, visiting friends and relatives the while.

—o—

Party of Six.

Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant of West Twenty-eighth street entertained a party of eight little girls at the Orpheum on Saturday afternoon with a box party, concluding with a luncheon served at Christopher's. Pink-shaded candelabra and pink carnations were effective table deckings, while places were marked with hand-painted sketches tied with pink bows and maidenhair ferns.

Attendants Chosen.

The arrangements for the wedding of Miss Leslie Green and Howard E. Huntington, which is to take place on the 19th of this month at the pretty home of the bride-elect at Berkeley, have about been completed. Miss Ruth Green, sister of the bride, is to be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids are to be Misses Elizabeth Huntington, Marian Huntington, Elizabeth Livermore and Ruth Knowles. Hugh S. Stewart of this city, who is Mr. Huntington's cousin and lifelong chum, will go north to act as best man. The wedding will be a very charming one doubtless, as the bridesmaids will all wear cream-colored gowns and carry pink tiger lilies and the fair bride is to wear white satin with rare lace trimming and will carry as a bouquet orchids and lilies of the valley. The spacious old-fashioned home of the Greens will just comfortably accommodate the one hundred and fifty guests invited, close friends and relatives only.

Princess Hatzfeldt, who was Clara Huntington, is just now on her way across the water to be present at the nuptials and relatives from the Southland will go north for the wedding also.

Return from North.

Miss Gertrude King and Miss Edith Herron have just returned from a delightful trip spent with Lieut. and Mrs. Graham at Mare Island, where the navy yard did all they could for the two pretty Los Angeles visitors. In Santa Barbara, where the girls visited Miss Herron's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus H. Herron, a number of social gatherings were arranged in their honor also.

To Wed Oakland Girl.

The engagement of Miss Mabel Linden Reed of Oakland to Harry Lane of this city has recently been announced. Miss Reed is popular in both Oakland and San Francisco society and is a talented young woman. Mr. Lane is well known in Los Angeles and attended the University of California, where he first met Miss Reed. While in the university Mr. Lane made a study of the Chinese language and has planned to go to the Orient to engage in business. While no definite date has been set for the wedding, it is rumored that it will take place some time in the early winter.

House Party.

Dr. Grace W. Sharp of Saticoy is entertaining a party of young people from Thursday until Saturday of this week at their beautiful country home. She was assisted in entertaining by Misses Ploy and Hazel Dickinson and in clover leaf design. Prizes included a cloak hanger and dainty fan for the girls and a cigar tray and leather card case for the men. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Luentzel, Mr. and Mrs. Burwell A. Holmes, Mrs. Garcia, Mrs. H. Runey and Misses May and Martha Laird, Edna Appletonk, Alice Sherwood, Dr. Henry Runey, and Messrs. Aldrich, John Coke, Roy Baker, Fred Appleton, Edgar Dorr, Dolmar and Smith.

Tea on Shipboard.

Members of the Woman's Press Club enjoyed a delightful English high tea on board the ship Cabrillo at Venice yesterday afternoon, having as guests of honor Miss Anna Shaw and Miss Susan B. Anthony. Tea was served at 6 o'clock and was poured by Mrs. John W. Mitchell, with all the grace of an English hostess. About seventy members and friends were present and the affair was a pleasant one in the club's history.

Prominent Lawyer Weds.

Much interest will be felt in a marriage solemnized yesterday at 3 o'clock, Byron L. Oliver, the attorney and politician, and Mrs. R. W. Ozmun, widow of the late cashier of the Columbia Savings Bank, being the groom and bride.

The wedding took place at the home of Rev. Dr. J. L. Pitner, No. 1501 Harvard Boulevard, who officiated. The bride, who is a striking brunette, was attired in a handsome costume of blue silk, with which was worn a white hat with plumes and a long coat of blue completed the stunning ensemble. The only guests at the wedding were Mrs. Burke, sister of the bride, from Santa Ana, Miss Nellie G. Oliver, sister of Mr. Oliver, and Mrs. Cullen of Santa Ana.

Last evening at 5 o'clock Mr. Oliver and his bride left for San Francisco. They expect to visit Lake Tahoe, Yellowstone Park, the Portland fair and other points of interest during their five weeks' absence.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Oliver are prominent in this city and much interest will be felt in the marriage which comes as a surprise to many. Mrs. Ozmun was the widow of the late Capt. R. W. Ozmun, whose father was a well known resident of California. The son inherited about $150,000 from his father and it is said that this is now increased to $500,000, the bride being placed as a wealthy woman. Her magnificent home at Santa Ana is one of the show places of the town and socially she is well known both in that place where she entertains delightfully and in this city. Mr. Oliver is a member of the Jonathan Club and of the Union League Club and graduated from Ann Arbor College. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver will make their home in this city.

From San Francisco to Los Angeles the trip was made by automobile, stopping at all places of interest along the way. They were accompanied by William Henry Lackman, who is their guest for the present.

Mrs. Browne will be at home to her friends on the first and last Wednesdays of each month.

—o—

Wed at Pastor's Home.

Last evening at 7 o'clock Miss Bertha M. Hill of this city and Charles B. Lawrence of Everett, Wash., were married, the service taking place at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. F. Miller, No. 1019 East Twenty-eighth street. The bride was attired in a stylish traveling suit of brown and white. Immediately after the service the couple left for Everett, where they will make their home.

Noted Lawyer Here.

Edwin Burritt Smith of Chicago has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Lummis for a short time. Mr. Smith is a noted lawyer and has always been active in political reform movements. He was a member of the commission for the promotion of uniform legislation in the United States in 1893, and later was professor of Law in the Northwestern University.

He was chairman of the executive committee of the American Anti-Imperialist League and is well known in the politics of the eastern cities. He is a frequent contributor to the leading magazines. Mr. Smith has been out here for his health which has failed very much of late.

Arrive in London.

Mrs. Emeline Childs and Miss Hortense Childs, who sailed recently for Europe, have arrived in London, where they will be for some time. They also intend visiting other European countries and will not return until the early fall. It is said that Miss Childs is purchasing a beautiful trousseau and that she is to wed at a time not so very far distant a handsome young army surgeon who has recently been stationed at the Presidio.

Miss Childs is a most attractive girl and possessed of a splendid voice, which has won for her much admiration wherever she has gone.

—o—

Daughter of Governor Leaves.

One of the first ladies of the land of Chihuahua has been spending a few weeks in Los Angeles and Long Beach with her children. She is La Señora Adela C. de Cortasar, daughter of the distinguished Governor, Don Enrique Creel of Chihuahua, who is also an eminent financier and banker of Mexico.

La Señora Cortasar is a beautiful and talented woman, and at Chihuahua functions her presence gives eclat and delight, her gracious manner being a pleasure to all who meet her. While here she was very quiet, having come for the health of her little girl, Beatrice. She spent much time at Long Beach and was entertained while here by the Mexican Consul and his wife.

With the Señora Cortasar were her two cousins, both charming girls of the ideal Spanish type with flashing dark eyes and hair that rivals the crows' wings. They were Señoritas Esther and Sarah Ferrajas. These two fascinating señoritas are both popular in the society of their city, and grace many a "baile" or "fiesta." With la señora are her small dimpled daughter and son, Beatrice and Joaquin.

La Señora is here on a pleasant mission, that of purchasing a bridal gown for her cousin, the dainty Señorita Amelia Parra, who is soon to become a bride. Strange to say, Señorita Parra is to wed Antonio Cortasar, brother of Señora Cortasar's husband. It is said this is to be a lovely wedding, and the bridal gown will be all that artists can make it, fashioned of softest satin, chiffon and laces.

Probably Señora Cortasar bought more than $7000 worth of beautiful lingerie while here, and doubtless will wear them well, for she is one of the best-gowned women in Chihuahua.

Two charming visitors from Hermosillo, Sonora, are the Señoras Escalante, sisters of Don Corral, the Vice-President of Mexico. They are here for a short time, and like this land of sunshine very much. They will probably be here several months.

MISS ESTELLE U. WILLIAMSON.

—o—

For Bride-elect.

The Misses Helen and Lillian Kronnick of Spokane, Wash., who are the guests of their aunt, Mrs. B. D. Kronnick of No. 2428 West Pico street entertained on Monday afternoon with a china shower in compliment to Miss Pearl E. Kerns who is to wed Ralph Zader on next Wednesday. The home was decked with ferns and cut flowers and crepe paper formed a dainty canopy over the dining-room, where an elaborate supper was served.

Family Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Hazard of No. 2826 South Hope street gave a family dinner Monday evening in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mr. Hazard. Plates were laid for: Mr. and Mrs. George Hazard, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Earl of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gilman Folsom, Mrs. Susan Hill and Misses Louise and Evelyn Hazard. The table contained a pleasing arrangement of pink oleander and greenery.

Consul's Wife Here.

Mrs. Louis Hostetter and daughter, Miss Hazel Hostetter, recently of Omaha, Neb., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Metzler of No. 677 Carondelet street. Miss Hostetter will remain in Los Angeles to attend school, while Mrs. Hostetter will spend a month in the city, after which she will proceed to Hermosillo, where she will join her husband, who has been recently appointed United States Consul at that point.

Mr. and Mrs. Metzler have recently moved to No. 677 Carondelet street, from No. 2314 Downey avenue.

Talented Girls Return.

The Misses Lillian and Estella Williamson have returned from six months spent in Boston, and are with their mother, visiting their sister, Mrs. Edwin R. Bradley of No. 1118 Georgia street.

The Misses Williamson's trip has been one of study as well as pleasure, and during the stay in Boston Miss Lillian, who is possessed of an unusually fine soprano voice, put in her time at the New England Conservatory of Music, taking lessons in voice culture. Miss Stella studied piano and harmony and thorough bass. Society will welcome these two charming factors back to the ranks of its musical contingent.

The return trip of these two young women was a particularly enjoyable one, by the Great Lakes and stopping at the Portland Fair and San Francisco and other northern points of interest.

MISS LILLIAN A. WILLIAMSON.

—o—

About forty guests were entertained and music and games made up the programme of the early part of the afternoon after which refreshments were served beneath a large canopy on the grounds.

—o—

Hutton of No. 1215 South Main street entertained on Monday evening with an informal dinner in honor of the Misses Susan and Ruth Waterman of Oakland, who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. OCEAN PARK AND VENICE

AS LIVING PLACES BOTH OCEAN PARK AND VENICE ARE POSITIVELY IDEAL; AS SUBJECTS FOR SOUND AND PROFITABLE INVESTMENT OCEAN PARK AND VENICE LOTS HAVE NO EQUAL IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

The Development of Venice Has Only Begun

ACCORDING to recent statements of Abbot Kinney, the founder of Venice—California's "seaside fairyland"—the development of this great resort has only commenced. Greater things (if such could be possible) are being planned for Venice. When completed they will not cause it to be an earthly Utopia—but will render it as nearly perfect a living place as could be effected on this mundane sphere. Venice is now attracting the attention of tens of thousands of people—tourists, artists, capitalists, investors, etc. Lots are extremely limited. The shrewd people who are buying Venice lots today are laying solid foundations for substantial fortunes.

Ocean Park—A Beach City of Today. Its Progress

OCEAN PARK is truly "a city of today." It is peopled with a progressive, cultured element. It is the one ideal spot for the beach homes of Los Angeles business men. Its progress during the past year, although devoid of even a suggestion of a boom, borders closely upon the phenomenal. The backbone of the activity has been the vast expenditures for improvements and the steady increase in population. Ocean Park property at the moderate figures quoted today is a substantial investment. Every individual who has invested in Ocean Park HAS GAINED through his investment.

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE.

"Bring in the water, by all means," said H. W. Hellman, "but let there be a loophole through which the money of the people may be squandered or misapplied. In other words, see that there is no graft.

"It is a very good thing to be sure of having this great supply of water, but it would be a very bad thing for all concerned if the public were to be called upon to furnish a means for unprincipled persons to profit by theft.

"I say this simply as a warning for the future, for the time when vast sums will be expended.

"These negotiations have been going on for two or three years; much property has been acquired, some of it from the government. It occurs to me that the city might have got some of this property direct from the government, without the intervention of middlemen, but this surmise may be wrong.

"At any rate, let us proceed carefully in the work, to which end I would suggest that a committee of some of the largest property holders in the city be selected to act as a committee throughout the negotiations.

"Let twenty or twenty-five men be selected whose judgment will carry great weight with the public; let them inquire fully into every detail of the proposition; have them verify the estimates that have been made as to the cost, and with their report the people will be able to act intelligently.

"This is far too important a project to permit of any but the most careful action. No matter how great our faith may be in the members of the water board and in the engineers who have worked with them, we must know fully and what obligation we are assuming before we take the final step.

"The bringing of the water here will be a grand thing. I and some of my generation may not be here to enjoy the full benefits, but some such plan as this must be followed if the city is to continue to grow."

APPLY BUSINESS RULES.

"Let us have the Owens River water, by all means," said O. T. Johnson, member of the Police Commission and owner of valuable business property, "but bring it in on a business basis. We need the additional supply; it must be had for the city's future welfare. No reasonable objection can be raised to the plan outlined for getting it here.

"It is well, however, to guard well every expenditure of money in prosecuting the work and to see that every dollar goes into the work in hand. There should be no misuse of the funds and there will not be if proper precautions be taken. Let there be no opportunity for scandal.

"In the first place, there should be a carefully prepared estimate of the cost of the work. We want to know exactly what it is to cost. There should be no guesswork about it. If the present figures are approximately correct, well and good; if not, we should know the correct figures.

"The suggestion is a good one to have a joint commission of the persons most interested—the heaviest taxpayers—and to have them act in an advisory capacity with the Water Board.

"The people will look with all the favor on a bond issue if they know exactly what they are voting for.

"Certainly the plan as outlined is a magnificent one, with wonderful promise for the future. We must have the water and must have it soon. My only contention is that we should know at the outset what the cost is to be and that we should get just what we pay for."

WILL PAY FOR ITSELF.

I. N. Van Nuys, whose holdings in Los Angeles city and county are large, and whose name has been linked with the development of the country, is highly in favor of the plan.

"We must have this additional water if the city is to continue its growth," he said. "There should be no hesitation in proceeding with the project as soon as the details can be worked out to the satisfaction of the people.

"This wonderful body of water will be worth what it costs and in the years to come will pay for itself over and over provided the management of the enterprise is in competent hands—and there is no reason to believe that any but competent hands will have hold of it."

ESTIMATES FAIR.

J. M. Elliott, president of the First National Bank, and member of the present Water Board, is satisfied that the estimates as prepared will stand the closest scrutiny. He has spent much time in studying the matter, as business man and as water commissioner, and has been over the entire ground with the engineers. As a result of his long and practical experience, he would set at rest any fears that the project as outlined can be improved upon.

"We have had the advice of most excellent engineers," said Mr. Elliott; "Mr. Mulholland has been over the ground many times and knows every foot of it thoroughly, so that he is in a position to estimate carefully the cost. In every way I am satisfied that careful inquiry will show that the plan and the figures outlined are correct.

"I do not agree with some of those who are more optimistic that the project will pay for itself. It is true that enough power probably will be developed from Cottonwood Creek to bore the tunnels without cost for energy. A 7000-foot drop in six miles certainly will furnish an abundance of power that can be put to profitable use and there will be other sources of power.

"But some of the expense of the operation will have to be met by the taxpayers, although there is assurance that this amount will be comparatively small."

"We certainly need the water," said George Mason, who, like Mr. Johnson, is a member of the Police Commission and the owner of large holdings.

"We need the power that will be developed in the event that this project be pushed forward, but we must not become too enthusiastic until we have made a thorough study of the situation.

"We should know if the plans can be carried out for the amount named—$23,000,000. My individual opinion is that the work will cost much more than this. We certainly should not bite off more than we can chew, but there will be no danger of this if the matter be considered carefully.

"What is more, we are in the position of the United States with respect to the Panama Canal project—we need the man to do the work. It may be that we have the man. If we have, we are fortunate. It will be a big undertaking and will call for the best engineering and business skill.

"The necessity of obtaining more water at once and the good that water will do are matters so well understood that no argument is needed. The only question is one of means. It remains to be seen if we can carry out the plans proposed in a way that will be advantageous to the people."

GET EXPERT ADVICE.

J. C. Drake, president of the Los Angeles Trust Company, and former member of the Los Angeles Water Board, thinks the people will look with more favor on a large bond issue if they can be assured that the total expenditure can be kept within a certain specified sum.

"It is a grand thing to have this immense quantity of water within our grasp," said Mr. Drake. "It is what we have been dreaming of for years. No one can estimate the value that this acquisition will be to the city and to the surrounding country.

"But we must have the estimates of the best experts as to the probable cost before we submit the matter of a bond issue to the people. We must learn to a certainty whether it is going to cost $20,000,000 or $40,000,000 to bring the Owens River to Los Angeles.

"It is not so much a matter of the size of the amount as it is one of accuracy in estimates. It would be a pretty serious matter to start the work on the assumption that it is to cost $20,000,000 and then to find it would cost twice that amount, but if it were known at the outset that the total would be $40,000,000 it would be all right, as the people would have voted intelligently on the matter and would have been satisfied at the start that they were to get their money's worth."

ENGINEER OLMSTED.

Frank H. Olmsted, consulting engineer, and former City Engineer, speaks not only as a man of long technical training and wide experience and as one who has been intimately associated with the engineers who have done the preliminary work on the monster project. He is enthusiastic over the plan.

"The proposition of bringing Owens River water to Los Angeles is a splendidly conceived plan," said Mr. Olmsted. "We need water and we need a lot of it, so that never again in all the future will investors hesitate to purchase on account of our lack of abundant water supply, even for one of the world's great cities.

"Mulholland, Eaton and Lippincott are all right. Neither ever made a bad engineering mistake that I know of, and together the three have not made one here.

"I know Owens River from one end to the other. For Mr. Kerckhoff and his associates, I spent one season in the high Sierras on the headwaters of Owens River, and I know that the only reason we should be satisfied with anything short of Owens River as a water supply would be because we found it impracticable to accomplish this project.

"For our children's sake, let us do this thing."

BENEFITS TO COME.

"Of all the propositions," said Ralph Rogers, president of the Pacific Savings Bank, "to make Los Angeles the largest, finest and best city in the world, there is nothing that has been or ever will be worth one-thousandth part as much to the future prosperity of the city, as the acquiring of the Owens River. Like the discovery of the use of electricity, there will be so many things developed, of a profitable nature, in connection with this purchase that the future benefits are beyond comprehension.

"First of all, there is the water necessary for all the future growth of city, even when we incorporate the entire county. This water can be taken high enough up to allow of a number of falls to create eight or ten power plants, sufficient to develop power for electricity for running all electric cars and lighting Los Angeles city. Now if this can be kept as clear of graft, as the acquiring of the river, the residents can have water and lights almost free.

"If William Mulholland can be kept at the head of affairs we need have no fear of graft. The good men who consummated the deal deserve the commendation and heartiest support of the entire population of Greater Los Angeles. A vote taken today would be almost unanimous. We need have no fear for the future prosperity of our city."

If 30,000 inches of water can be brought into Los Angeles for $23,000,000, it will be cheap at the price," said Col. John R. Newberry.

"If the water should cost $50,000,000 it would be worth it.

"This immense amount of water means much to Los Angeles, city and county, and it surely should be acquired if such a thing be possible within reasonable limits."

NECK BROKEN IN FLY WHEEL.

Martin Lund, in Starting Gasoline Engine, Slips on Cement Floor and is Whirled Around and Tossed to Death by Machinery—His Young Brother a Witness.

Martin Lund, 17 years old, who lived with his parents on Mesquite street, was instantly killed in a peculiar manner early yesterday morning at the sheet metal shop of the Penny and Boyle Company, No. 2025 Palmetto street.

The youth, who had been employed at the shop for two years, went to the place with a number of fellow-workmen shortly before 7 o'clock and, as was his custom, prepared to start the gasoline engine.

This operation involved the setting in motion of a fly wheel about four feet in diameter, after the "sparker" had ignited.

Seizing the wheel, Lund gave it a whirl and it was moving around at a rapid rate, when the youth slipped on the wet cement floor of the engine room and, in falling forward, his head passed between two spokes of the swiftly-revolving wheel.

In an instant and in the horrified gaze of his companions, Lund was carried partly around the arc of the wheel and a moment afterward his dead body was tossed to the floor, landing at the feet of the other operatives. The young man's neck was broken.

Physicians who were summoned said that death had been instantaneous. The body was removed to the home of Lund's parents.

One of the sad features of the case was that a younger brother of Lund had accompanied him to the shop and was one of the witnesses of the accident.

The tragedy so unnerved the workmen that the shop was shut down for the day.

MARVELOUS NEEDLEWORK.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

PORTLAND (Or.) July 28.—One of the marvels of the exposition is a copy of Raphael's great picture, the Sistine Madonna, done altogether in needlework. This remarkable picture hangs in a little room in the northwest corner of the Foreign Exhibits Building. Viewing it at a distance no one is prepared to say that the work is not painting; in fact, the statement that it is needlework is often disputed until the witness has approached and felt the texture for himself.

The work is by Fraulein Clara Ripberger of Dresden, Germany, and occupied seven years. Marvelous above all else, she executed it from memory, having studied the painting before she began, and yet she has preserved all of its wonderful qualities, even to the shading of the finger nails. People scoffed when it was announced that a German girl had done the Sistine Madonna in needlework, but when artists came to look they were amazed. The spell of the original was there—the magnificent coloring, the expressions of the faces, the plasticity of the draperies and the haze of the cherubic glory. Not a brushful of paint had touched the picture. Filoselli silk of various colors, laid on in stitches of various lengths, had wrought the marvel.

A close inspection discovers an ingenuity of stitches unlike anything ever before exhibited in the way of embroidery. They are long and answer to the contour of each individual part. For instance, in the arm near the shoulder of the child Christ, the stitches curve to the beautifully rounded flesh. In the same way in the folds of the draperies the line of stitches follows the curves.

War Will Not go.

As France initiates the movement for the drum's retiracy the responsibility rests with it to see that the instrument is not rudely hurled to the rear to the sound of its own expelling and derogating music. On the contrary, if it is to be laid on the shelf for good and all it should be with deliberation and high ceremony such as befit the splendors and range of its history. Probably it will continue to be beaten in functions of peace for a long time after it ceases to be an accompaniment of warfare, but the latter will constitute the most momentous incident in its annals. The passing of the drum is almost as interesting as the passing of the sword. Both would be of higher solemnity if war herself stepped down and out with them, but of that no signs appear on any of the world's horizon. The goddess changes her costume and properties easily enough, but not her character and habits. These are about the same as they were when she first embarked in business, with only the peace societies to hope for a change in them.—[New York Times.

THE TREATMENT AND CURE OF RUPTURE

CAN EASILY BE CURED

If the best rupture appliance is worn, no matter how long standing. No cutting, no pain, no detention from business. In this appliance the principle hereto so greatly desired has been achieved, that of firmly and constantly holding the rupture with a gentle, hand-like pressure, doing away with that fear and dread that something will go wrong that usually attends the wearing of trusses. Its lightness is featherweight in comparison with trusses. It is so light the wearer scarcely knows he has anything on—fits like a glove and as easy as an old shoe. This is a great comfort, enabling the wearer to forget his ailment. Can be worn while bathing. Always clean and odorless. Nothing is more disgusting than a dirty, filthy and foul-smelling truss. The odor is something to be remembered. Rupture is a very dangerous condition, because strangulation is liable at any time, and if not relieved by a SURGICAL OPERATION, causes death, usually within a day or two. Rupture is easier to cure when it first appears than if neglected for a time. Children and young people are easily cured. Cures guaranteed in selected cases. All purchasers during the month of August will be given a very large discount. Why? Because we wish to rapidly introduce these valuable appliances. Pleased patrons and cured patients are the best advertising mediums. You are invited to call if interested. Electro-mechanical appliances for deformities to order.

If you cannot call at the office in August, write at once and register to secure discount.

REDLANDS MAN IS ROBBED.

MONEY TAKEN FROM HIM IN SAN BERNARDINO.

Recent Inmate of County Jail is Taken Into Custody Accused of Being One of the Highwaymen—Los Angeles Woman Wants No Marriage License Issued to Her Son.

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 1.—Oswald Taylor of Redlands was waylaid and robbed here at a late hour last night, Chauncey McFarlane, was arrested on suspicion. Taylor had been drinking heavily, and seated himself on a curb to await a car. While thus engaged two men came along, one taking a seat on each side of him, and proceeded to rifle his pockets, securing $22.

He knew McFarlane, and informed the police soon afterward, who arrested McFarlane in a tenderloin house conducted by Emma Patterson. McFarlane had just been released from the County Jail, where he was committed several months ago for robbing J. W. Rector. His mother, Josie McFarlane, has for many years been proprietor of local sporting houses.

SAN BERNARDINO BRIEFS.

Mrs. Katherine H. Van Valser, of Los Angeles, has written to the County Clerk here, not to issue a license to her son Irving Van Valser, aged 18, and Mona Evangaline Fulcher, age 20.

Sheriff Ralphs is at Hesperia personally investigating the shooting of Ramon Gegelas by Victor Melendes there Sunday. He has wired from Hesperia to arrest Melendes on sight, which indicates that his investigation has not satisfied him that shooting was purely accidental.

Louis Bellamy, who shot a Chinaman here yesterday, was arraigned this afternoon. His preliminary was set for Wednesday of next week. Bellamy is a half-breed. His father is supposed to have been a prominent pioneer of this valley, who secured senatorial honors, and spent thousands educating Bellamy, who, though, now but a wild-looking Indian, is finely educated.

The Board of Supervisors has issued a notice to the City Council to vacate the basement of the County Courthouse within ninety days. The city has for years used the basement as a jail, though grand juries have demanded that the practice be abandoned and county officials have continually complained of the unspeakable odors which float up from the basement. The order will probably result in a bond issue for the building of a City Jail and City Hall.

A cigar stump carelessly left in a bedroom of the W. R. McNeil home on Mt. Vernon avenue almost caused a serious fire there yesterday. George Hoskyns, a neighbor, noticed the smoke curling up from a lounge in the bedroom and gave the alarm.

Emma Henderson was arrested by Policemen Hurley and Henderson at 2 o'clock this morning charged with selling liquor without a license at her sporting house in the tenderloin district. She put up $50 for her appearance before the Recorder. This is the fourth arrest within a week for a similar offense, and now $200 has been added to the city treasury as a result.

William Bessant fell backward twenty feet from a window yesterday afternoon, fracturing a leg. He was visiting a friend, when an unexpected arrival of another friend caused Bessant to lose his balance. He was taken to the County Hospital.

RIVERSIDE.

GASOLINE NEAR FIRE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A fifty-foot lot alone separated a burning building from a warehouse in which 1000 gallons of gasoline were stored tonight. The house was a small cottage owned by A. Simpson and occupied by R. D. Lamar's family, colored. It was a mass of flames before the fire department arrived, and the absence of the regular fireman prevented the fire engine getting down until too late. The wind blew strongly toward the warehouse and the live embers several times fell on the roof. Fortunately, this was of corrugated iron and no further damage resulted. The damage to the cottage was about $600, with no insurance.

DEATH'S SUDDEN CALL.

G. W. Maddock, an old-time resident of Riverside, died suddenly at Casa Blanca last night. He went there with his team late in the afternoon and started to load his wagon with railroad ties. The exertion brought on an attack of heart failure and he expired before aid could be summoned. The officers were not notified until midnight, the report at that time being that the old man had been killed in a fight. The body was found lying across the track of the Santa Fé "Y" and his team was close by. Maddock was sixty-two years old and leaves a widow.

The verdict of a coroner's jury today was that death resulted from an unknown cause.

The Bradfords, before coming to Hemet five years ago, were residents of Riverside. They managed the Bordwell hotel there for a time and later a café. Before their marriage both were employed in the Glenwood hotel.

HUNTINGTON BEACH.

SEASIDE TOWN JOTTINGS.

The DeNubila Orchestra played for the dance.

SUNDAY FRACAS STIRS TALBERT.

ORANGE COUNTY CHURCH AND POOLROOM IN CLASH.

Five Arrests Madwo and One of Accused Turns Tables on Another by Raking up Old Charge of Booze Selling—Game Law Said to be Unaffected by Court Decision.

SANTA ANA, Aug. 1.—War is rife in the erstwhile peaceful hamlet of Talbert and its citizens are besieging the office of the District-Attorney here in their zeal to swear out warrants against one another.

The trouble began Sunday evening over a howling fracas in Alec Foltz's poolroom. According to the allegations of the complainants, a group of men in possession of the hall Sunday night made such a disturbance that the services in the church across the street were interrupted. Eugene Griset was dispatched from the church to the poolroom to ask the men to restrain their hilarity, but they met him with a show of violence and he was forced to retreat to the church. Subsequently services were dismissed on account of the noise.

Griset laid his case before the Sheriff's office here and had warrants served today for the arrest of Alec Foltz on a charge of maintaining a disorderly house, and against Frank Cox, Sam Coker, A. P. Sproul and Frank Page for disturbing the peace. The latter four men are the only ones he recognized in his precipitate flight from the poolroom Sunday evening. Foltz was arrested only a few months ago and fined $150 for selling intoxicants at his place of business in violation of the county ordinance.

The alleged disturbers of the place will have their trial before a jury here on Thursday and Foltz will appear on Friday. Practically the whole population of the town will be summoned to testify.

Late this afternoon Frank Cox, one of the men arrested for disturbing the peace, applied to the District-Attorney for a warrant against Sam Talbert for selling booze last September. Cox is evidently imbued with the idea that Talbert was instrumental in causing his arrest and is retaliating with the charges of selling intoxicants. Dist.-Atty. Head refused to issue a complaint until the case against Talbert is further investigated.

GAME LAW UNAFFECTED.

Dist.-Atty. Head has issued notice for the benefit of local nimrods that the recent game-law decision of the Appellate Court in Los Angeles county does not affect the Orange county to 25 and the open season for doves, his interpretation, militated only against the dove-law, which, by making an open season of only one day, was a prohibition instead of a limitation upon the hunting of doves. The Orange county laws, as formulated by the Supervisors this year, make the open season for deer from August 10 to 25 and the open season for dove, quail, ducks, etc., from October 15 to February 15.

SAYS HE SOLD BEER.

Ed. G. Ruehl, porter at the Hotel Rossmore, was arrested last night on complaint of George R. Smith of this place, charged with the sale of lager beer in violation of the city prohibition ordinance. Ruehl's offense is alleged to have been committed on July 24, when he is said to have dispensed several bottles of the cheering liquid to a thirsty soul. He will be arraigned tomorrow. Ruehl's arrest is the first to be made for a violation of the anti-booze regulations since the agitation at the time of the last wet and dry election in April.

LEADING GERMAN DIES.

Henry Hockemeyer of East Santa Clara avenue, a large property owner and one of the most influential Germans in this section of the county, died suddenly last night from an attack of apoplexy. Mr. Hockemeyer was a man of unusually robust physique and was stricken with the fatal malady only a few hours before his death. The funeral will be held Thursday at 10 o'clock from the German Lutheran Church at Orange and interment will be in the Santa Ana Cemetery. Mr. Hockemeyer was formerly superintendent of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company. He was aged 53 years, and leaves a widow and two children.

SANTA ANA WISPS.

Old Age Can be Cured.

The disagreeable stiffness and constantly growing feebleness of most old people is due not to the weight of years but to poor assimilation and elimination. The nutritive organs can be greatly improved and strengthened by a sensible system of physical culture, such as I teach, which includes a careful attention to all one's daily habits. Better than drugs and not so costly. Ralph Elliot Field, 219 South Grand ave. Home phone 2208.

TO SPEND HER LIFE IN CHINA.

LOS ANGELES WOMAN SOON TO SAIL FOR ORIENT.

Born There of Missionary Parents She Will Carry on the Work Which They Began—Wears the Victoria Cross Awarded for Valiant Services During Siege of Legations.

There was an interesting gathering at the Pico Heights Congregational Church yesterday afternoon when a large company of personal friends assembled to bid farewell to Miss Abbie Chapin, who sails for China August 16 with the avowed intention of spending the rest of her life in her old missionary field at Tung Cho, where she was born and where she has labored for twelve years. She is a daughter of the late Mrs. L. D. Chapin, who died a few months ago at the family home in this city and who, with her husband, was a missionary in China for many years, and their six children were born there. Miss Chapin will be accompanied by her sister, Miss May Chapin, who is widely known here, and the two sisters will be joined later by their brother, Dwight Chapin, who graduated from the theological department of Princeton University last June.

MISS ABBIE CHAPIN.

Miss Chapin addressed the gathering yesterday and said that the hope of China is in its own trained native workers.

"The chapels of China," she said, "are crowded with heathen who are inquiring the way and in the schools and medical colleges the cry is for western learning. The educated young women from the girls' schools go out and establish Christian homes, which is one of the crying needs of China."

At the close of the formal part of the meeting, the guests adjourned to the adjoining parsonage, where a reception was held.

Miss Chapin wears a gold medal in the shape of the Woman's Victorian cross, which was bestowed upon her by King Edward VII for services rendered to the soldiers in the International Hospital during the siege of the legations in Peking. Florence Nightingale was the first woman to receive this cross at the close of the Crimean War and Miss Chapin is the first American woman to receive the honor. The missionary and aid societies of the church have been for several weeks preparing articles for Miss Chapin to use in her work—more than forty garments for children, made in Chinese style—and the Sunday-school children of the church are sending quantities of pictures and lead pencils, which are greatly prized by the oriental little folks. A formal farewell service to this trio of missionary workers who go out from a Los Angeles family will take place next Sunday evening at the Pico Heights Congregational Church, when Miss Chapin and her brother, Rev. Dwight Chapin, will speak. There will be singing by members of the Chinese mission and the superintendent, Mrs. E. M. Findlay, will also speak.

The Ailments of Men Are My Specialty

Many a man's life has been ruined through neglect or mistreatment of his disease. While many regular physicians have neither the knowledge nor experience necessary in treating men, many specialists are also incapable from lack of proper training and resources.

It is not my purpose to cast discredit on any physician, but it is the duty of every legitimate physician to guard the public against the fatal error of intrusting their life and health to irresponsible hands.

I have made an exclusive practice of curing Men Only for the past seventeen years. My patients number into the thousands, living in every part of the West. I have the most perfectly equipped offices, laboratories and sanitarium that skill and long experience could devise. D. D. D. Prescription

Eczema, Salt Rheum, Barbers' Itch, Erysipelas—all eruptions, scaly diseases and parasitic affections of the skin positively cleared away in a hurry. A clean, pleasant liquid (non-greasy) externally applied—sponged or sopped over the parts. Instantly stops all irritation. Soon clears out absolutely all affected conditions.

We vouch for these facts.

They have been proven to us beyond the possibility of doubt.

Some time ago the astonishing record of this prescription—proven to us by indisputable evidence—induced us to give it our unqualified recommendation to the public. Since then D. D. D. has cured so many who obtained it from us that its record with us has been fully equal to its previous history. We have not seen a single instance of disappointment. It seems to do the work every time. In nine cases out of ten, manifestations on the skin are skin diseases—not blood diseases. Many purchasers formerly miserable, thinking they had a bad blood disease, have found it was merely a skin affection and have cleared it all away with this prescription.

Among all the known reliable specific medical influences for different ailments we know of very few discoveries so certain in effect as this D. D. D. prescription in its quick conquest of skin diseases of all kinds.

A FEW CURES OF WELL-KNOWN PARTIES.

Cairo, Ill., Oct. 5, '03.
For over 25 years I was afflicted with pernicious eczema of the hands. The skin would become dry and scaly, then break open, bleed, and fill with very painful; it was with difficulty I could write a letter. For years I tried everything suggested to me, spent hundreds of dollars for cures and medicines without receiving any benefit. Finally Sherman & Mc Connell recommended that I try D. D. D. Prescription. Said if it would not cure me they would refund the money. I tried it. The first application gave me relief, after using 3 or 4 bottles my hands were entirely cured.

It was several days before I noticed any change, but after using a bottle and a half I could sleep rapidly, but the D. D. D. has knocked it all out. Thanks to you and my old friend.

If we were to assemble all those who have been cured of heart disease by Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and who would to-day be in their graves had not Dr. Miles' been successful in perfecting this wonderful heart specific, they would populate a large city.

What a remarkable record—a breathing, thinking, moving monument, composed of human lives,—that for which every other earthly possession is sacrificed.

"I feel indebted to the Dr. Miles' Heart Cure for my life. I desire to call the attention of others suffering as I did to this remarkable remedy for the heart. For a long time I had suffered from shortness of breath after any little exertion, palpitation of the heart and at times terrible pain in the region of the heart, so serious that I feared that I would some time drop dead upon the street. One day I read one of your circulars, and immediately went to my druggist and purchased two bottles of the Heart Cure, and took it according to directions, with the result that I am entirely cured. Since then I never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy to my friends who have heart trouble; in fact I am a traveling advertisement, for I am widely known in this locality."

CHARITY'S HAND IN PITY IS LAID.

PASADENANS AID STRICKEN FAMILY TO ITS HOME.

Protest Against Practice of Sending Hopeless Invalids, Penniless, from East—Impressive Services Mark Dedication of Masonic Temple—Hospital Addition Plans.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 36 South Raymond avenue, Aug. 1.—A pathetic example of extreme destitution combined with a hopeless case of tuberculosis had its Pasadena chapter closed last evening when the Santa Fé Overland bore away H. D. Hoots, his young wife and their four children, bound for his old home in Winston, N. C., where the final sorrowful chapter will be written in another few months. Hoots, though only 27 years of age, is on a sickbed from which the doctors say he never will rise, and the eldest of his children is but four years. Six months ago the family dropped off an incoming train, penniless, and they have been cared for through the Emergency League and kindred charitable people ever since.

For awhile Hoots rallied, and it was thought he would in a few months become strong enough to work, but all the time the family occupied a little cottage, secured through the kindness of neighbors and an open-hearted realty agent, they have been completely upon the charity of those around them.

One of the material benefits accruing from the recent lawn fete given by the Emergency League was the assistance rendered this family yesterday, and through the aid of the Associated Charities of Los Angeles the local organization was enabled to secure a special rate ticket for the stricken family, besides a substantial cash donation.

Much similar work has been done by the league in a quiet way and as an indication of the sincerity with which these people work, more than a dozen persons were at the Santa Fé station last night to see that the little party did not want for anything on its long journey ahead.

"There is one thing which this case clearly brings out," said a member of the league last evening. "That is, that they should not send such people out here. This man came here absolutely penniless, with a large family, and hopelessly ill. It is injustice of the worst sort knowingly to send a family like that three thousand miles into a strange land and dump them upon the sympathy of the public. And this is only an instance; it is happening right along. The charity societies are not for the purpose of permanently supporting anyone, but only to act in temporary cases of dire need. It is an affront to the generosity of California to send such cases here."

MASONS DEDICATE.

With impressive ritual, the several Masonic bodies of Pasadena dedicated their handsome new temple yesterday. In the absence of Grand Master Hunter, Deputy Grand Master Motley Flint of Los Angeles acted in the capacity of master of ceremonies, and was assisted by Senior Grand Warden Ernest H. May, Deputy Grand Master James P. Greeley of Whittier, Junior Grand Warden James Edmondson, Rev. Henry Sherry, Worthy Master of Pasadena Lodge, as Chaplain; Judge C. J. Willett, Grand Orator; Grand Marshal Maj. Henry Ramel; Grand Lecturer Rev. Isaac Jewell, Grand Secretary Wallace K. Gaylord and Grand Treasurer S. M. Munson.

The exercises were held in the beautiful Blue Lodge room and began at 9 o'clock with a brief address by former Mayor William H. Vedder, who gave place to Acting Grand Master Flint. Following the ritualistic ceremonies, the address of the day was delivered by Judge C. J. Willett, Chancellor of Temple Preceptory." Last evening the exercises were concluded with a public reception under the auspices of the ladies of the Eastern Star.

The history of the Pasadena lodge of Masons has been coincident with the growth and progress of the Crown City for the past dozen years. But few of the original petitioners for the dispensation from the Grand Lodge necessary to found the local order are living at the present day—W. T. Clapp, W. H. Wakeley, James Clarke and Dr. C. M. Skillen. The combined Pasadena lodges show a very large membership, and the local bodies are among the most flourishing of any in Southern California.

NO GROUND FOR ALARM.

Publication of a report that the Pasadena Hospital Association is contemplating the erection of a contagious ward as an adjunct to its hospital buildings on Congress street and the consequent alarm of residents in the neighborhood are entirely without foundation, according to Judge Henry H. Monroth, secretary of the hospital association. The rumor was apparently based upon the recent action of the hospital directors in securing several options on property in the vicinity on which it was supposed the new contagious ward would be erected.

"The people are a little premature if they are moving away for any such cause," said Judge Klamroth last night. "A year ago the city was going to put up a contagious ward and a want naturally arose, but the building that is now being projected is to be a medical ward exclusively, for the housing of such cases as typhoid, pneumonia, etc., and can in no sense be called a contagious ward. It is being erected by a citizen of Pasadena in memory of his deceased wife, and there could be no thought on his part of causing any alarm."

While Judge Klamroth refused to state who this gentleman is, it is learned on excellent authority that he is O. S. A. Sprague, of Terrace Drive, and from the fact that no cost has been stipulated it is inferred that the new structure will be a model one, and a decided addition to the growing institution. The only provision before the directors is that they furnish a site, hence the recently-acquired options.

NEWS BOILED DOWN.

Word has been received announcing the death of Mrs. Victoria Brown, the wife of Edward E. Brown, formerly of Pasadena, now living in Templeton, San Luis Obispo county. The deceased is survived by her husband and two children. Mr. Brown is the eldest son of Mrs. N. E. Brown.

One of the cars of a gravel train on the Santa Fé jumped the track in this city near the intersection of Holly street yesterday morning and delayed traffic for several hours, being finally replaced on the rails without the aid of a wrecking car.

Mrs. Theodore Coleman and Miss Alice Coleman departed yesterday for San Francisco and the big tree country.

City Auditor Kernaghan has issued a lengthy communication to the Council estimating the approximate amount of money needed to run the city's business during the next fiscal year. He mildly criticises the previous administration with what he terms "municipal financiering turned loose," and suggests the calling of a special election for the purpose of increasing the tax levy. Such an increase of taxes already is meeting with opposition.

August 24 has been decided upon as the date, and Venice the place, for holding the big annual Pasadena Day picnic, members of the Board of Trade and Merchants' Association joint committees having come to this decision yesterday. Special trains will be run over the Southern Pacific and it is expected that upwards of a thousand persons will be in attendance.

The question of the supremacy of their rival sewing machines led P. M. Curtis and C. B. Cornwell, agents for different companies, to blows yesterday morning. As an outcome Cornwell is under arrest, charged by Curtis with assault, and will have a hearing before Justice Congdon this morning. The men were separated before serious damage resulted.

SAN DIMAS.

ORANGE TREES LIVE AFAR.

SAN DIMAS, Aug. 1.—R. M. Teague of the San Dimas Nurseries received a letter from South Africa today concerning the shipment of orange trees sent there. On January 26 last Teague shipped 41,000 orange trees to Pietermaritzburg, South Africa. This was a record breaker of an order. It was the largest shipment of citrus trees ever exported from this or any other country. Teague was proud of the order and special attention was paid to the packing and ventilation.

They were shipped from San Francisco via Sydney, New South Wales, at which latter port there was some delay in making connection with the boat for South Africa, but the trees finally reached their destination on the 6th of May, just 100 days after they left San Dimas.

The letter Teague received from the consignees today was written after all the trees had been unpacked and planted. The owners state that not only were all the trees in good, healthy condition, but not one tree was dead—while in another shipment of 12,000 trees they received by the same steamer from another section of California, the bulk of the trees had rotted through imperfect packing and lack of ventilation.

ASKS LEASE BY WHARF SITE.

HUNTINGTON APPLIES TO SAN PEDRO CITY TRUSTEES.

Lands are to be Used for Warehouses, Machine Shops, Car Barns and Depots—Privileges of Grant are to Run for Fifty Years—Announcement of What It Means

SAN PEDRO, August 1.—Henry E. Huntington, for the San Pedro Railroad, Terminal and Wharf Company, made application tonight before the board of Trustees of this city for a lease to certain space at the foot of San Pedro street on the outer harbor adjacent to the property embraced by the wharf franchise now held by the Pacific Electric Company from San Pedro and Los Angeles county.

The territory for which the lease is asked is thirteen acres of ocean lying westward from the inner harbor entrance and close to the shore line. It is proposed to start work within six months and complete it within five years and to spend $500,000 on the improvement of that piece by filling and reclaiming the land.

These lands are to be used by the company for warehouses, machine shops, car barns and depots and the life of the lease is to be fifty years.

When the matter was presented to the board tonight, there was a large attendance of spectators. Speeches in favor of the lease were made by Frank Burns, president of the Chamber of Commerce John T. Gaffey, Attorney Ben Goodrich and Dr. W. A. Weldon. Trustee George H. Peck moved to defer action for a week, but that motion did not prevail. It was decided to have the question lay over till tomorrow (Wednesday) night, when the board will take it up at a special session.

It is announced that this means that a million and a half dollars will soon be spent in building a commercial wharf or mole into the outer harbor and the erection of many buildings at the foot of San Pedro street for the proper handling of the freight and passenger business, both domestic and foreign, that will flow over this wharf.

On February 9, 1903 the Board of Supervisors of the County of Los Angeles granted to H. E. Huntington a franchise 1000 feet wide and 1200 feet in length in the outer harbor. On February 17 of the same year the Board of Trustees of this city granted Huntington a franchise over San Pedro street and from the foot of San Pedro street into the outer harbor to the city limits, a distance of 1700 feet to connect with the franchise granted by the Board of Supervisors. Thus the link was completed, and now the necessary terminal facilities are requested.

VAN VLIET-WILEY NUPTIALS.

COVINA, Aug. 1.—A rare garden scene formed the setting for the nuptials of Miss Brilla Wiley and George W. Van Vliet, both of Covina, which took place this evening on the lawn at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Arthur Crabb, of No. 453 Center street, Pomona. A slightly raised dias had been erected for the bridal party. A lattice frame work of green entirely covered it, representing a garden arbor, and over this ivy vines were intertwined. There were about 100 invited guests. Miss Elizabeth Lee, a schoolmate of the bride played the wedding marches. The bride, leaning on the arm of her brother-in-law, Arthur Crabb, was preceded by a little flower girl, Violet Tucker, and the ring bearer, Elmer Crabb. Rev. W. D. Crabb, performed the ceremony. The bride's gown was of silk batiste. Soon after the ceremony the bride and groom left in an auto for Monrovia, where they took the car to Los Angeles. Tomorrow they will leave for Santa Barbara, where they will spend the honeymoon and upon their return they will go to their new home on Cottage Drive. The groom has been constable of Rowland township for three years.

BACK FROM HONOLULU.

CLAREMNT, Aug. 1.—Frank A. Richmond, Stanford, '03, has returned from Honolulu to visit for a few weeks with his parents here. Mr. Richmond has been for two years teacher of science in the Honolulu High School. He will return to the islands on the 10th inst., to be principal of the High School at Hilo. His brother, Carl A. Richmond, Pomona College, '00, is now examiner of patents at Washington, D. C., passing on steam engines and boilers.

Herbert N. Edwards, '05, who has been spending a month at Forest Home in the San Bernardino Mountains, will leave soon for Yale University, where he will do graduate work preparatory to the degree of doctor of philosophy.

CONKLIN STICKS YET AWHILE.

THIRTY DAYS GRACE FOR LONG BEACH MARSHAL.

Office Not Vacant Until That Length of Time Has Expired—Latest Row Over Appointment of a School Trustee—Los Angeles Man Lands a Big Yellowtail.

LONG BEACH, Aug. 1.—Judge Walter Bordwell's order removing J. J. Conklin as City Marshal of Long Beach and declaring the office vacant was served on City Clerk George Harris yesterday. He consulted City Attorney Knight, who gave an opinion that under the terms of the amended section 770 of the Penal Code, the Marshal is entitled to hold his office for thirty days after judgment was entered. By this ruling Conklin will continue in office until the 27th inst., so the Clerk will file the notice and nothing further will be done until the thirty days expire. Meanwhile Conklin's attorney is preparing papers for an appeal. In Judge Bordwell's order, note is taken of the express waiving by the informer, Leslie W Folsom, of the $500 fine and all costs incurred by him. Th waeiver was made to show that Folsom's act was not actuated by hope of reward.

ONE AFTER ANOTHER.

Long Beach scarce recovers from one factional row before another brews. The death of Samuel Hiller left a vacancy in the Board of School Trustees, and a quiet movement was started to have Jesse Driskill, a cement contractor, appointed his successor. Early Monday morning, however, the friends of W. L. Porterfield, president and manager of the Home Telephone, started petitions in his behalf and shortly afterward the name of George C. Flint of the Alamitos Land and Water Company was mentioned as a good man for the position. The trio of names was presented yesterday to County Superintendent Mark Keppel, who, however, dodged the responsibility, and the Long Beachites came home in no good humor with themselves or with their adversaries. The cooler minds among them realized that a fight over an honorary position is silly, and they began overtures for a compromise man who would be acceptable to all. Conferences have been held several times today between the leaders of the opposing forces, but so far without result. The trustees at present are Dr. J. W. Wood and H. L. Enlos.

BEACHLETS.

A horse belonging to Butters & Nimrod ran away just before noon today. At Fourth street and Pine avenue it knocked a man down, bruising him considerably, and continuing down Pine avenue, turned west on First and colliding with the buggy of W. C. Reynolds, wrecked both buggies, and getting penned in the débris was caught. The streets were filled with people en route to dinner, and there were several narrow escapes.

The United Improvement Company (dollar gas,) has completed its organization with officers and directors as follows: President, H. S. Farnesworth; vice-president, W. B. Redburn; secretary, F. W. Stearns; treasurer, E. J. Louis and L. V. Ohl of Los Angeles; Frank McCutcheon and C. J. Walker of Long Beach as additional directors. The company expects to be ready for business in ninety days.

A man named McMillan of Los Angeles had a lively time on the wharf this morning with a monster yellowtail. After a hard fight it was brought close enough to use the gaff pole and the prize was landed. It weighed thirty-nine pounds.

HOLLYWOOD.

CUTTING FALL OF WORKMAN.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1—Ethan Myers while washing the large plate glass in the Hollywood National Bank windows this afternoon slipped from his ladder and fell striking the glass and breaking it in many pieces.

In his attempt to protect himself his hands and wrists were badly cut. His head went through the glass, leaving him with his neck resting on the broken edge. This was cut but not deep enough to sever the jugular vein. After his wounds were dressed he was able to return to his home at No. 2116 Houston street, Boyle Heights.

FOOTHILL CITY BRIEFS.

The Hollywood National Bank was opened today with Dr. E. O. Palmer president; E. J. Marshall, vice-president, and G. G. Greenwood, cashier. The directors are Paul de Longpré, P. J. Beveridge, Dr. E. O. Palmer, G. G. Greenwood, Wellington Clark, E. J. Marshall and John S. Craven. The stock $25,000, is distributed among fifty holders, no one owning more than ten shares.

CITY FATHERS AGAINST 'PHONE COMPANY IN POMONA.

Town's Governing Body Officially Says That Within Thirty Days the "Sunset" Poles and Wires on the Public Thoroughfares Shall be a Nuisance and Shall be Removed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

POMONA, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Sunset Telephone Company has been ordered off the streets, so far as its operating system here is concerned. The City Trustees this afternoon by a vote of 3 to 2 adopted a resolution to that effect. The resolution declares that within thirty days the poles and apparatus shall be a nuisance and directs that they be removed from the streets.

The City Trustees hold that the company has failed to show cause why it should not purchase a franchise under the Broughton act for its business done in Pomona.

Action on this resolution was deferred at the last meeting to give the company, at the request of Attorney Pillsbury of San Francisco, an opportunity to file certain affidavits affecting its case, which, however, have not been forthcoming.

City Attorney Loucks stated tonight that the city means business and unless a franchise under the Broughton law is procured within the prescribed time the resolution will be enforced.

HOTEL DEAL—STOLEN WHEELS.

Through the efforts of the Pomona Board of Trade, F. Kaltenbeck is completing negotiations with O. R. Manville, the present owner, and F. B. Pierce, present holder of the mortgage on the Hotel Palomares property, for the leasing of the hostelry for a term of ten years. It is understood that Kaltenbeck will change the name of the hotel.

The two young Los Angeles boys named Barnett and Gribble, who were arrested here yesterday while trying to sell two bicycles stolen from Eastlake Park on Sunday, were taken to the city by Constable Slanker last evening and turned over to the detention home there to await trial in the Juvenile Court. Both boys carried new revolvers and were on their way to Missouri.

The Sioux Indian baseball team won two games from the local Elks' team at the High School grounds yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bell have returned from a short visit to Ocean Park.

Mrs. Howard A. Broughton has gone to San Francisco to join her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Battle are home from a trip to Seattle and the Portland fair.

CATALINA ISLAND.

HARD FIGHT WITH SWORDFISH.

AVALON, Aug. 1.—Harry Elms had a hard fight with a swordfish today. With W. H. Kaiser of El Paso, C. N. Hughes and C. W. LeVan of San Antonio, Tex., in the launch Mildred, they were trolling for albicore a few miles off shore, when a big swordfish appeared in their vicinity. They bore down upon him and as the lines dragged through the water he took the baits from both hooks without being caught. The hooks were rebaited and the swordfish gobbled the next bait that presented itself.

But this time there was trouble brewing. The sharp hook had impaled him. He started off seaward, but found his actions hampered. He made a rush and then seeming to realize that the launch was responsible for his trouble, leaped high into the air, shaking his head in an attempt to rid itself of the incubus of hook and line. Failing in the attempt, he, with another great leap, made a mad dash for the launch, intending to ram it. Elms saw him coming and, realizing his danger, threw his launch bow on and reversed and thus avoided the blow. The monster fish, estimated to be twelve feet in length, and weighing 400 to 500 pounds, was now up within a foot or two of the gaff, but was just out of harm's way. It turned and having gotten far enough away to gain sufficient velocity, again attacked the boat and Elms by the slightest margin again escaped being rammed. The anglers now came to the conclusion that they had caught a tartar and were discussing the propriety of cutting it loose when it came at them the third time, the wicked-looking sword just grazing the launch as Elms threw her hard over.

Kaiser, on whose hook the fish was impaled, concluded he had had enough excitement and as none of them could keep their hats on their heads, the line was cut after a number of futile efforts to gaff the monster. Finding itself freed, the fish bounded ten or fifteen feet into the air and with enormous leaps and bounds it struck out for midocean, possibly as glad to escape as were the anglers to see it go. It was a truly frightened bunch of men who scarce realized just how great was their danger until the formidable creature made off to sea. Fishing had lost its charms when they waked up and they called it half a day and quit.

GRAVELLY SHORE NOTES.

H. T. Kendall of Pasadena, once holding the season's record for largest jewfish, has bought the launch Florence from Clark Reeve and sent it up to Santa Barbara. Jim Gardner and Will Dewey started up with the boat last evening.

Messrs. Doran, Manning, Burnham, Goodall and Knowles had a warm handicap competition game of golf this morning, Mr. Manning winning enough balls to keep him in play for a month.

A Friendly Rattlesnake.

One day last week Aaron Hoffman had an experience with a rattler which he will not soon forget. While sprouting potatoes in the bin near the house, he was conscious of something rubbing against his back, and glancing over his shoulders found that an immense rattlesnake had raised its head and was in the act of crawling up on his back. The sight froze the blood in his veins and he was too paralyzed with fear to move, and while he sat there the snake crawled over his shoulder and across his knees and into his hiding place. When young Hoffman did recover his powers of locomotion he ran into the house, but the reaction from the terrible fright completely prostrated him and he was unable for some little time to tell his mother the cause of the fright. It is a well-known fact that the rattlesnake unless disturbed will not strike, but even this fact does not make him a neighbor to be enjoyed.—[Madras (Or.) Pioneer.

Trading was limited on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday, although the bidding was fairly widely distributed notably in the bank and miscellaneous stocks.

But probably the feature of the session was Mexican Petroleum which is steadily growing in favor, 3000 shares changing hands at 62½ points above the closing of the day before. Associated Oil made another decline, 1000 shares being sold at 57½; but yesterday was dividend paying day in this security. Central declined, but Union gained 2½ points, closing strong at 108; White United Petroleum remained stationary at 194, with offerings in neither.

Dollar Savings Bank and Los Angeles National each gained 2 points, but First National and Security Savings Bank each went off 10 points.

Associated Oil bonds lost 2½ points.

Edison Electric preferred and Los Angeles Home Telephone went offefrom 1½ to 1¾. San Diego Home Telephone dropping 2 points under the closing of the day before. United States Long Distance advanced a point, closing at 65 in a strong market.

At a meeting of the governing board of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday it was decided to have the bylaws printed and issued in book form for distribution among the members. The monthly financial statement submitted showed a balance of over $1900 on hand.

LONG DISTANCE DIVIDEND. A dividend of $1 a share will be paid on United States Long Distance Telephone preferred stock on August 10, and it has been decided to pay the same every three months thereafter. This dividend is to be paid on the present earnings of the company which are said to be double the dividend. The company is now building toward San Diego and San Francisco, and when it has established itself at these two points, the earnings will greatly increase and a still better dividend be paid. This is the opinion of those who are on the "inside." The stock is strong on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange and a higher level may be looked for in a few days.

HOME DIVIDEND. The Los Angeles Home Telephone will pay its quarterly dividend of $1 a share on August 10. This is at the rate of 4 per cent. on the stock but with the increasing business of the company, it is said that subsequent dividends will probably be at the rate of 5 per cent.

Time money, 60 to 90 days, 6 per cent.; from 4 to 6 months, 6 per cent.

Commercial paper, 60 to 90 days, indorsed bills, 6 per cent.; from 4 to 6 months, single names, 7 per cent.

WHEAT. The Times Chicago correspondent says:

Heavy rains were reported in many parts of the spring and winter wheat States from 1 to 6 inches. Ordinarily these showers are not beneficial to wheat in the shock or milk. Northwestern reports claim the weather is improving while the extreme west claims hot weather is likely to cross the Dakotas. These reports put September wheat to 87¼ and denial of them caused a decline to 85¾ at the close. Prof. Jones of the Lick Observatory of California says black rust in the Northwest is due to spots on the sun. Mr. Hagie, the crop expert says, "It is well to bear in mind that rust was not discovered in the Northwest last year until the first days of August, this year's crop is ten days to two weeks later than last year so there is plenty of time for serious damage to yet occur." Van Dusen-Harrington & Co. say, "Much of the wheat crop is now in the turning or milky stage which seems to be a period when black rust first finds lodgement on the plant. The time required for the maturity of black rust is from 8 to 14 days. The majority of the wheat crop of these States will be ready for harvest in about 14 days. Some of the North Dakota crop will require from 20 to 25 days. With weather favorable for the maturity of the crop we think there is every reason to hope for fair returns but the black rust spores are now so thoroughly seeded over the wheat fields of these three States that if the weather should prove unfavorable for the maturity of the wheat plant and favorable to the spread of black rust Northern Minnesota and North Dakota will be likely to suffer just as they did last year." We prefer to be on the watch and buy some wheat on a sharp break. It will require many threshing reports from the Northwest to determine the size of their crop which is facing perhaps more ills than ordinarily occur to a crop when in the milk. We look for a falling off in primary receipts this week.

CORN AND OATS are on the bargain counter of theorists who promise big crops before harvest. There is a large demand for corn for prompt shipment to New England and Europe. Oats do not seem high at 29 for September or 28½ for December.

WHEAT. Messrs. F. Landers & Co., under date July 29, say: "Unofficial conditions prevailing in the agricultural districts in Russia and the certainty that France has only an indifferent crop at the best, and with Russia the largest contributor to the world's supply in a state of starvation, we are not able to say whether crops will be gathered or wilfully destroyed; with labor disorganized and disaffected; and America able to spare but little; India offering sparingly, with a crop of 60,000,000 bushels less than last year; Australia nearly cleaned out, and Argentina having shipped the bulk of her supplies; it is quite evident this is not going to be a season of low prices. The American figures are simply phenomenal—700,000,000 bushels of wheat, 2,600,000,000 of corn, 950,000,000 of oats. For our part we decline to take these figures seriously, and we do not suppose there is a single grain dealer who will, or in America either."

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

The receipts for July 31, as reported by the Produce Exchange were: Eggs, 155 cases; butter, 23,000 pounds; cheese, 29,714 pounds; Irish potatoes, 221 sacks; sweet potatoes, none; onions none; beans, 13 sacks.

With most of the supplies in fair volume, the general produce market was in fairly steady tone at prevailing prices.

Eggs were selling at 27 cents for local ranch; 24 for eastern and 19 to 20 for seconds.

Thirty-six cases of butter came in from Selma, but no Coast arrived until the afternoon, and the market was firm at the prices quoted.

The vegetable market was about steady and featureless; green corn jobbing at 75 cents; tomatoes, 40 to 60; cabbage 40 to 50; cucumbers 10 to 25; peas 3 to 5; beans 2 to 2½; wax, 2 to 3, and limas 4 cents.

Four cars of mixed fruits arrived, two of which were peaches, and prices of the latter suffered somewhat under a moderate demand, ordinary stocks jobbing at 40 to 60, while the strawberry peach, which made its appearance for the first time in the market yesterday, was firm at 1.15.

Tropico strawberries were in good supply and jobbing at 1.20 to 1.50; Monetas, 90 to 1.20. Loganberries and blackberries were in good demand, the former moving freely at 5 to 6 cents. Raspberries were scarce and jobbing generally at 9 cents.

Grapes met a good buying interest at 1.00 to 1.25 for muscats; 75 for Thompson's seedless, and 1.00 to 1.25 for Black Hamburg.

The plum offerings were mostly from local sources, and ranged in prices from 85 to 1.25 according to quality. Egg plums were moving freely at 85 to 90 cents; German prunes 75 to 85 cents, and Burbanks 75 to 85 cents in 4 basket crates. Nectarines were fairly steady at 65 to 75 cents. Apricots were scarce and displayed a stiffening tendency, stocks jobbing from 60 to 1.00.

Watermelons were a drug on the market, stocks of the rattlesnake variety moving at 60 to 75 cents a hundred; while local Chilians brought 1.75 to 2.25 a dozen.

Cantaloupes were in light supply, and jobbing freely at 1.50 to 4.00 for large crates; 1.25 to 1.50 for ponies, and 1.75 for standard. Honolulu pineapples were steady at 7 cents a pound.

Two cars of bananas arrived, one from Honolulu and the other from Pt. Limon, but no changes were made in the prices.

Potatoes were weak, and steady.

Large fish were in abundance, but small fish and northern were in light receipt. Crabs were in plenty.

DAILY REPORT OF ORANGE MARKET.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Sales of oranges were fairly active, and reasonably good prices were paid for all desirable qualities. The market is a shade stronger under the influence of cooler weather. Wholesalers report a shade stronger market, with outside buyers taking rather more goods, though chiefly in small lots. Not much stock is held by jobbers beyond their every-day requirements. Retailers are pretty well cleaned out, and most of them prefer to remain so. There is only a spasmodic demand from consumers, and that principally for small quantities. Lemons are firm, but continued cool weather is reducing the demand and causing a good deal of caution among purchasers.

NEW YORK MARKET.

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Only three cars of citrus fruits were sold at auction today, and these were mostly Valencias. Fancy grades of Valencias brought $3.90@$5.60, while the choice grades brought $3.75@$4.50. Fancy Mediterranean sweets sold for $3.25.

The foreign lemon sale consisted of 8000 boxes of Sicily lemons. The stock was in good condition and the prices realized are about 25 cents higher. The market is very strong. Prices realized were as follows:

Fancy 300s, $5.00@$5.60; choice 300s, $4.60@$5.00; fancy 360s, $4.75@$5.15; choice 360s, $4.35@$4.75.

The next sale of Sicily lemons will be held on Thursday, when 21,000 boxes will be offered.

BOSTON MARKET.

BOSTON (Mass.) Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two cars of citrus fruit were sold here today, one each of oranges and California lemons. The market continues steady and good stock continues to bring fancy prices. The weather today was somewhat stormy. Fancy Valencias brought $4.80, while choice brought $4.25. California lemons, orchard-run grade, realized $4.60. Mediterranean sweets, choice grade, brought $3.20.

LEMONS AT NEW YORK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Lemons have joined long list necessaries that have deteriorated in quality and advanced in price. Fruit now on market has never been of such poor quality. Until summer set in, a good grade of lemons could be had as low as a cent each. The same lemons cost twice as much today, and there is every reason to believe the price will not drop materially until next season. Wholesale dealers say the primary reason for the shortage of good lemons is the "cold snap" in Italy that ruined the better part of the crop there. Some of them also allege that, owing to the high duty exacted by Uncle Sam, Italian growers can get a better price by shipping elsewhere than the United States, and are shipping accordingly. California lemons are in the local market, and are bringing high prices. They are the best-loking fruit offered for sale. The great objection to the California lemon is that it will not keep like a lemon from abroad. Nevertheless, California fruit is the nicest to look at today, and brings the highest price. The best that the ordinary householder can do is to get fifteen of them for 25 cents.

Local Citrus Movements.

The shipments of citrus fruits Monday were 22 carloads of oranges and 14 carloads of lemons; grand total, 28,261, of which 3547 were lemons.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The stock market again demonstrated its good absorptive powers today, during the period when profit taking sales were being made to meet the new demand. But rather singularly, the tone showed more softness when the selling movement had mostly subsided. Specialties were the feature all on the day before, and few of the great speculative leaders in the list moved widely enough to call for special comment. The specialities affected were less numerous than yesterday, and their movements were less sensational, probably accounting for the diminished effect of the special movements on the general tone of the market. Copper securities were strong in all the markets of the world, based on the advancing price and the extraordinary demand reported for the products. The price of copper advanced sharply in London, and in New York the price was marked up ⅛ a pound, following a similar advance yesterday. The response in Amalgamated Copper was uncertain and the dealings in that stock were not on an unusual scale. Smelting continued to the high levels under the influences of an intended increase in the dividend rate. The United States Steel securities were also firm, but sluggish, the second mortgage bonds making the widest movement. The granger stocks seemed to be affected by crop uncertainties, although the wheat market was comparatively free from damage rumors. Rust reports came from Canadian sources, and Canadian Pacific was sharply depressed in consequence. The Southern Railway stocks were relatively firm. Efforts being made to settle the passenger rate war were helpful to the group. The publication of the Weather Bureau's weekly crop bulletin was a signal for a general recovery in the market. The Atchison June earnings and the showing of that system for the fiscal year served to hold its price in check. Money conditions were not perceptibly altered. The payment to the government on a periodical maturity of a Central Pacific note make the sub-treasury a large gainer in the market on operations thus far reported, but government interest payable today will operate as an offset. The unresponsiveness of the general surface market to the propping up of individual stocks as much as anything else led to the spilling of stocks in the final hour which decided the course downward after the varying fluctuations of the day, and the closing was easy, a number of grain carriers showing partial losses on the day. Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $3,554,000.

MUCH MILLER THE TROUBLE.

Common Complaint of Two Sick Concerns.

Sanitarium Associations Find Muddle on Hand.

Modern Woodmen Taking up Hospital Idea.

The White Cross Sanitarium Company of Los Angeles and the East Los Angeles Sanitarium Company—two entirely separate concerns, operating in different sections of the city, and officered with distinctly separate rosters of business men—seem to be suffering from the same troubles. According to the statements of those interested in the concerns it is a case of "Too much Miller."

It is said, as a matter of fact, that at the present time both sanitarium associations are at a standstill, simply waiting to rid themselves of Promoter Miller, whom they regard as an incubus.

But Miller has a five-year contract with at least one of the companies, and it is said he has proceeded to collect moneys on shares sold in the other concern and has refused to turn over to the board of directors either the money or the lists of those from whom he has collected. Miller, on his part, claims the money is simply a part of what is due him for commissions on selling stock.

Both of these companies are co-operative concerns, which propose for the payment of a certain sum a month to provide the members with necessary medical treatment and care in cases of sickness or accident. The East Side company has the honor of having as its president Mayor McAleer.

STARBUCK'S PLAN.

The plan originated with William Starbuck, a business man of Fullerton. Mr. Starbuck was instrumental in establishing such an institution at Fullerton, which is proving very successful; he also established similar sanitariums at Santa Monica, Long Beach and Whittier; and then came to East Los Angeles to extend the chain of life-saving stations.

After securing the interest of East Side physicians and business men, and working up considerable enthusiasm for the project, Starbuck found that Henry E. Miller, a newcomer from Michigan and Salt Lake, had entered the field on somewhat similar lines, and the two men effected a combination.

In connection with the promotion of the East Side project, they also took up a similar movement for the downtown portion of the city. In both instances they were enabled to interest prominent business men in the organizations. But the hitch came when there was a discussion of the manner of handling the sale of stock. It seems that certain men interested in the East Side company were not satisfied with the actions of Miller and their investigations of his previous business record acquainted them with the fact that he had organized hospital companies at various points in Michigan, and had had considerable friction with the officers. In fact, they decided that they would prefer to handle the stock themselves.

Starbuck, seeing the trend of sentiment, discreetly resigned his position as a member of the board of directors, although it appears that the members of the company had confidence in him, but his tie-up with Miller in a partnership made annoying complications.

MILLER GETS IN.

It is said that Miller secured possession of the subscription lists and collected all the money he could, without authority of the board of directors, and against their wishes. A demand was made upon him for the return of the lists and the money collected, but he put in a counter-demand for a sum amounting to much more than it is believed he had collected, claiming it was due as commission.

The troubles over the East Side matters caused a ruction between Starbuck and Miller, finally resulting in the fracas which was recorded in the daily papers, and which caused Miller to receive a drubbing from Starbuck, Starbuck pleaded guilty to assault and paid his fine, well satisfied with the punishment he had administered to Miller.

Miller was ousted from the directorate of both companies, but it is said he holds stock in both, and that the five-year contract is a legal instrument which might cause the companies much annoyance should they attempt to abrogate it.

BYLAWS CHANGED.

In order to place themselves in such a position that Miller could not sell their stock, one of the companies changed its bylaws so as to fit the case. It was at first attempted to place the prices of stock at such a figure as to be prohibitive to the ordinary purchaser, but there were legal obstacles in the way. Then the officers discovered that they might change the provisions so that instead of offering all the inducements at first held forth, they could simply supply the services of a physician.

With such a muddle on hand, none of the officers of either concern is inclined to proceed, and it is likely the White Cross Sanitarium will not materialize for some time to come.

A temporary arrangement was made with the German Methodist Deaconess Hospital to handle their cases. At present neither company has a patient on hand.

It is probable that the East Side company will be reorganized, eventually, on the original Starbuck plan. That is, if the incubus of the Miller entanglements can be gotten rid of.

Meanwhile Miller, who it seems is a natural promoter, is not letting the sanitarium and hospital idea accumulate any rust. His present scheme is to interest members of the Modern Woodmen of America in a proposition on peculiar lines. It is said he will receive a large slice of paid-up stock for his work in organizing, and that it is hoped to turn the concern over to the order itself, after it is once in running condition. It is said the proposition is to issue bonds to erect the hospital buildings, and afterward sell stock to the membership of the order to pay off these bonds.

But while the Modern Woodmen's project—promoted by Miller—is said to be forging ahead, the two companies with the ensign of the white cross show a sad lack of activity, and Starbuck, whose previous hospital plans worked out well in outside towns, regrets his venture in attempting to provide places for sick Angeleños.

VENTURA.

SUIT INVOLVES BIG RANCH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VENTURA, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Suit was filed here today by the daughters of the late Juan Camarillo for a division of the Calleguas ranch against their brothers Adolph and Juan E. Camarillo.

The ranch is worth over a million and was left by Camarillo to his wife. She in turn deeded it to her two sons in 1898. A compromise was effected by paying $25,000 to the sisters, they renouncing all claim to the property.

Now they wish to refund this settlement by an offer to repay the $25,000 as they claim Juan has confessed to one of the sisters that he and the brother defrauded them.

It is alleged that Adolph failed to destroy his mother's will as she desired, that he also had her sign a deed of gift of the ranch to himself and brother when she thought she was signing a deed of gift favoring all the children. The Camarillo brothers have always stood high in the community.

Tests for Nickel and Cobalt.

CALIENTE (Nev.) July 20, 1905.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There is no subject in chemistry that puzzles me more than that of the separation of nickel and cobalt by wet methods. All of the books consulted, by me, give vague directions as to procedure.

Will you please give "In the Earth" such formula and advice as will help me out and particularly that of recognizing nickel salts in solution. I shall hope, confidently for a reply.

Cordially yours, G. B. E., Assayer.

ANSWER: Ores of nickel are frequently found in Nevada. The arsenide (Kuppernickel,) of a red-yellow color, was at one time looked upon by German miners as connected with His Satanic Majesty and then given the name as stated. There is a product known to the commercial world as "speiss," which is of very great importance, and may be looked upon as an artificial arsenide, or, simply a fused product, these are largely employed as a source of many nickel salts. The metal can be obtained by bringing the oxalate to a high white heat in a crucible lined with charcoal. By reducing one of the oxides with hydrogen. Nickel, colbalt and iron are the three magnetic metals, this property of nickel is lost, however, when heated to 350 degrees centigrade (662 degrees F.)

To obtain nickel chloride—dissolve oxide or carbonate, of the metal, in hydrochloric acid, a green solution is obtained, "which furnishes crystals of the same color containing water. When rendered anhydrous by heat, the chloride is yellow, unless it contains cobalt, in which case it has a tint of green."

Nickel forms two oxides—the monoxide is obtained by heating the nitrate to redness or by precipitating a soluble nickel salt with a solution of potassium hydrate, then washing, drying and igniting the hydrated oxide (or precipitate) of an apple green color. "Nickle salts, when hydrated, have usually a beautiful emerald-green color; the anhydrous state they are yellow." The sesquioxide (a black insoluble substance,) is obtained by mixing a salt of nickel with a solution of bleaching powder (chloride of lime, of commerce) and also, by "passing chlorine through the hydrated monoxide suspended in water."

Nickel sulphate is the most important of all the salts. Its green crystals are prismatic, and are dissolved in three parts of cold water. With potassium sulphate, and that of ammonium it forms double salts (alums.) "When a strong solution of oxalic acid is mixed with sulphate of nickel, a pale bluish-green precipitate of oxalate falls after some time, very little nickel remaining in solution. The oxalate can thus be obtained for preparing the metal."

Nickel carbonate, can be made by mixing solutions of nickel chloride or sulphate with that of sodium carbonate. "A pale-green precipitate falls, which is a combination of nickel carbonate and hydrate. It is readily decomposed by heat."

To obtain pure nickel salts on the small scale from the arsenide or speiss proceed as follows: "The mineral is broken into small fragments, mixed with from one-fourth to half its weight of iron filings, and the whole dissolved in nitro-muriatic acid (aqua regia.) The solution is gently evaporated to dryness, the residue treated with boiling water, and the insoluble iron arsenate removed by a filter. The liquid is then acidulated with hydrochloric acid, treated with hydrogen sulphide in excess, which precipitates the copper, and, after filtration, boiled with a little nitric acid to bring back the iron to the state of sesquioxide. To the cold and largely diluted liquid solution, acid sodium carbonate is gradually added, by which the ferric oxide may be completely separated without loss of nickel salt. Lastly, the filtered solution, boiled with sodium carbonate in excess, yields an abundant pale-green precipitate of nickel carbonate, from which all the other compounds can be prepared."

It is well to remember, however, that the precipitate thus obtained may still contain cobalt and this subject is one of the vital points in your inquiry. There are several ways to make the separation, one of the best is the process of H. Rose, who proceeds as follows: The mixed oxides or carbonates being dissolved in excess of hydrochloric acid, the solution, largely diluted with water, is supersaturated with chlorine gas, whereby the cobalt monoxide remains unaltered. The liquid is next mixed with excess of recently precipitated barium carbonate, left to stand for twelve to eighteen hours, and shaken up from time to time. The whole of the cobalt is thereby thrown down as sesquioxide, while the nickel remains in solution, and may be precipitated as hydrate by potash (potassium hydrate solution) after the barium also contained in the solution has been removed by precipitation with sulphuric acid.

Nickel salts are easily recognized by their behavior with reagents. Aqueous ammonia gives a pale-green precipitate of hydrate, soluble in excess of reagent, then forming a bluish-purple color to the solution. Caustic alkalies give the same apple-green precipate of hydrate which is insoluble in such reagents. Sodium and potassium carbonates yield pale-green precipitates. Ammonium carbonate gives a similar precipitate, soluble in excess, and forming a blue color. "Potassium ferrocyanide gives a greenish-white precipitate. Potassium cyanide produces a green precipitate, which dissolves in an excess of the precipitant to an amber-colored liquid, and is reprecipitated by addition of hydrochloric acid. Hydrogen sulphide occasions no change, if the nickel be in combination with a strong acid. Ammonium sulphide produces a black precipitate of nickel sulphide, which dissolves slightly in excess of the precipitant, with dark-brown color. Nickel sulphide, when once precipitated, is insoluble in dilute hydrochloric acid; it is soluble in nitro-muriatic and in hot nitric acid."

Amphibole.

LOS ANGELES, June 19, 1905.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you please name the inclosed samples numbered 1 and 2, and tell me if they have any commercial value? Thank you in advance I remain, yours respectfully, H. J.

ANSWER: An apology is extended to the consignee for the long delay in receiving samples. No. 1 is a radiated, limonitic amphibole. In plain English—an asbestos, stained with yellow iron oxide and, absolutely, of no commercial value. No. 2 is greenish white actinolite of value as a mineralogical specimen only, with no demand for such in commerce.

Black Sand.

BUTTE (Mont.) July 21, 1905.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I send you some black sand obtained by me in June from near Coos Bay, Or.

Does it carry platinum. Greatly oblige me with a reply.

Faithfully yours, J. T. McG.

ANSWER: Yes.

THE DOG DAYS.

Continually Dropping Back and May Come Eventually in Winter.

[Chicago News:] Dog days begin, according to the traditions of boyhood in certain parts of the United States, when the green scum, algae, begins to appear on the surface of the lakes and rivers. Then it is supposed to be unsafe to go in swimming. And it is then that, according to the tradition of many adults as well as of boys, dogs most frequently go mad. All nations and races of civilization, apparently have had a period during the summer known as dog days when many maladies were supposed to be common. But the madness of dogs, hydrophobia, was never associated with dog days by the ancients.

Dog days are a rather indefinite period, according to this green-scum rule, but there is a disagreement of authorities as to when dog days really do begin and end. According to the Century Dictionary, "dog days are part of the year about the time of the heliacal rising of the dog star, Sirius;" that is, when the dog star rises in conjunction as may be observed. Various dates from July 3 to August 15 have been assigned for the beginning of dog days, and they are given various durations of from 30 to 50 days.

It seems to have been from the heliacal rising of Sirius that the ancients most commonly reckoned thed og days. Thus, at the present time, dog days would begin July 3 and will end August 11. Sirius is the brightest star in the heavens, and it was easy to associate the mutual heat of the brightest star and of the sun with the hottest and most unkindly period of the year. Hippocrates (450 B. C.) declared the dog days to be the most unhealthy part of the summer.

Dog days are continually dropping farther back in the calendar. Now they are twelve days behind the schedule to which they held in the period of the Pharoahs. In time Sirius may rise in the dead of winter. The Egyptians maintained that the first indication of the rise of the Nile took place on the morning of the longest day when, as they said, the sun and Sothis (Sirius) rose together. They attributed the rise of the river entirely to the great heat generated by this star in conjunction with the sun.

Sirius is situated in the mouth of the constellation Canis Major (the "great dog.") The Latin name of dog days was "dies canicularis," and from this comes the term "canicular year," which was known among the Egyptians and Ethiopians. It was computed from one heliacal rising of Sirius to the next and consisted ordinarily of 365 days, every fourth year having 366 days.

Mayor Weaver's Story.

Mayor Weaver of the awakened city of Philadelphia was talking to a reporter about a very astute and wily politician.

"It is difficult," said the Mayor, "to get this man to do anything he doesn't want to do. Cornered he advances argument after argument against the course you desire him to pursue. He begins with weak arguments. You think you've got him. But just as victory appears assured he puts forth a final argument that is insuperable, a final argument that floors you thoroughly.

"The fellow is like the fickle sailor of the old romance. This sailor was strong, handsome and gay. The girls liked him, he, I fear, liked the girls. The following conversation one moonlight night in the tropics passed between him and a young woman:

"'But I promised my wife, sweetheart, that I would never marry a second time.'

"'Would you cast me off for the sake of a promise to a dead woman?'

"'But she isn't dead yet,' said the fickle sailor.—[New York Press.

HOUSE IN SMOKE. NEGROES KEEP OUT.

Man Who Built Spite Fence Sells Place to Colored Family to Please Neighbor—Burned Before New Owner Can Move in.

ONLY a heap of ashes and charred embers mark the place where a pretty little cottage stood last night at No. 1486 West Thirty-eighth street, and dot with a big black spot what has been the storm center about which raged an acrimonious neighborhood row.

Evolved through the building of a spite fence, carefully nursed in daily back-yard housewife gossip, blossoming forth in the deceipt of anonymous letters and the passing of alleged threats of great personal violence, waxing to fury on the sale of the house in question to a negro, and brought to a lurid conclusion in the burning of the house at 8 o'clock last night—such are the features of a strenuous chapter in the incompatibility between the family of O. W. Harris and wife, late owners of the burned house, and Fred Strong and his wife, their next-door neighbors.

Harris is an agent for the Golden Gate Wine Company, with offices at No. 271 South Main street, and Strong is a floor walker for the Broadway Department Store. They have been neighbors for several months past, and both agree that they have gotten on not at all. They agreed to disagree from the first, and their wives valiantly backed them up in burying the white flag so deep that it can never be dug up.

FAMILY STRATEGIES.

From the first it has been a series of strategic moves, both aggressive and offensive, rather than defensive, on the part of both families. In fact, the only point on which they reach a semblance of agreement is that they had no use for each other.

When Strong shut off the water rights of his neighbors to his hydrant they retaliated and constructed a nice tight-board chicken fence down along the side of the Strong house, past the windows. That the Strongs might not be annoyed by the sight of the chickens, Harris considerately built the fence high enough so that they could by no possible means see over.

This pleased the Strongs immensely, and it is charged that Mrs. Strong took occasion to tell her neighbor so in words of no mistakable import.

Then Mrs. Strong says she received an anonymous letter threatening all sorts of things, and it is then alleged by Harris, that Strong came out and threatened to make him a candidate for a halo and a pair of wings.

This proved too much for Harris, and he put up a "for sale" sign on his property, and Tuesday closed a deal with George Lawrence, a negro residing on Wall street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth. Harris moved out last night according to agreement to allow the new tenant to take possession.

PLEASED AND OTHERWISE.

The neighbors are said to have expressed themselves as highly pleased to see the Harrises leaving, but their words of joy on learning of the who and what of the new owner, fairly scorched the earth.

Harris and his wife moved away last night at 7 o'clock. At 8 o'clock the little cottage was in ashes. At 8:30 o'clock Lawrence arrived with his family and household effects, and found nothing but a large bare lot and a small patch of roasting ears to move into. It annoyed him not to find the house he supposed he had purchased, and he hunted up Harris to ask him what he had done with it.

The former owner immediately complained to the police, saying he is sure the house was set on fire, and declares that he will swear out a complaint of arson today. When reminded that he is no longer the owner of the property, he replied that he would then act in the matter for Lawrence, and if he is unable to enter the complaint on account of non-ownership, he declares he will swear to a complaint charging threats to kill.

In fact the episode of last night has made the Harris family and the Strongs better enemies than before.

WHAT STRONG SAYS.

The fire which destroyed the building adjoining his home had not had the effect of removing Strong's animosity toward the man who had until yesterday occupied it. He was seen at his home last night and did not mince words in his statement of the causes which led up to the fire.

"My wife and I were seated at the table at about 7:30 o'clock," he said, "when we noticed a blaze in the direction of the Harris house. I ran outside and saw the place was on fire and called to my wife to send in an alarm. Then I got the hose and began to play on the burning house, but had to stop as my own place was in danger. Then I turned the water on my own home."

Asked if he had set fire to the Harris home Strong said:

"I did not set fire to the house and the story is a damnable lie concocted by Harris to spoil my reputation. The neighbors have no use for the man. He is a solicitor for the Golden State Wine Company and the people in this district know just the kind of a man he is."

Speaking of the letter received by his wife the enraged husband said:

"Harris is the author of that vile letter because he is the only man who has ever heard me call my wife "Sissy." Her name is Frances, and as a pet name I call her "Sissy." Our house is close to the Harris home and that thing has heard me address my wife by that name and therefore I know that he is the only person in this town who could have written such a filthy epistle."

Strong declares that Harris moved out of the house at 7:00 o'clock last evening and that the fire occurred at 7:30 o'clock. He further declares that papers and inflammable material were scattered around the premises.

BAD DAY ON WHEELS.

Many Accidents to Buggies and Bicycles—Italian Doctor Injured. Hay Wagon Breaks Bone.

The conjunction of planets yesterday was bad for those who traveled in wheeled vehicles.

Dr. B. Sassella, one of the leading lights of the Italian colony, was thrown from his buggy on Main street near Arcadia, and one of his arms was broken.

Valentine Rodriguez, a little Mexican boy was coasting down a hill on New High street and ran into a wagon, almost under the horses' feet. He escaped by some kind of miracle with a skinned face.

Elijah Crombie, a mite of a lad, 10 years old, was trying to dodge a street car on his bicycle and ran into the pole of one of Jevne's wagons, at Seventh and Hill streets, breaking two ribs.

CASE OF PISTOL OR GOO-GOO?

COURTSHIP OF NARVAEZ TAKES ON SERIOUS PHASE.

Girl Claims He Proposed at Point of Gun, and the Jockey's Attorney Says She Sent Him Sweet Letters. Will Find Another Charge Awaiting Him.

"If that man gets out of jail he will surely kill Louise."

That was the excited statement to the District Attorney yesterday by the family of Louise Mugnemi, the girl who was nearly murdered Tuesday by a horse jockey.

The family fell upon the District Attorney in a body, demanding that the bail of Jockey Narvaez be raised from $200.

As a basis for their demand they told a sensational story.

They claim that Narvaez's method of courtship was at the end of a pistol; that he presented the muzzle of a revolver on a previous occasion and threatened to pull the trigger if she did not promise to marry him. Needless to say, the two became engaged to be married muy pronto.

Although Narvaez tells the story that he came there only to plead with the girl, fifteen cartridges were found in his pockets, indicating that he came there prepared for trouble by wholesale.

H. B. Smith, who saved the girl's life by grappling with the intended murderer, says that Narvaez tried to kill him when he interfered.

Narvaez has retained Attorney Wildeman for his defense.

The jockey's mother is on her way down from San José with a barrel or less of money with which to accomplish the defense.

"I will stake my professional reputation," said Wideman, "that this case will never come to trial. My client merely was going to the bathroom when these girls jumped out and pulled his gun out of his pocket, saying that he was going to kill them.

"This case is merely one of those examples of too much mother," he continued. "I can prove that, instead of proposing to her at the point of a pistol, she wrote him goo-goo letters."

Be that as it may, when Narvaez comes out of jail he will find another charge waiting for him; he will immediately be rearrested on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder, instead of assault with a deadly weapon.

LIVING HIGH.

To dispel possible fears as to his well-being, Scotty telegraphed his old friend Rol King of the Hollenbeck bar from Chicago Tuesday, saying: "Eating the best. Lots of yellow money. Scotty."

But of the date of his probable return he says nothing. In the meantime mail by the hundred weight is piling up for the erratic Death Valleyite until the postal authorities have entered an emphatic protest.

Yesterday a whole barrel full of accumulated letters, was transferred from the postoffice and handed over to Rol King. They are stored in a back room of the Hollenbeck bar awaiting the return of Sir Walter.

But of all this correspondence it is doubtful if any reaches Scotty personally. He has become so shy of the hundreds of begging letters which have poured in on him from all over the United States and Canada, that he seldom looks at a letter until a friend has opened it and can assure him that it is not a petition for alms.

CHINESE DENTIST HAS REVENGE.

Climax of the Career of Secret Service Agent of Board of Dental Examiners—Had the Most Uncomfortable Day of His Life, and 'Twas All in the Line of Duty.

To dance around with a howling tooth is the picturesque finish of the first Japanese Sherlock Holmes; he lives here in Los Angeles.

He is a smart, well-educated and handsome little fellow named Oyama. He has for some time had the queerest job in the world. To have his teeth fixed for a living; that was his sole mission in life. He was paid by the Dental Association to collect evidence against tooth doctors; the way he collects it is to submit himself to the tortures of the tooth buzzer.

There is a Chinese dentist for whom they had been laying for some time; his name, Lo Sim Yit.

The Japanese detective was put on his track. But in a little Chinese paper was inserted an item that a Japanese detective was abroad.

Yesterday the little Jap sleuth came to Yit's office with an alleged aching tooth. With seeming lack of caution, guileless Yit let him into the chair.

And, oh he didn't do a thing to him! He took a sharp tool and jabbed a hole the size of a post hole in Brother Oyama's jaw bone, yanked out a few fillings, and rammed in a lot of cement. Oyama went out charged with evidence but dancing with a jumping jaw bone.

NOW FOR IDEAS AND CAPITAL.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NEARLY READY FOR INNOVATION.

The Predicted High Mark in Membership Safely Passed, the Institution Will Undertake, as Soon as Possible, the Conduct of Its New Bureau—Gurley at Home.

At 5 o'clock last night the register of membership at the Chamber of Commerce showed 2006 men upon the rolls; the twenty-century mark had been passed; Acting Secretary Gurley had arrived home, word had just been received that California carries off all the honors at Portland, and the directors felt elated to the point of jubilation.

This membership record, forecasted in The Times, is indeed an achievement, and fully establishes a world's record in institutions organized for public and philanthropic advertisement and publicity.

Beginning in a short time, the new bureau of capital and manufactures, the most unique committee of its sort on record, will commence its work of bringing together money and ideas.

The men composing this committee are Fred L. Baker, Archibald Douglas, W. G. Hunt, William Lacy and W. E. Hampton. There are indications that there will be work aplenty for them, as applications of both sorts have already been received by Mr. Gurley, and in some instances private—and therefore entirely unofficial—advice has been given.

As stated in the first paragraph, H. C. Gurley is again at home. He arrived from Portland yesterday noon, bringing with him the happy news of difficulties conquered, and a State's reputation doubly enhanced by her magnificent exposition showing.

Going over his trip, after the directors' meeting yesterday afternoon, Mr. Gurley said: "There is no doubt now in the minds of anyone that California has made the best showing of any State represented at the Portland Exposition. Los Angeles day was one of the brightest occasions in the whole progress of the fair, and in the afternoon a reception was attended by fully 3000 persons.

"The most interesting exhibit, in point of completeness and finish of display, is to be found in the Government Building. The Forestry Building is a wonder-house in architecture, piled up as it is of monstrous logs, squared and set like the walls of any ancient log cabin. In the inside great natural tree columns, fifty-four feet in length, support the roof. They stand in graceful taperings, six feet in diameter at the bottom, with all their natural bark still clinging to them."

Another splendid quota of members was received at yesterday's session of the directorate. The additions are: The United States National Bank, Hudson & Munsell, A. H. Putteamp, Western Sash and Door Company, John T. Neff, W. C. Starr, M. E. Johnson, J. Raymond Wilder, C. E. Gilhousen & Co., A. C. Smith, John R. Taylor, Dr W. W. Murphy, Walter Bordwell, S. K. Lindley, Frank Lerch, H. W. Marshall & Co., National Securities Company, Hinz & Landt, L. C. Crossman, H. W. Lawrence, J. M. Overell, Becker Law and Collection Agency, L. C. Hudson, Elbert E. Johnson, Taylor Bros., Dr. C. E. Smith, E. I. Campbell, W. C. Barnard, A. A. McLachlan, I. H. Hidley, H. H. Mills, M. L. Wicks, Mailling & Nicolaus, L. C. Gates, F. W. Sparr, Adrian Davoust, E. D. Hough, J. W. Harris, J. V. Ham, H. G. Cates, Western Fish and Oyster Company, E. E. Goodale, Dr. P. Jass, James Carlisle, Burrel D. Neighbors, R. T. Preston, Colorado Real Estate Exchange, William J. CLUBS DRAWN FOR SPEEDERS.

Los Angeles Motorists Twice Put Under Arrest.

San Luis Obispo People are Wrathy at Mobe Men.

Excitement at High Heat and More Trouble Coming.

Fraught with exciting adventure was the motorcycle jaunt from which three local enthusiasts, Messrs. C. W. Risden, H. E. Canfield and Allan R. Foss, have just returned.

Foiled in their attempt to establish a motorcycle record from Los Angeles to San Francisco and return, the men were forced, after making an air splitting journey successfully far up the coast, to quit and quietly surrender to the Sheriff and allow their pet machines to be placed under lock and key in the town calaboose.

Compelled to give up the idea of establishing a record, the three were required to face the wrath of a country farmer and were obliged to remain three weary days of the return trip in San Miguel in San Luis Obispo county, while the slow wheels of a country Justice Court ground out a decision in their peculiar case.

About ten days ago the three started for San Francisco in a dare-devil attempt to break the record. They failed, however, to reckon with the temper of the farmers and citizens en route and these, goaded to fury by the thoughtlessness of some automobilists and motorists, who pay no attention to speed ordinances, rose in their strength and vented their spleen on the Agnieños, who declare they were innocent of all wrongdoing.

The start from Los Angeles was made under favorable circumstances and nothing occurred until reaching San Miguel.

Scooting over one of the mountain roads in the vicinity of the little country town, they encountered a team of six horses attached to two heavily loaded wagons and a mix-up took place that ended with a broken wagon tongue, six badly frightened horses, and a wrathful driver.

Edward Travers, owner and driver of the team, swore vengeance against the riders of the "devil chasers," who endeavored to patch up the matter by offering to pay. Travers, however, would not be pacified and declared he would carry the matter to the courts as this was not the first time his team had been frightened and he had suffered.

When the motorists arrived at Gilroy they found Sheriff White, of that place, ready with a warrant, and their machines were locked in the jail, though they were allowed the liberty of the town. Bail was given the following morning in the sum of $50, and the riders were allowed to proceed to San Francisco under a promise to appear at San Miguel for trial on the return journey. The trip to the northern metropolis was spoiled as a result of the hold-up and the three then decided to give up any attempt to make a record and to spend the remaining time choosing a suitable route for a later trial of speed.

Arriving at San Miguel on the return journey, the trio of motorists were placed under arrest, for a second time, and were ordered to appear the following morning before the local justice of the peace.

So great was the interest in the trial, that the tiny courtroom was packed. The men saw at once that theirs was to be a test case and they were to be made an example for other motorists who were to pass that way. Little of interest was brought out at the trial, and the fact that the men were responsible for the broken wagon tongue was not clearly established. On a technicality, with regard to the speed ordinance, the men were found guilty and were obliged to pay a fine and the costs of the suit.

Mr. Risden in speaking of the journey to San Francisco said yesterday:

"We were treated royally by almost everybody along the route and we had no trouble until we reached Gilroy and had the difficulty with Travers. We were not going at full speed, as he claimed, when we met his team. The horses became fractious and the accident occurred before the three riders had passed the team.

"We offered to pay but the man was mad. We could have appealed the case and had a strong chance to win, but as we had been obliged to spend three days in the town at our own expense we decided to pay and time was valuable.

"There is this to say, however, concerning those who have made speedways through these towns. The practice of riding through towns without regard to the speed ordinance has brought the whole countryside into the fight, against the motorist and automobilist. This works a hardship, as the innocent must suffer with the guilty.

"There is need for united action on the part of those interested in the sport and the future of automobile road racing, as some of the passes are even now being patroled by men with shotguns, who declare they will enforce the speed ordinance.

"Mobists and motorists should get together in an attempt to bring about a better feeling. The officials of almost every town told us that arrangements could be made for any special trial of speed and they expressed themselves as willing to do all in their power to aid those who are working to lower road records with any of the machines. What they declared they would not stand is the indiscriminate speeding along their down thoroughfares by those who are apparently heedless of the great danger to life and limb, occasioned by such driving."

PAPER POSTPONED.

Mrs. Louise Lawrence was to have read a paper on "Narcotics" today before the W.C.T.U., in the First Methodist Episcopal Church this afternoon, but will be unable to do so. Mrs. Lawrence was injured day before yesterday while driving in her buggy, being run down by a brewery wagon.

The report of George P. Keating and George R. Teller, appraisers of the defunct German Bank, Buffalo, show that though the face value of the bank's assets was $6,799,176, their actual value is estimated by the appraisers as about $3,930,070.

HUNTINGTON LANDS SPACE IN HARBOR.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN PEDRO, Aug. 2.—By unanimous vote the Board of City Trustees tonight granted the application of H. E. Huntington for a fifty-year lease for outer harbor space adjacent to the site of his wharf franchise.

This gathering was largely attended and was enthusiastic. Senator W. H. Savage presided and speeches in favor of the lease were made by President Frank Burns of the Chamber of Commerce, M. J. McDermott and S. M. Storer.

A resolution in favor of the lease was adopted unanimously.

When the Board of City Trustees met Chief Engineer Pillsbury of the Pacific Electric Railway appeared before that body. He gave his word that if the board would grant the lease First street should be opened across the company's land to the water front.

A motion of Trustee Peck to defer action for a week received no second.

Senator Savage spoke against delaying action and Trustees Tilton moved that the application for the lease be granted as asked for. This motion of Tilton's was seconded by Trustee Martin and was adopted unanimously.

"SCORCHER" HENSLEY BREAKS A WHEEL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] George A. Hensley, who made a splendid record of 21h. 12m. between this city and Los Angeles in his White steam car, last week, returned today, but left his car ditched at San José, with a broken wheel. The accident was due to skidding on a wet street while going at a high speed. Beyond the broken wheel no damage was done. The car turned completely over, but both Hensley and his mechanic, Siegfried, escaped without a scratch.

Hensley said: "We were about a mile outside the center of town and going at a good rate when we struck the wet pavement. The car started to skid, the steering wheels cramped, and over we went. It was as pretty a capsize as ever happened to the car, and beyond a broken wheel, the car received hardly a scratch. I landed on my feet, and my mechanic tumbled out without injury."

PUBLIC SERVICE—OFFICIAL DOINGS.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Water Superintendent Mulholland yesterday placed a valuation of 30 cents on the flow of Sespe and Piru creeks, in Ventura county. El Hutch and the Examiner are advocating the purchase of these two streams instead of the Owens River.

In Judge Bordwell's court, two sons are suing their mother. Rudolph and Ferdinand Sarnow accuse their mother of tearing up their father's will, and Mrs. Sarnow-Porter indignantly denies the charge.

Amos Hercules, convicted of the murder at Redondo, was before Judge Wilbur yesterday on the insanity charge preferred by his brother. The petition was dismissed.

AT THE CITY HALL.

"THIRTY CENTS," THEIR CALIBER.

VALUE OF "EXAMINER'S" LATEST WATER PROJECT.

Would Substitute Piru Creek for Owens River—El Hutch is "in" on That Deal and Says It Is the Goods—"Not Enough Water for a Cow," Says Water Board President.

President Roosevelt conferred a great boon upon Los Angeles when he withdrew from settlement the government lands in the watershed of the Owens River.

Adding this land to the Sierra forest reserve gives ample and adequate protection to the proposed sources of the city's future water supply.

The slopes of Mt. Whitney and adjacent peaks are covered with timber. This is a valuable protection to the watershed. The trees retain the moisture in the ground for months longer than it will remain on barren slopes.

Findings of official surveys made by government and municipal engineers during the last ten years show that the Owens River and its tributaries have a mean flow of about 28,000 inches. These reports also show that there is not another watershed within 250 miles of Los Angeles that contains a flow of half that amount.

The project of taking this water from the slopes of the loftiest mountain range in the United States and conveying it in a mighty conduit almost to sea level is one of the greatest water enterprises ever attempted.

The feasibility of the enterprise has been determined only after years of careful surveying on the part of municipal and government engineers. The titanic task is considerably lightened by the contour of the land between here and Owens Lake. With the exception of a half dozen volcanic spurs of mountain ranges the entire route is along a well defined and marked course of some ancient stream. Engineers and geologists unite in the opinion that the waters of Mt. Whitney once found their way to the sea near the present site of San Pedro.

"EL HUTCH" AND THE EXAMINER

Most ludicrous of the attempts to knock the enterprise is the effort made by the Examiner yesterday to compare it with the task of bringing to Los Angeles the flow of Piru Creek, in Ventura county. The Examiner drags forth an old report submitted by a Council committee ten years ago to support the claim that the Piru Creek project is preferable to the Owens River enterprise.

The leading spirit in this report is one, El Hutch, who ten years ago occupied a position in the Council analogous to that held by Spook Howton at the present time.

"Why spend $23,000,000 for Owens River," wails the Examiner and El Hutch, "when you can get Piru Creek for three million and a half?"

The answer is found in the reports of the government engineers. Those reports show that in the territory now held by the city in the Owens Valley are twenty-three streams, each of which has a larger midsummer flow than that of the Piru Creek. Some of the larger streams have a flow equal to fifty times that of the Ventura county watercourse. A proportional valuation would fix the worth of the Owens River at over $150,000,000.

"That proposition of paying money to bring Piru Creek here is the most absurd one that I have heard since the quest of water started," asserted President Fay of the water board, yesterday. "Not so very long ago I was offered options on the waters of that creek. I made a personal inspection, and secured a report from an engineer. Why, there is not enough water in Piru Creek in the summer time to water a cow."

WORTHLESS SCHEME.

"During the last two or three summers the mean flow of Piru Creek has been as low as forty inches," said Superintendent Mulholland. "That water would not be worth 30 cents to Los Angeles. I know all about that watershed. I owned an orange ranch on the edge of it for several years. I sold it because there was not enough water to raise a crop. I dug the first ditch in that watercourse, and I ought to know something about the supply there.

"I do not say that the proposal to vote bonds for bringing the Owens River into San Fernando Valley cannot be defeated. It requires a two-thirds vote to carry the bonds. It may be that a systematic campaign of judicious lying can accomplish it. There are hundreds of people with alternate proposals to submit, brought forward as an excuse for opposing the Owens River project.

"But I do say, and I am willing to stake my reputation as an engineer on the statement that to defeat that bond issue means utter ruin for Los Angeles.

WE NEED THE WATER.

"This is hot a time to go running off after will-o-the-wisps. If some of the knockers would go to the headworks of our present system and learn for themselves how low our supply of water really is, they would realize that we must get more water here and get it very soon.

"There is not at the present time 100 inches of reserve water in the reservoirs.

"A week of 100 deg. temperature would bring on a water famine right now. These are not pleasant things to exploit, but they are facts, and the people who are to vote at that election must understand that they are facts.

IN FOUR YEARS.

"If we get the bond money we shall bring that water here in four years. It will not be longer than that, because by the time the next four years elapse it will be imperative that we have that water. I am going around now picking up a few inches of water here and there, running into lawsuits by so doing, but making an endeavor to piece it out until we can get that Owens River supply.

"This talk about discovering other sources of water is arrant nonsense. The government engineers have carefully inspected every watershed in Southern California and have measured the flow. Without a watershed there can be no constant flow of water. If the people will stop for a moment to think they will realize that there can be no new sources of water supply as yet undiscovered. The streams have all been measured and recorded just as the rainfall has been recorded.

"A man told me this afternoon that Mr. Hutchinson had approached him about that Piru and Sespe Creek water. Hutchinson said that the city should abandon the Owens River project and get our supply from Ventura county.

"Mr. Lippincott spent a year in the mountains of Ventura county seeking for a site for a reservoir. He has made a careful report to the government of the flow of the Ventura county creeks. There is simply no water there to be had. Right now the creeks in the Owens River Valley are running bank high, while Piru and Sespe Creeks are practically dry."

"I notice that Oscar Lawler has come forward with an estimate that bringing the water here will cost something like $50,000,000," said the reporter.

"I should judge that Mr. Lawler knows about as much about the cost of bringing that water here as he did a year ago about the cost of making brick," dryly observed the water superintendent.

"I know within less than a million dollars what it will cost to build that conduit. I am willing to stake my reputation on that. I can bring that water into the San Fernando Valley for $21,000,000. We do not expect to let contracts. The work will be done just as the water development now going on is done—by workmen employed direct by the department. We know the size of the conduit and the character of the soil in which it will be laid. Mr. Lawler's opinion is very plainly affected by the fact that he has suddenly been moved with a consuming desire to lease the water plant.

"I hear that he now claims to be about to come forward with another proposition to bring water here from an adjacent county. The volume of water of which he speaks stamps his scheme as impossible. There is no watershed near to Los Angeles that can yield so much water. Any one of a half dozen government reports will show that. Measuring the flow of streams and computing the yield of a watershed are exact sciences. There is no chance about it, and when some one comes forward with a marvelous tale of a great supply of water within easy walking distance of Los Angeles, either he has been deceived or he is deceiving."

ONLY $17,000,000 BONDS.

City Attorney Mathews has made a careful estimate of the probable cost of bringing the Owens River to the city's gates. "I feel assured," says the City Attorney, "that it will not be necessary to issue more than $17,000,000 of bonds, the issues will probably aggregate much less than that. The water department will be able to take the remainder of the money needed out of the water revenue fund. The department can also take care of the interest on the bonds."

Water commissioners express the utmost confidence in Mr. Mulholland's ability to complete the conduit in four years' time, provided he is not hampered by lack of funds. They say that the question of time will be governed largely by the number of men that the department will be able to put to work at one time.

WITHDRAWAL.

Withdrawal from settlement of the government lands in the watershed of the Owens River has, in the opinion of expert engineers, given adequate protection to the source of the city's proposed new water supply.

ONE MORE TRANSFER.

THAT SPRINKLING CONTRACT.

One more transfer of the street sprinkling contract has been recorded. This is the third change of ownership, and the contract has been in effect less than two months.

Ramish & Marsh are now the holders of the agreement with the city for furnishing teams and wagons for use in sprinkling the streets. The drivers are supplied by the Civil Service Commission.

The price named in the present contract is 40 cents a day less than that in the one which preceded it. Ramish & Marsh secured the transfer of the contract from Charles Stansbury.

Back from Vacations.

One by one Councilmen are returning to the city from their fortnight's vacation. Four legislators are now here and four more are expected in time to take part in the Council meeting next Monday. Hiller and Healy will probably return from the North Saturday. Chairman Smith of the Finance Committee is on his way to the Nevada gold fields. It was asserted yesterday that the budget for the present fiscal year will not be announced until he returns.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

WHEN A WILL IS NOT A WILL.

MOTHER AND TWO SONS DISAGREE AS TO FACTS.

Boys Claim Their Father Left a Will Which She Tore up, by Which They Have Claim to Property—She Avers That There Was No Will and the Property Is Her Own.

How is a court to determine whether an instrument was a will or not after it has been torn up into a thousand little bits? That is the difficult problem that is confronting Judge Bordwell.

August Sarnow died in February, 1896, and in rummaging among his effects a certain paper was discovered which the two sons, their wives and others say was a will. Mrs. Alwine Sarnow Porter says that it was nothing of the kind, and as she is the widow she thinks she ought to know.

But whatever the widow and the two sons, Ludolph G. and Ferdinand J. Sarnow, thought about the matter at the time, the mother is said to have told her boys that she would divide the property with them and they let things drift along on that supposition. But in due course Mrs. Sarnow married again and moved to San Francisco and the real estate in issue is about to be sold by her. The sons aver that the money part of their patrimony has already disappeared and that they want some kind of an accounting from their mother before the real estate is sold.

The sons are testifying that when the will was found in a drawer of their father's cabinet their mother read it over, and when she found that a one-third interest in the real estate and an insurance policy for $3000 had been left to her and each of the sons she became wrathy.

"The idea that he couldn't trust me to look out for my own children," she is alleged to have exclaimed, and thereupon tore the paper into fragments.

As opposed to this version of affairs Mrs. Sarnow-Porter contends that her husband never left any will whatever, and that the paper referred to by her sons as a will was merely a memorandum of certain property and containing an expressed wish that one of the boys was to have his watch and the other was to receive some other piece of property.

Mrs. Porter avers she was the beneficiary named in the insurance policy and got the money, and that the property now being disputed over—and which is located on Commercial street—was really her property and had been deeded to her, inasmuch as some of her separate funds had helped to pay for it.

In response to this Ludolph and Ferdinand say that in the will the real estate and the insurance money were each specifically named, and it was also set out specifically that each of the sons was to bear the proportionate amount of expense to be incurred in having the body of their father cremated.

Mrs. Sarnow-Porter has not had a chance to say anything about the cremation expenses, but both sides will renew the wrangle this morning before Judge Bordwell.

TO SAVE HERCULES.

INSANITY PETITION FILED.

George Hercules, brother of Amos Hercules, who was convicted of the murder of Timothy Segrue, arrived in the city after the trial of his brother had been concluded. He telegraphed ahead to have the trial delayed until he arrived, but Judge Smith would grant no continuance. Then the brother filed an insanity complaint against his brother, charging him with being an insane person, and the matter was passed upon by Judge Wilbur yesterday.

The brother set out in his petition that in 1898 his brother Amos had been injured by a freight train. After that he never was his normal self again, according to the statement of the brother.

Previously he had been quite a clever violinist, but after the accident he could not play a note. Then Amos opened a grocery store, but at times would clear the people out of the store and close up without any cause whatever. Coming to Los Angeles he posed as an expert carpenter, and held down a job just for half a day. Then he accepted a position as an expert photographer, and was given a set of films to develop. He proceeded to develop them in the bathroom, and spoiled the films. That let him out of that job.

These and other facts leading up to the wanton killing of Segrue without any cause were set out as proofs of the man's insane state of mind, but Judge Wilbur held that Amos Hercules had been discharged from the State Hospital at Patton to be tried on the murder charge; that he is now in charge of the Sheriff of the county, after a jury had passed upon his guilt of the crime charged, and in which the question of insanity was one of the matters adjudicated, and therefore Hercules could not be tried again before an insanity commission. The petition was ordered dismissed.

SENTENCE SET ASIDE.

KIFFORD ON PROBATION.

Two days ago J. W. Kifford was sentenced by Judge Smith to serve one year in the State's prison for forging a $10 check on the Central Bank. Since then facts reached the ear of the District Attorney that prompted him to make representations to the court, and yesterday Kifford was again lined up.

It had developed that Kifford is an Englishman, who had been educated at Cambridge, and had married in this country, of which he is a naturalized citizen. He had lived for a time at San Diego where his wife is at present, and had worked in the employ of N. E. May of this city. It was Mr. May's name that he forged to the check, but in the commission of the act there were some mitigating circumstances, and Mr. Fredericks represented to the court that in view of the defendant's previous character he thought that a period on probation would subserve the ends of justice and be equally beneficial to Kifford.

Judge Smith thereupon gave the young man some advice, and placed him on probation for one year, with orders to report to Probation Officer Dodds.

DEFENDANT WAS WILLING.

DID WRONG UNDER PRESSURE.

W. A. Williams was so exceedingly honest that he very nearly butted into the County Jail even if he missed the State's prison. He was saved from himself by Dist.-Atty. Fredericks.

Williams was arrested charged with having passed a fictitious check for $260, and he was willing to plead guilty and take his punishment. But the District Attorney refused to have that plea entered and Judge Smith ordered the man discharged from custody just as soon as he heard the facts of the case.

The defendant owed $260 to a man named R. W. Davis, and one day the latter invited his debtor to get into his buggy and together they talked over this matter. Davis demanded that Williams pay him right then and there, and all the representations of Williams that he had not got the money did not convince Davis that he was telling the truth. Davis refused to let the man get out of the buggy until the debt was settled, and under compulsion Williams drew his check for $260. When the check proved valueless and Davis discovered that he had been told the truth he was angry and prosecuted Williams.

CONDUCTOR'S REGRETS.

NOW DEMANDS DAMAGES.

On May 2 of last year R. M. Davis, an employé of the Pacific Electric Railway Company, took passage on a car at Thirty-eighth street, intending to go to Sixth and Main streets. Being unable to find a vacant seat, he stood up on the front platform, and came to grief when the car collided with a truck at Ninth and San Pedro streets. He claims to have been thrown through the front end of the car, his head striking the wheel of the truck and crushing the skull. He was picked up and removed to the Receiving Hospital and from there taken to the Sisters' Hospital at the instance of his employers.

But Davis had an additional cause of complaint, averring that for twenty-four hours he lay without his wounds being dressed, and until his friends came along and removed him from the hospital.

By July 6 Davis had recovered so that he could get down town and it is alleged that in the course of his peregrinations he ran across Fowler, the claim agent of the Pacific Electric Railway Company, who wanted him to sign a release to the company for all damages arising out of the accident. Davis alleges that Fowler took him into the Burbank saloon and there gave him several drinks of whisky so that he was in a fuddled condition. Then he was taken up to Fowler's office and told that he could not be allowed to resume work while this matter was pending, but that with it out of the way he could turn to as soon as he liked, and furthermore Fowler is credited with having stated that the company would see to it that Davis has a position for the remainder of his life.

Upon these representations Davis concedes that he signed a release and Fowler handed over to him $150. And then Davis returned to work as a conductor with the Pacific Electric. He alleges that for from ten to fifteen years he had served with the old Traction and the Los Angeles railway companies and he had always proven himself competent. But his injuries were of such a nature that he was debarred from properly executing his duties and was discharged for incompetency.

Thinking the matter over, Davis determined to rescind that contract and offered to return the $150 to the company with interest, but the company refused to accept. That action was merely preliminary to the bringing of a suit for $30,000 yesterday, in which Davis claims that when he made the contract of release with Fowler he was not in any condition to contract, and that a portion of the skull is pressing upon his brain, so that at times he is insane, and that he will have to submit to an operation in order to have the pressure removed.

S.P.C.A. ATTACKED.

HAS IT LEGAL EXISTENCE?

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals may be deprived of its very legal life, its privileges under the law reduced to a minimum and its effectiveness in the prosecutions of the class which heretofore have come under its ban almost wholly removed in the event that a proceeding begun yesterday before Judge Smith in Department One of the Superior Court results as present indications point that it will. That is not the worst feature of it, either. The attack upon existing statutes applicable to such cases may result in removing the legal interdiction upon such brutal so-called sports as cock fighting, so long as they are conducted in private.

The matter came up in an application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of F. N. Schofield, who last week was fined $75 in a Pasadena court for having been a spectator at the cock fight on the San Fernando road last year during a raid upon which Christian Frey was shot and killed by Humane Officer Henderson.

There are a number of these cases which have been held in abeyance until now because of the murder case, but recently the society showed a disposition to press the prosecutions. Thereupon twelve attorneys, representing eighteen defendants who are notoriously and even admittedly guilty of having been present at that tragic fight, got together and decided to attack the law upon which is based the society's supposed authority.

Attorney W. W. Wideman was selected to make the argument and yesterday he so convinced Judge Smith that the latter was disposed to grant the writ forthwith. The court released Schofield upon his own recognisance until Monday, at which time Dist.-Atty. Fredericks will reply. The District Attorney, however, is said to have privately admitted that he cannot successfully combat the attack and that all of the cases must go as this one is expected to go.

Attorney Wideman went for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on constitutional grounds, in that the act under which the society operates charges an offense that cannot be made an offense under the law. He pointed out that an accidental spectator would be subject to arrest by the officers of the society. Then, too, it was contended that the society is not entitled under the laws of this State to claim the exemptions granted to religious, benevolent and such bodies. As the society was outside the list, the act was unconstitutional because it was class legislation.

In passing upon the matter, however, Judge Smith took up only the one point—that the complaint did not set out any cause of action. The law in the matter, the court pointed out, was that not only must the general charge be made, but that it must be alleged that the cock fight—or whatever it may have been—was witnessed by the person charged for "amusement" or for "a consideration." The absence of one or the other in this particular complaint, Judge Smith said he thought was fatal.

PHELPS GIVES BAIL.

CLAIMS ARREST IS SPITEWORK.

George W. Phelps, agent at San Francisco of the State Life Insurance Company of Indianapolis, was brought back to this city and arraigned before Justice Pierce yesterday to answer a charge of manipulating stock of twin corporations in which he is interested. He gave cash bail and will be examined today in the Township Court.

Attorneys E. A. Meserve and Shirley Ward are representing Phelps and indorse the claim set up by their client that the charge is the outcome of spitework, and has no foundation in fact; that it is merely an effort to bring pressure to bear in a civil dispute with the aid of a criminal process.

It is asserted by Phelps and his friends that a minor stockholder in this city claims that there should be 5000 shares of stock in the treasury of the State Life Insurance Company, and there being a deficit Phelps is responsible for the shortage. As a matter of fact, Phelps's contracts prove that he never claimed that more than 3000 shares were so set aside. As for the assertion that Phelps ever offered inducements to policy holders of the company, unknown to the company, it is branded as false by the company officials, who concede that everything done by Phelps in the establishment of agencies had their sanction.

It appears that owing to representations that have yet to be proven either true or false, some ten or a dozen stockholders in Los Angeles gave their power of attorney to an attorney to demand of Phelps that their stock be redeemed. No results were obtained and ultimately one stockholder named O'Day secured a warrant for the arrest of Phelps.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

DUPUIS DIVORCE. Emma S. Dupuis brought suit against Frank B. Dupuis and then thought better of it when her husband filed a cross-complaint. The wife defaulted and the husband was granted a decree by Judge Monroe yesterday, on the ground of desertion. The parties married in 1901. One night Dupuis came from his work to find the house looted of the furniture and the following legend inscribed on a bit of paper, which was pinned to the portieres: "Lost forever. Emma."

IN INVALID'S CHAIR. Mrs. Alberta Plumb was wheeled into Judge Monroe's courtroom yesterday, her suit against the Los Angeles Railway Company to recover $50,000 as damages being on trial before a jury. On March 29 the plaintiff was injured as a result of being thrown to the ground while alighting from a car at Fourth street and Broadway. It is claimed that there was a fracture of the upper left femur, paralysis of the abdominal region, and injury to the spine, but the company claims that if such injuries did result they were the consequence of plaintiff's carelessness. Through a technical omission in the complaint the case was continued until September 14.

INCREASE STOCK. The American Olive Company has filed its certificate of increase of capital stock from $100,000 to $300,000.

DRUGS AND MEDICINES. The Wittenburg Pharmacal Company has incorporated with a capital stock of $40,000, of which $25,500 has been subscribed. The directors are: E. J. Wittenberg, Helen Wittenberg, M. C. Neuner, E. W. Pascoe, Los Angeles; and W. G. Wing, Corona.

PRINTING COMPANY. James W. Long Company has incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000, of which $300 has been subscribed. The directors are J. W. Long, Max Matuskiwis and O. Lawler, all of Los Angeles.

MORE REAL ESTATE. Southwestern Realty Company has incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000, of which $500 has been subscribed. The directors are E. K. Potter, E. S. Lovett, G. R. Horton, F. E. Linn and D. Parker, all of Los Angeles.

CONCRETE FOR HOUSES. The Reenforced Concrete Construction Company has incorporated with a capital stock of $500,000, of which $50,000 has been subscribed. The directors are J. C. Jones, Waynesboro, Ind.; A. L. Bronson and T. F. Osborn, Los Angeles.

LOTS AND HOUSES. The Franklin Improvement Company has incorporated with a capital stock of $75,000, of which $7000 has been subscribed. The directors are C. W. Franklin, G. M. Hammell, J. E. Good, H. F. Metcalf, Pasadena; and F. B. Colver, Los Angeles.

ELECTRIC SUPPLIES. Hudson & Co. has incorporated with a capital stock of $75,000, of which $2400 has been subscribed. The directors are C. C. Hudson, V. H. Craig L. E. Rhoden, E. B. Owens, Jr., Pasadena; E. B. Owens, Glendora.

JESSUP CASE SETTLED. Mrs. Ida B. Jessup will no longer be interfered with in administering upon the estate of her late husband, William L. Jessup, who died at San Diego on May 13. Relatives of the husband contended that their brother had never married, but on investigation evidence was forthcoming that a marriage had taken place in the East in a State where a mere declaration before witnesses was sufficient to establish the contract. The estate is valued at about $5000.

MRS. BLOESER'S DIVORCE. When William A. Bloeser was running a saloon at Avalon the woman who later became Mrs. Hattie C. Bloeser was running a prosperous boarding-house. The parties were married in 1899, and for a time all was happiness. Then a separation took place in a blaze of verbal pyrotechnics. In filing her divorce proceeding the proof was made only on the ground of habitual intoxication. A brother of the husband corroborated the wife that her husband drank until he could not attend to business. The decree was granted by Judge Bordwell.

KIT BRASHEAR LEADS LEAGUE.

VERSATILE LOOLOO BELIEVES MARRIAGE A SUCCESS.

Batted Just Below the Three Hundred Mark, and Was Well up in Stolen Bases—Charlie Irwin and George Hildebrand Both Show as High-class Ball Players.

If someone were to line up that aggregation of baseball brains and beauty which keeps Frank Dillon awake o' nights and fire at the bunch the oft-asked and seldom-answered question, "is marriage a failure?" it is John D. Rockefeller to a cracked cantaloupe that one Norman Brashear, to diamond fame not unknown, would arise with a loud and emphatic denial.

Never since he came to the Coast has the burly blonde who plays utility roles under Dillon done such splendid all-around work as that which began when he filled Chimmie Toman's shoes during the king's illness, and only ended when the last game was played.

Brashear leads the league in batting with a percentage just under .300. Those who topped him played in too few games to be considered seriously. In base running the versatile Looloo proved ever present with the goods and his fielding at all times was far above par. Headwork is not measured in mathematics, but if it were, "Brash" would be mentally batting well over .300.

So no wonder Brashear thinks marriage is a success. In this, his first year of matrimonial bliss, he signally distinguished himself at all parts of the game.

Charlie Irwin and George Hildebrand of the San Francisco team both did high-class work on the paths and with the bat during the first half. Hildie leading all the Pacific Coasters in stolen bases with thirty-nine to his credit.

The following table of averages will shed some light upon the relative merit of the players during the first half of the pennant season just closed:

HARDEST TASK YET FOR FAST PARSONS.

INTEREST centers around the track meet to be pulled off on Saturday by the Pacific Athletic Association in the stadium at the Lewis and Clark Exposition.

Charles Parsons, the crack Southern California sprinter, will enter the 100-yard, the 220-yard and probably the 440-yard dashes, and much is expected for the incomparable runner, who never has lost a dash in the "finals" of an athletic meet.

The best amateurs from all parts of the country will struggle for the amateur championship of the world, and some splendid records may be expected.

The consensus of opinion among local amateur sportsmen is that "Charley" should do his best under the favorable circumstances with which he is surrounded.

Some, however, believe that Coach Holmes is the only man who can force the southern wonder into his fastest stride. Parsons was practically brought out under the tutelage of the U.S.C. coach.

Parsons is known to have a weak stomach, and if this necessary organ should fail to be in concert pitch the man will not enter a race.

In a letter written to Coach Holmes yesterday, Parsons says:

"I am in good form and expect to win both of the shorter dashes. There are some speedy men in the 440-yard dash and I hardly think I will run the third race, as the effort will be too much. My stomach is in good shape and my general health is fine."

Commenting on the letter, Holmes said yesterday:

"Parsons is evidently in good form and should give a splendid account of himself. I believe he will win the 100 yards and will easily take the 220-yard dash. He is right about the third race, as there is little sense in any man trying to capture three races in such an important meet."

There is cut out for Parsons on Saturday the hardest task of his life. He has met some of the best and has defeated all comers, but in the coming meet he will run with Schick and with Archie Hahn, and both men are among the speediest amateurs in the United States. They have both covered 100 yards in a shade less than ten seconds.

Holmes is of the opinion that in order to win the 100, ten seconds must be beaten, and that the winning time in the 220 yards must be 0:22 4-5.

Parsons has been caught twice in the shorter distance in 9 4-5s. His admirers declare he is good for better than 22s. in the 220. Basing their judgment on his past remarkable performances, they are confident that he will win.

There are several men in training in the north for the 440 yards who are doing the quarter in 50s. flat. This is fast, and the belief is entertained that the distance will be made in something near 49s.

The Portland stadium has been leveled and cindered for the Saturday trials, and the curve has been enlarged. The condition of the track at the time of the Y.M.C.A. events precluded all possibility of making fast time. It is expected that at least one of the world's records, that of the 440-yard dash, will be broken.

OLD-TIMERS PLAY AGAIN.

Mrs. Farquhar and Bumiller Still in the Game.

Cecil Henry Captures Title in Junior Class.

Doubles Promise Some Fast Matches for Today.

Swinging in her fast forehand smashes with all the strength and accuracy that marked the champion she once was, Mrs. Farquhar—or shall we call her by the name we knew best and loved most—Miss Marion Jones—came back to her own yesterday and showed several hundred tennis enthusiasts how the game was played in these parts a decade ago.

The universal verdict was that nearly everything else than tennis had changed for the better. But those splendidly placed drives—there is only one tribe of girls in this wide, wide world that could do much better, and they spell their names with an S.

With the veteran Art Bumiller as her partner—that same Bumiller who in other days used to stand Lew Freeman on his head with others who have since become great, Mrs. Farquhar had but little to complain of her "support," as the professional baseball pitchers say. What came Arthur's way was for the major part well taken care of, and when he missed it was easy to see how and why.

Some misgivings were expressed when the veteran pair came out to play against sturdy young Gowan and that left-handed queen of the courts, Eleanor Peralta. Both were in condition, and had been putting up some high-class tennis.

The junior team started like habitual winners, and took the first few games in rather hollow fashion, before the old-timers could "get a-going." All at once Mrs. Farquhar and Bumiller struck their game, and from that time on there was little else to the match.

The first set was 6-4, and the youngsters won nearly all their games at the start. Mrs. Farquhar showed a splendidly placed drive, shooting the ball past Miss Peralta down the alley, and occasionally sending in a cross-court smash that seldom failed to score her a point.

Bumiller at the net showed his old-time headwork, and was very nearly up to grade in execution, being by no means as far off his game as one might have expected from the length of time he has been out of commission in local tournament circles.

Miss Peralta and Bumiller had several pretty rallies at the net, in which the former champion usually triumphed, but not without having several of his drives shot back with interest. Both sets were keen, and replete with brilliant play, all the strokes of the game being exemplified in their best form.

HENRY A CHAMPION.

Not all the good things of the day came off in doubles, though most did. In the final round of junior singles Cecil Henry finally took the measure of Huntington Barker after the most stubborn tussle of the tourney thus far.

Young Barker was a game uphill fighter, and for a time had Henry on the run. The first set went to Henry in hollow fashion, his service proving hard for Barker to master, score 6 love. In the second Barker rallied strongly, and made Henry play twenty games before victory was his. The third set was but little less hard fought, though Barker rather went to pieces toward the finish, as Henry began putting in his drive with considerable regularity, not to say dire effect—6-3 summarized the final rub.

Rising, Bundy, Sinsabaugh and Varial are the timber which is to yield a Southern California champion in singles this year. Each came through and qualified yesterday for semi-finals, which probably will occur this afternoon. A better matched lot of players would indeed be hard to pick, and some pretty contests are assured.

Rising in the morning had little trouble with Young, though the lad put up the usual careful, "get 'em all back" game that he learned from his father, who in his day was a Southern California champion of note. Bundy hooked a hard fish in Angier, the Georgia State champion, and had need for help on several occasions, but stayed with it in his usual plucky uphill style, finally pulling out. In the deciding set Angier at once time had Bundy 6-4 and 40 love, but Santa Monica Tommy came through with colors flying—a situation that nearly rivals Abbot Kinney's now famous game with Joe Daily. The scores, 7-5, 3-6, 7-5, tell their own story.

Sinsabaugh and Variel disposed respectively of Keeney and Archie Way in matches that were far from barren of interest, Way putting up his usual careful, heady game, and only succumbing to Variel's dashing game after a protracted tussle, in which most of the scores went to deuce.

The feature of the ladies' singles was the meeting of the Sutton sisters, wherein Miss Florence defeated Mrs. Bruce two sets in 6-3 each. The girls have played together until they anticipate each others' strokes and long rallies are quite the rule.

Men's doubles, always a show event of any tournament, are very open this year. Hart and Overton did high-class work yesterday and are picked as the team that has to be beaten. Bundy and Rising, Variel and Sinsabaugh, all seasoned teams, are by no means out of the running yet, and some splendid doubles tennis may be expected before the event is settled finally.

The ladies started play in doubles, and ran off a few matches. The event will continue this morning, and probably will go to the finals before night.

Arrangements are completed for the annual tennis ball, which will be given to the players and their friends by the Ocean Park Country Club Saturday night in the clubhouse and on the courts. Those who desire to go are requested to secure their tickets from the tournament managers. No admission is charged, the arrangement being made to enable the management to ascertain how much of a crowd to provide for.

The day's summaries:

Open singles, fourth round: Rising beat Young, 6-0, 6-2; Bundy beat Angier, 7-5, 3-6, 7-5; Sinsabaugh beat Keeney, 6-2, 6-4; Variel beat Way, 6-3, 6-2.

Ladies' singles: Miss Dobbins beat Miss Peralta, 6-2, 6-0; Florence Sutton beat Mrs. Bruce, 6-3, 6-3.

Pen Points

If a girl never marries she becomes a disappointed old maid. If she does marry she merely becomes disappointed in another way.

It is getting to be now that when we see in the newspapers a dispatch with a New York date line on it, we are ashamed to read it.

Rear-Admiral Evans's fleet is off for the coast of Maine to shoot at targets. Isn't that getting within earshot of the peace echoes?

The Pope says he likes all Americans, whether they are Catholics or not. Here's to you, Holy Father, and we wish you the same.

Linevitch says he stands ready to land on Oyama like a Texas cyclone any time he gets the word. We wish him well, but we have our doubts.

It is related of Chauncey Depew that when he was a boy it was his ambition to be a blacksmith. But he turned out to be a politician, and now look at him.

The newspapers are now calling the Kaiser "The German Michael." Next it will be Mike, and then the Kaiser will have to raise a war or be laughed off the stage.

A fund is to be raised to erect a monument to the victims of the Bennington disaster. It's a poor American who wouldn't give a dollar to that kind of a fund.

If you want to know Who's Hoo, we can now tell you. He is the Chinese Minister to Russia, and by spelling his name backward you can hardly tell the difference.

Now that John D. Rockefeller has gone into the manufacture of carbon, newspaper men will be able to abuse him in duplicate with material furnished by himself.

There isn't so much in the world to kick about now as there used to be, but the number of kickers does not seem to diminish pro rata, per kick, or any other way.

Mr. Harriman's movements are a good deal like those of some of our California rivers. He disappears but bobs up again at another place, and never stops going.

Napoleon said the world would some day be either all Cossack or all republic. But he was mistaken. It will be bossed by petticoats and the time is not far off, either.

The more one studies human nature the more of a mystery does it become. There's a man now in New York who has an ambition to be elected president of the Equitable.

There are very few people who fail to become angered when a policeman orders them to "Get off the grass" in a public park. And it's no wonder. It is not the policeman's grass.

Gen. Linevitch telegraphs that the report that his flanks have been turned is all tommy rot. They are still the same color, and a Japanese curry-comb has never touched them yet.

It cannot be that Mr. Rockefeller's reason for going into the carbon business is that he will then be able to make a copy of everything. According to most reports that's the last thing in the world he would want to do.

Each of the five leading powers have determined to build the strongest navy in existence. If they all succeed, and a fight breaks out, it will take the sea more than a day to give up its dead when Gabriel blows the trumpet.

In order to become a philanthropist a man must first make a fortune. But the chances are that when he has gone through the money game his soul has become too much warped to give a whoop whether his neighbors need any help or not.

If those two little lemon-colored men and those two big-whiskered Muscovites fail to agree at Portsmouth we shall not have a long wait to know whether Linevitch or Oyama are lying about the situation as the same exists in the vicinity of Gunshu Pass.

A Mr. Wooster of New York, lately connected with that "Fads and Fancies" business, says, in order to vindicate himself, "he will spend every dollar he has on earth." But perhaps he has a few dollars not on the earth to fall back on as a reserve fund.

Germany is reported as now convinced that she has been lading out too much oratory and not building enough war vessels. Zu viel sprechen und nicht schiffen genug. In other words our Teuton friends realize that it is the gun behind the talk that counts.

A diplomat sent to represent one nation at the capital of another is called a Minister. A man who preaches the gospel from an authorized pulpit is also called a minister. But if the latter poured booze down himself at banquets, and lied every time he drew his breath the way the former does, the latter would be out of a job so quick it would make his head swim.

BUSINESS.

Stocks of companies dealing with the treatment of metals and ores showed a notable concord in movement on the New York Stock Exchange, and rumors have been current of a consolidation of interest in that direction. The coalers also attracted interest, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western going up to 438. The tone of the market at the close was heavy. A firm undertone in the Chicago wheat market developed late in the session. The close was firm with September at 84½@84⅝.

OUR RELATIONS WITH CHINA.

Since the Chinese merchants, through their guilds, have set out in earnest to boycott American trade, there are three points of view from which the subject is to be considered. Does the boycott arise from a sense of injustice on the part of the Chinese people? If so, can Americans, irrespective of its effect on trade, remedy the wrong? And finally, what is the present volume of our trade with China?

The answer to the first question is to be sought in a review of the treaties which have been negotiated between America and China, and a history of the manner in which the clauses referring to immigration have been enforced. From 1876 to 1892 when the exclusion treaty was promulgated the average gains per year of arrivals from China over departures was 11,000, and the total Chinese population in America according to the census of 1890 was 107,000. They were mainly in California and formed a Chinese colony in each city and town.

For some years after the treaty was in force large numbers of Chinamen succeeded in evading its provisions, and this led to complaint for its non-enforcement in a proper manner. The result was that greater vigilance was exercised, and in some instances unduly harsh methods employed by the officers of the immigration bureau. The intelligent and educated Chinaman resented what he deemed as indignities, and his government has magnified them into a grievance. President Roosevelt, believing that every man who approaches our shores should be treated with respect, has ordered a modification of the methods pursued by the examiners, and it is presumed that this order will have a beneficial effect on the situation.

But the roused sentiment of the Chinese may demand a revocation of the treaty barring the Chinese masses, in which case our government will have to consider what policy it is best to pursue. It will have to review our commercial relations with that power and see how our commerce would be affected, and it will have to ascertain what would be the result of opening our doors to unrestricted immigration on our industrial interests and on the condition of American workmen.

Regarding our trade with China the statistics show that that country is absorbing a large amount of our raw products, and also some millions of dollars worth of manufactured goods. In 1902 our total exports to China amounted to $24,531,118, and our imports from that country were $21,055,830. Our imports the following year included $6,974,643 of tea and $8,932,879 of silk. The same year we exported to China $13,639,860 of cotton cloth, and $1,866,189 of mineral oils. About two-thirds of the tea consumed in this country comes from China.

Our capitalists have other interests in China however. The China Development Company was first established in Belgium, the shares being divided among various nations of Europe and America, but later they were bought up by an American firm and are now entirely in the hands of American capitalists. They include a railway concession from Canton to Hankow, traversing the most densely populated portion of China. Its construction cannot fail to revive dormant energies and enlarge and extend the scope of Chinese enterprises in the near future.

It should not be overlooked that China is now experiencing a great awakening, not unlike that which revitalized Japan a generation ago. Fifty years ago there were only seven newspapers issued in the great empire of China. Today there are 157 newspapers and periodicals, some of which have an enormous circulation. About 1100 books on science, education, agriculture, economics, and military subjects, have recently been printed in the Chinese language.

Colleges have been founded in fifteen provincial capitals to teach Western learning. In Japan alone there are 1755 Chinese students engaged in special studies, besides many more in America and Europe. The whole nation is being roused to new life, and it will mean in the immediate future that we have to deal with a new and great power, worthy of a great past, and alive to the magnificent possibilities of its exhaustless resources and of its vast population.

CHICAGO'S "MURDER SQUAD."

For some years past the city of Chicago has had the unsavory reputation of shielding the largest number of criminals to be found in any city of the world. Chicago has richly deserved the opprobrium of this bad eminence, and it is a creditable thing to Chicago that at last there is a well-defined movement to get rid of it. The means by which it is proposed to accomplish this highly desirable end is the addition to the police department of eight expert detectives, to be known and designated as the "murder squad."

From this nomenclature, the inference might be drawn that the new squad will be sent forth to murder. But it is not so. The "murder squad" will not go forth to commit murder, but to run down and arrest, if possible, some of the many murderers who infest the Windy City.

The task will not be an easy one. It will require all the professional skill of the trained detectives who are to be placed up against it. So long has Chicago been a rendezvous for thugs, murderers, thieves and other criminals, that it will require no ordinary array of detective strength and skill to seek out the offenders in their places of hiding, and to secure evidence which will bring them to the bar of justice. From the days of the Haymarket tragedies to the present time, Chicago has been a hotbed of iniquity, a breeding-place for crime, a rendezvous for criminals. The leopard cannot readily change his spots.

"Murderers are to be enmeshed in skillfully prepared evidence; police magistrates will be forced to drop any show of leniency; gamblers and dance halls are to be weeded out, and labor thugs dispersed," declares a sanguine dispatch from Chicago, relating the good things which are to be accomplished under the new regime. It is to be hoped—most sincerely to be hoped—that all the good results anticipated from the organization of the "murder squad" will be realized. But the job is a bigger one than is probably realized by the Chicago police authorities.

At all events, the "murder squad" will do well to begin operations, first of all, upon the numerous labor-union thugs and murderers scattered through the highways and the byways of Chicago. To clean out this particular cesspool will absorb their active energies for a long time to come. And when union thuggery and murder shall have been wiped out in Chicago, it will be found that a very large proportion of the total crime in the city was wiped out at the same time.

INSURRECTION—THE LIBRARY WAR.

The trouble over the Public Library does not subside; on the contrary, it grows, and grows, and grows. The matter is important, and concerns many people, but it is not important enough to absorb the unanimous and continuous attention of the entire community, to the exclusion of far graver matters. It ought to be settled, settled soon, and settled right.

A summary of the situation develops the following briefly recited facts:

1. Trouble arose between the Library Board and one of its employes, the Librarian, Miss Jones. She was charged by the board with insubordination, "uppishness" and other offenses, and after more or less hair pulling was dismissed from office, the board properly claiming the right to discipline, and to dismiss, if need be. The dismissal was accomplished by the conjoint action of Directors Dockweiler, Trueworthy, Marshutz and Wright, Director Rodman being absent and arrayed on the other side. The action of the majority was concurred in, so they declare, by the Mayor, after numerous conferences held between him and the four directors named.

2. Thereupon arose a great outcry against the action of the board; the outcry coming mainly and naturally from a number of good and zealous women, who stoutly championed the cause of one of their sex. Believing her to have been wronged, they proceeded to make things hum.

3. An attempt at a public investigation followed, but it was a barren affair; or, to be more precise, it was no investigation at all. The effort of the Mayor to secure a hearing was thwarted by the claim of the accused directors, through their attorney, that the Mayor was attempting to sit in judgment in a case where he was himself particeps criminis, so to speak.

4. At this hearing the Mayor himself admitted, in effect, that he had concurred in the dismissal of Miss Jones and in the appointment of Charles F. Lummis as her substitute. So the indictment was "squashed," as it were, and the impotent effort to rip up and overthrow the action of the board in dismissing Miss Jones was sought to be relegated to the limbo and the musty loft of things forgotten. But it refuses to relegate.

5. Then came more outcry, with charges and countercharges. The accused directors attempted to justify themselves, the Mayor defended his course, and all of them rushed into the papers to exploit what had already become a binding and exceedingly unpleasant situation. The accused directors alleged that the Mayor, after joining and justifying them in their course, changed front, reversed himself and went over to the side of the accusers, mainly composed of representative club women of the city. The Mayor retorted by justifying himself, declaring that he had been deceived, and giving his reasons for condemning the action of the four directors and dismissing them from office.

The dismissed members stand fast, declare that they are ready for a sure-enough investigation before a competent tribunal, and that they are able to justify. Both sides are appealing to the public, and will appeal to the Council when it assembles—the one faction asking that body to approve the action of the Mayor in dismissing the Library Board, and the dismissed members appealing to the same body to do directly the opposite by sustaining them and condemning the Mayor for his "firing" act.

So the matter stands, awaiting the action of the Council. That body has shown a strong disposition to keep out of the melee; it positively refused to participate with the Mayor in the attempted investigation which fell down. The Councilmen are wary, and they may maintain their attitude of non-interference by refusing entirely to consider the case when it is brought before them by the Mayor; or, they may act, take the adverse view, and leave the accused Library Directors in office. Thus the status quo will have been restored, and the burning business brought to a conclusion.

But, on the contrary, enough members of the Council may possibly be converted to the McAleer-Jones-women's club combination to secure a majority for the approval of the Mayor's action in dismissing the offending directors. If so, the contestants will lose, the situation will be reversed, a new board of Library Directors will be appointed, and possibly a new Librarian will be summoned to the front to take the place of Lummis. It is fair to presume that the object of the fight on the dismissed directors is to reverse all that had been done by them—to not only send them adrift and secure a new Board of Directors, but a new Librarian as well.

This summary of the situation brings us to a condition that must be confronted. It raises several pertinent questions which will have to be considered seriously:

1. Giving full consideration to the earnest contention of the good women who have arrayed themselves on the side of their deposed sister, was the dismissal by the Mayor of the four directors justified, under the circumstances, they having displaced the former Librarian for cause, and, in so doing, acted within their legal powers?

2. If Miss Jones was dismissed without a hearing (which the board denies) can the directors themselves be dismissed without a hearing—without trial or conviction?

3. Leaving other questions aside for the moment, is it expedient for the executive of the city to summarily dismiss from office members of a public board serving without pay, and presumably for the public good—to dismiss them without grave reason, and upon sufficient charges, after those charges shall have been examined and sustained?

4. Is it expedient, or inexpedient, for the Council to lend its countenance to an act done by the executive without the Council's previous concurrence, against officials who have been once confirmed by that body as the official approving body in such cases by law provided?

5. Finally, is the whole thing worth while? Shall we have petticoats and peace—or corduroys and war? Where are we "at?"

FROM THE HILLS.

The pleasant paths your feet had blessed
Beneath our changing sky
The flower-swept brae, the flame-struck moor

The little linnet's plaintive pipe,
The throstle's cheery call
That charmed your soul through days of bliss
In glens of Donegal.

Forsook the fond hills of your heart
Where love's bright bow found birth;
Above all things on earth.

But now your linnet always lilts,
Your mavis ever trills
Where you uplift a radiant face
Amid eternal hills.

Through mazes of unending bliss
Down glens of joy you glide—
Would God your hand were held in mine
And I walked by your side!

Happy Kansas Girls.

In several counties of Kansas the new census returns show that the men greatly outnumber the women. This probably accounts for the proud and imperious disdain of the Kansas maidens whose chances in the matrimonial table of expectancy are far brighter than in other and less favored communities. In one county there is a man and seven-eighths to every girl. It is said the girls of this county have developed the haughty eye and marble heart along with the straight front and mincing glide. To the sighing swains of this locality they give the frapped salutation in the security of knowing that if they fail to land a traveling man or a college harvest hand they can always rely upon the local supply of eligibles.—[Kansas City Journal.

THE RAMBLER.

A True New Woman.

Margaret was spending the summer at her mother's cottage in Santa Monica, but Roberts was compelled to grill over his desk in the city through all the hot blasts of July and August. Yet he managed to run down once or twice a week for a few hours. These brief and blessed occasions they passed together on the beach. Their engagement was still so new that they had not begun to cease from marveling at their mutual good fortune.

Margaret had been reading aloud from a little blue-and-white gold book of lyrics, and Roberts had leaned back in contented indolence to listen, his head propped on his interlocked hands to keep the sand out of his brown curls. At last Margaret closed the book and let her eyes wander dreamily toward the wavering lines of the shore, where

"The stately ships go on

As Roberts looked fondly at the pure, straight profile which was turned toward him, a few lines of one of the lyrics she had just read came back to him. He repeated them under his breath, so softly that Margaret did not hear:

"A perfect woman, nobly planned,
To warn, to comfort and command;
And yet a spirit still, and bright
With something of an angel light."

Roberts picked up the book, for he wanted to refresh his memory with all the lines of that beautifully wrought lyric of Wordsworth's, "A True Woman." Then, moved by a little imp of mischief, he groped for the pencil and note book tucked away in one of his pockets, and began to scribble with a hop-skip-and-jump haste.

"What are you doing, dear?" Margaret asked, waking from her day dream. She leaned forward and peered over his shoulder, brushing his ear with her soft cheek.

"Writing a 'pome,'" Roberts answered, smiling joyously. "Guess I'll send it to Puck or Life. They may remit me as much as two-fifty for it—who knows? I'll call it 'A New Woman.' Listen!

"She was the phantom that affrights
When first she screamed for woman's rights;
A lively apparition, sent
To be a platform's ornament;
Her eyes as scars of high-light glare,
Like high-lights, too, her dusty hair;
But all things else about her drawn
From hay-time and the fearful lawn;
A prancing shape, an image gray,
To flaunt, to startle, and to flay.

"I saw her upon nearer view,
A spook, and yet a woman new!
Her household notions slight and free—"

"Well, that's as far as I've gotten. How do you like it?"

He smiled up into Margaret's eyes, but received no answering smile in return. Indeed, the girl's averted face was unusually serious.

"I'm afraid I don't like it—very much," she said slowly. "Although," she added conscientiously, "it's not without much cleverness. I hope, I do hope they won't accept it!"

"No fear of that," laughed Roberts, though he turned rather red. "But what's the matter, Margaret? Have I offended you in any way? Surely this—"

"You have done nothing to offend me," said Margaret hurriedly. "But I want you to promise me never to finish or to try to publish that parody. Will you?"

"Certainly, if you wish it, dear. It's all nonsensical tommyrot, anyway, and no sane editor would look at it twice."

"Thank you," said Margaret, taking a deep breath. "Knowing your deep respect for women in general, and your broad-minded views on the subject of the so-called new woman in particular—who is not new at all really—I could not bear to have you write a parody on her. The new woman has been laughed at quite enough already, and you know as well as I do that she doesn't deserve ridicule. She is misunderstood on all sides. Then why should you, who understand her and appreciate her true worth, help to make her difficult path even more difficult? If that parody were published, this is exactly what you would be doing. You'd be retarding the development of the higher and nobler womanhood."

"Surely," Roberts urged in bewilderment, "you are exaggerating, dearest. A silly parody couldn't have any effect beyond making a few foolish people laugh a little—and I'm afraid mine couldn't do even this!"

"Every force exerted has its results," Margaret went on earnestly, "either for good or evil. They might not be very great, but they would be there. And ridicule, as you know, is a keen and destructive weapon. Dear, I want you to 'play fair' in everything you do, for I know that you have a keen sense of justice. It's never right to assume an attitude you don't believe in—when, in fact, you hold another opinion entirely."

"I suppose not," said Roberts thoughtfully. "Therefore," he added, smiling, "though I don't quite share your belief in the devastating power of the press, or that my pebble can stay the wheel of progress, I'll still promise to keep this effusion out of public print. If I see an editor after me, I'll cut and run."

This time Margaret smiled back at him. "Nobly spoken, my knight of the twentieth century," she said. "And here is your reward for fidelity to truth and justice." She held up two small pieces of pasteboard. "Tickets for the Venice Assembly tonight," she explained. "You shall hear Miss Shaw speak on the interesting subject of 'The New Man.' I insist upon your going!"

Roberts threw back his head and laughed and laughed. "Margaret," he said, with dancing eyes and twitching lips, when he at last found breath for speech, "I want to quote Wordsworth to you—just once:

"That's you, my true new woman!"

So they went together to the lecture. They disdained the electric car, for the sea had things to tell them. As they walked beside it, under the benignant twinklings of the coming stars, it spoke to them of hope, and love, and helpful companionship that was destined to endure through a long and useful life. For today were a new man and a new woman, and they had found each other at last and were well pleased.

When Roberts rode home, later, through the vast space and silence of the night, he ripped a leaf from his notebook and tore it into a hundred tiny bits, which he flung into the eager clutch of the rushing wind. For he had listened that night to the impassioned and pleading eloquence of Anna Shaw, as noble a woman, new or old, as ever breathed, and his lips were still thrilling with the warmth of his sweetheart's kiss.

REFUSES TO GIVE UP RECEIPTS.

PORT AU PRINCE, Aug. 2.—The National Bank, which has refused to surrender certain customs receipts claimed by the government, persists in its attitude in spite of the passage by Parliament of a resolution ordering it to comply with the law and place the sums in dispute at the disposal of the government commission organized by the treasury service to collect the customs duties.

THE VOICE OF THE NORTH.

You have bulided your ships in the sunlands,
And masted with bravest pine;
You have met in your closest councils,
With your plans and your prayers to God
For a fortunate wind to waft you

To the seat of the old Norse Kings,
Past the death-white walls of Valhalla,
Where the Norn to the tempest sings—
Follow the steady needle
That cleaves to its steady star
To the uttermost realms of Odin
And the warlike thunderer, Thor.

Far through the icy silence,
Where the glacier's teeth hang white,
And even the sun god, Baldur,
You flutter like startled specters,
With a prayer on your lips for the goal—
To stand for one thrilling moment
At the awful, nameless Pole.

But lo! in that hour shall greet you,
At the end of your perilous path,
A mockery far more bitter
For this is the need you shall gather
The finger that beckoned you onward
Shall lift and point to God!

MR. ROOT'S PERSONALITY.

[New York Times:] There will be no hair-trigger diplomacy while Mr. Root is the head of the State Department. To a mind like his, undigested opinions are as dangerous as undigested securities. Every proposition put forward by him will be put under his mental microscope, and there will not be a possible phase of it which he has not fully considered. When he does take a stand, he will be found inflexible.

There is in New York a character photographer who has had exceptional opportunity for studying the personality of Mr. Root. Here is the negative which he furnishes of him:

"Elihu Root is the finest intellectual machine that has ever come under my observation. His mind is discriminative rather than original. He would never invent a theory, but no man could surpass him in either proving or disproving the theory of another. As a problem solver he is without a peer among the lawyers and public men of our day. He delights in difficult tasks. The more difficult a legal case or an administrative problem appears to be the more fascination it has for him and the more eager he is to undertake it. His perceptions are unerring and his work is absolutely thorough.

"Without deep-seated convictions, he always works along absolutely moral lines. His intuitions of the politic and advisable are rarely at fault. To this marvelously developed faculty, as well as to his ability and boundless energy, much of his success as a lawyer is to be ascribed.

"Although he is probably the greatest corporation lawyer in the United States, Mr. Root has never suffered the loss of public confidence by reason of his service to the corporations. That was demonstrated by the almost unanimous demand made on him by the Republicans of the State last fall to accept the nomination for Governor.

"The explanation of the seeming paradox which is found in the confidence of the public in a man who is admittedly the greatest of all corporation lawyers lies in the fact that Mr. Root is a man without strong sympathies. He has no more real concern with the corporations than he has with the labor unions. If a labor union could pay him as large a fee as a corporation, he would undertake the service of the labor union with equal grace, and pursue it with the same ability and untiring zeal which he shows in his work for his corporation clients. Undoubtedly he has impressed this quality of his mind on the public. That is why the rank and file of the Republican party were not in the least apprehensive as to how he would exercise gubernatorial power. And the public confidence in him in this respect unquestionably is justified. When he is in office the public is his client and the size of the fee makes not the slightest difference in the character of the service rendered. It is always the best that he can give.

"In personal appearance Mr. Root is impressive. His manner is courteous, but cold. He has no magnetism. He is possessed of wit, tells a good story, and on occasions can be the life of a party, but the play of his intellectual fire resembles the play of lightning. It is fascinating, but hardly conducive to ease. No man would ever think of slapping Mr. Root on the back.

"As a platform orator Mr. Root ranks with the best. His exposition of a subject is marvelously lucid and forceful. He seldom grows eloquent, but in the intensity of his desire to make his argument convincing, he can give a good counterfeit of emotion. It is purely intellectual emotion. His heart beats regularly all the time. It is only his mind that is agitated. And so with his auditors—their minds may be convinced, even enthused, but none of them will experience a gulp in the throat or be compelled to wipe away a tear."

The Only Way.

Kang Yue Wei, the Chinese reformer, was describing the hardships that he undergone for reform's sake in China.

"But reform," he said, "is never brought about except with suffering. They who carry the torch of progress make targets of themselves. Ridicule and persecution walk hand in hand. It is always so.

"It is always so. It is the only way. You remember our Chinese sage, Chang Wu?

"Chang Wu found one day among his disciples a beautiful princess. She had come to propound certain questions to the sage, but the old man's great age, his manifold infirmities shocked her. She forgot her questions and kneeling she gazed at Chang Wu in silence.

"'Daughter,' said Chang Wu, musing, 'why do you regard me so strangely?'

"'Oh, father, do you not find it unpleasant to grow old?'

"'Yes, very,' Chang Wu answered. 'But is there any other way of living a long time?'"—[Chicago Tribune.

MABEL SOULE of South Pasadena added 1500 points to her score yesterday, or was enabled to do so by her good loyal friends. The little lady herself was hardly able to be on her feet, as her back was severely wrenched Tuesday while she was assisting at home in taking up a carpet. At the critical moment when she reaches the lead her canvassing is interrupted by a family move. Her leadership is still above seven thousand points.

EARLE WELLER.

Arthur Carpenter reported only 251 and St. Clair Morton of Santa Barbara went closer to second place by more than one thousand points. St. Clair Morton is now within six new subscriptions of second place and within thirteen new subscriptions of first place.

CREDITABLE REPORTS.

Other contestants who made creditable reports yesterday were: Audrey Newton, 5116; Garl Ewing, 3395; Vivian Bassett, 3190; Melvin Merle, 3190; Minnie Ponedal, 2203; Albert B. Capron, 1960; Anna McNaughton, 1439; Bruce Moore, 1260; Rex R. Gile, 1200; Helen Pitner, 1042; Edna Schrock, 1038; Cecil Gilson, 1170; Gertrude Wetzel, 1095.

CHANGES IN POSITIONS.

The changes in relative position of the candidates—thirty-one in all—are as follows: Earl Weller, from 8 to 9; Minnie Ponedal, 9 to 8; Rex R. Gile, 10 to 11; Melvin Merle, 11 to 12; Audrey Newton, 12 to 10; Myrtle Graham, 13 to 14; Blanche Cunningham, 14 to 13; Jessie Mae King, 15 to 18; Orestes Orfila, 18 to 17; Albert B. Capron, 17 to 15; Tessie Tag, 22 to 23; Leroy Miller, 23 to 22; Hazel Doyle, 24 to 25; John A. Wharton, 25 to 24; Anna McNaughton, 26 to 24; Meta Brunjes, 30 to 31; Cecil Gilson, 31 to 30; Myrtle Varney, 33 to 34; Florence Griggs, 34 to 36; Gertrude Wetzel, 34 to 33; William C. O'Connor, 41 to 43; Charlie Yglesias, 42 to 41; Waldo Stein, 43 to 44; Esther Zuber, 44 to 42; Forest Center, 46 to 47; Frank Wiggins, 47 to 46; Leo Ramsay, 49 to 50; Myrtle McCorgor, 50 to 51; Gussie Marcus, 51 to 49; Robert Howard, 52 to 53; Mary Lallich, 53 to 52.

PASADENA GIRL'S PROGRESS.

Vivian Bassett brought in a big package of coupons yesterday numbering 1225 and besides these she turned in subscriptions enough to amount to almost 2000 points in her favor, a total of more than 3000 points.

She took the subscriptions Tuesday, which proved a red-letter day, although she always makes a thousand points a day and frequently nearer 2000.

Vivian confines her work entirely to Pasadena, Lamanda Park and Monrovia and some splendid letters of indorsement have been received by The Times scholarship manager from leading Pasadena people. Vivian wants a Throop Polytechnic scholarship and a cash prize for she is a musician to her finger tips, and if she wins a cash prize, too, the money will be used to pay for the coveted piano lessons.

SON OF REV. WELLER.

As Helen Pitner is the representative Methodist in the race for scholarships, so Earle Weller may fairly be called the representative Presbyterian. He is the youngest son of the late Rev. Dr. S. H. Weller and is literally a child of Occidental College, as his father was its first president and Earle was brought up in a college atmosphere. It will be remembered also that Dr. Weller was for many years president of Chautauqua at Long Beach and doubtless the hundreds of Chautauquans scattered all over Southern California will be interested to know that this bright young son of their old president is trying to win a scholarship to enter the regular four years' classical course of study in Occidental College. Earle is but 15 years old and small for his age. He graduated from the Occidental preparatory course last June and now he is straining every energy to get a scholarship so that he can go on with the classical course. He is an inveterate worker and as systematic as he is persistent. He stints himself to secure 2000 points each and every week day. "I might as well aim high," he says, and the fact that he stands eighth in the long list of contestants proves that it pays to "aim high." He has canvassed every business block in Los Angeles and has covered nearly all the near-by beaches. He rides his wheel in the suburban districts and walks in the city. He has friends out in the orange belt working for him and in fact Earle has not left a stone unturned to win out in this great contest, and it will be rather odd if he doesn't come out in the "high five" at the end of the race. He is a hustler from the start. Last year, besides his work in Occidental, he was stenographer for a loan and trust firm, for he has already finished a course of instruction in stenography and typewriting under a private teacher. Earle lives at Highland Park in the very shadow of Occidental College and he says he is going to start a printing plant there next year to do job work and he thinks he will issue a bimonthly paper, too, for Earle plans to be a newspaper man when he grows up and, if the boy is a forecast of what the man will be, he will make his contemporaries hustle to keep up with him.

HOW EARLE WORKS.

Yesterday a Times representative went with Earle on his canvassing tour to see how he transacts business. He selected the wholesale district on Los Angeles street for his territory. Earle is very systematic in whatever he undertakes and he began at Aliso street, coming up one side of Los Angeles street and going back on the other. He did not miss a single firm, either, and, although he found that he had been preceded by some of the girls in the scholarship contest, his courage did not waver, and, before he had gone far he captured a year's subscription to the Sunday Times which counts him 225 points, and by noon he had as many more, besides securing any number of promises in the brief hour that The Times representative spent with him. If Earle does not get a subscription there is one thing he never misses—and that is respectful attention and kindly consideration. He is so genuinely manly and approaches people in such a courteous way that he never meets with brusque treatment. The busiest men in the great wholesale houses paused to listen to his polite request and almost invariably an answering smile would break over the sternest features as the lad told what he wanted and when, as happened repeatedly, the subscription had already been given to some other contestant, there would be an approving nod and frequently an audible "He's all right, I tell you" to fellow-workers. Very often Earle would be detained and questioned and led into an argument as to the merits of his cause in appreciation of his ready wit, for he always has the retort courteous on the tip of his tongue. His logic is sound, too, and his clever and ingenious argument is well worth listening to. As a sample of "how he does it" the following may be quoted:

"Do you take The Times, sir?" he asked a busy head of the firm, at the same time touching his cap respectfully. The man glanced over his spectacles at the smiling lad in knee pants and responded with a grin "Do you use Pears's soap?" "Yes, and now you ought to answer my question," was the prompt reply. "Well, to tell you the truth, my lad, I gave my subscription to someone else," the man admitted. "You ought to give me one, too, sir, so I can keep on using Pears's soap," replied Earle. The man paused with suspended pen in hand. "You come around here next week and I'll see what I can do," was the encouraging reply.

A letter from one of the professors at Occidental College testifies to the lad's high standing as he ranks as one of the best and brightest students in the college.

PRIZES AT STAKE.

The contestant having the highest score at the close of the contest will have first choice of the following scholarships. The second highest will have second choice and so on to the bottom of the list. From time to time the list of scholarships will be enlarged as the number of contestants multiply. The Times already has one and in some instances two scholarships in every one of the following institutions. Every school is considered excellent in its line:

OPEN HOUSE AT BLANCHARD.

Attractions of Fillmore Pianoforte School in "Times" Scholarship List.

It was open house at Blanchard Hall last evening, and the building was thronged with people—musicians, artists and fashionable folk—who promenaded through the halls and peeped into the studios, attracted by the sweet harmonies of vocal or instrumental music. All the artists and musicians in the building were at home to their friends and patrons—and none were more popular than the instructors in the Fillmore Pianoforte School, which has just opened its studios in the artistic atmosphere of Blanchard Hall. This school has placed two scholarships in The Times contest and the boys and girls will be interested to know about it. The school occupies several attractive studios on the third floor of the Blanchard building and enlarged quarters are about to be arranged. Already there are thirty pupils, and that is a large number for this season of the year. The school offers first-class instruction on the piano, in harmony, counterpoint, part-writing, form and composition, and the chief idea of its competent instructors is to produce intelligent musicians. Thomas Hill Fillmore, who is the director of the school, is a finished musician—a graduate from the Milwaukee School of Music, of which his father was a director. He came to California a year ago and has established schools of music at Pasadena and Redlands as well as in this city, giving certain days to each school. He is also at the head of the pianoforte summer school at Venice.

Mrs. Keller, who is a pupil of Robert Goldbeck of St. Louis, will have charge of the normal work, which is her specialty, and William E. Strobridge, associate teacher with Mr. Fillmore, is an accomplished organist as well as pianist, and arrangements will probably be made to give instructions on the pipe organ. Miss Whitmore is another member of the staff, and a competent organist, too. Public recitals will be a feature of the school, whereby self-possession and confidence is fostered in the pupil. Through the courtesy of L. E. Behymer all pupils will be privileged to hear many of the best attractions at a reduced rate. Last evening Mr. Fillmore delighted a crowd of listeners by his artistic rendering of several classic selections, among them a descriptive piece—the spinning song of the Normandie maid—which was an exquisite bit of harmony.

A HUSBAND THE PRIZE.

Strange Contests in Which the Participants Were Women.

[Tit Bits:] The joint birthday of King Carlos of Portugal and his consort was celebrated at a village near Braga in a novel way. A handsome young farmer named Coelho, for whom several local beauties had long sighed in vain, determined to sacrifice his freedom by offering himself as a prize to her who should be successful in a bullock race.

Seven handsome peasant girls appeared at the starting post, riding bare-backed on bullocks with decorated horns and tails. A capital start was effected, but ere half the distance had been traversed the favorite was thrown and distanced her chagrin by seizing the tail of the second bullock in an endeavor to impede a rival's progress. This resulted in an unpopular competitor coming in first, whereat the onlookers were so disgusted that they ducked the judge in a pond.

New Brunswick was the scene, four years since, of a bicycle race, over a course of two miles, between a couple of girls who were rivals for the affections of an eligible swain. The prize himself, with a parson by his side, took his stand at the winning post, and no sooner had the winner, Miss Nellie Donnelly, passed the goal than the ceremony was performed, and the newly married couple left the ground amid the acclamations of the large concourse that had witnessed the contest.

To run to a point some hundred yards distant, there to change dresses for others laid in readiness on the ground, and to return to the starting point was the trial undertaken last year at Brussels by some half dozen women to decide which should wed a man who had offered himself as a prize to the winner. On the word being given, one at once dropped to the rear and jogged on quite unconcernedly, for she was aware that the sleeves of the dresses laid out for her rivals had been sewn up. The confusion consequent on this enabled her to win the race and the prize, who, it is more than likely, was well aware of the ruse.

The keeper of a Havre restaurant some eight years back offered himself as a prize to be run for in an obstacle race by young women. Here, too, suspicion pointed to the result has having been previously arranged, for the last difficulty to be overcome consisted of wriggling between two bars so close together that none but the slimmest could pass. Six out of seven competitors were thus put out of the race, which was won by a wisp of a girl, who, negotiating the narrow space with little trouble, carried off Boniface, in accordance, probably, with that wily man's intention.

The first prize in a cookery competition held at Vienna in the early '60s was a young man, the owner of a pork butcher's establishment, in whose declared opinion good household management was an indispensable necessity in married life. Some score or more spinsters and widows displayed their culinary skill, that of a professional cook being accounted worthiest of the prize. The young man, however, stultified the decision of the judges by eloping with the prettiest of the competitors.

Equally perfidious was the conduct of a young Liverpudlian, who had some years back offered his hand and fortune as first prize for a sack race, over fifty yards, to be competed for by girls under 25 years of age. At the goal he stood ready to surrender himself to the winner, but when he recognized in the leader a gaunt woman of notorious temper his courage failed him and he fled. The balked woman threatened both law proceedings and personal chastisement, but was at length mollified by sufficient money to set her up in business.

"TAD" LINCOLN'S CHUM.

Gustav Schurmann Was the Youngest Veteran of the Civil War.

[New York Post:] Gustav A. Schurmann, who died on Wednesday at his home, No. 200 East One Hundred and Fourth street, was one of the youngest veterans of the Civil War. He was 55 years old, and he and his friends in his Grand Army post claimed that he was the youngest veteran. He went to war when he was 11 years old, as a drummer boy in the Fortieth New York Volunteers, better known as the Mozart Regiment, of which the father of Richard Watson Gilder was chaplain.

At Harrison's Landing the boy was detailed to act as an orderly to Gen. Phil Kearny. The general gave the youngster a silver bugle and a big white horse for a mount. In the course of the day's maneuvers the staff galloped over a rough field broken by an ugly ravine. Gen. Kearny, a superb horseman, took the ravine with a mighty bound, and looked around to see if his aides were following. They were not, except the bugler. Gus tugged at the big white horse, but he might as well have tried to stop a railroad train. It jumped the gully and landed. Schurmann pale and half senseless. That jump won the heart of the general, and Schurmann was assigned permanently as his orderly.

"In battle he used my back as a writing desk to scratch off dispatches," said Schurmann the other day, "and he used to curse me roundly if I trembled."

After Kearny's death at Chantilly, the boy served as a bugler for Gens. Birney, Stoneman and Sickles. It was with Gen. Sickles that he met the Lincolns at Bell Plains. The President, Mrs. Lincoln, and Tad, then 10 years old, came from Washington to pay the commanding general a visit. Tad and the drummer boy became chums, and the result of their friendship was that Schurmann returned to Washington with the President's family and lived at the White House as Tad's playmate until he was recalled to act as bugler for Gen. Sickles. He was with the general when the latter lost a leg at Gettysburg.

Schurmann remained at the front until the close of the war, and then came home as a veteran, aged 15.

EVENTS IN LOCAL SOCIETY.

A ROMANCE was uncovered a few days ago, when Miss Alice Bond of No. 135 West Thirtieth street gave members of the D.O.T. sorority of Occidental College, of which she is a member, a charming luncheon.

The table was decked with red Shirley poppies and red shaded candelabra shed a soft light. At each place were white carnations and tiny engagement rings, to which were attached the significant names of "Miss Alice Bond and Howard Frost." Congratulations were immediately in order, and good wishes were showered on the pretty bride-elect by her girl friends. Guests at the affair were: Misses Mamie Daniels, Edna Sutton, Frances Poor, Elizabeth Horton, Nina Brown, Edith Powell, Artye Stose, Harriet Snyder, Lina Story, Stella Story and Louise Bond.

The news of this engagement comes as a surprise to the many friends of the couple, as Mr. Frost has only recently come home after a number of Miss Bond is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Passmore Bond of West Thirtieth street, and is a sweet girl with dark brown hair and violet eyes. She is a graduate of the Los Angeles High School and later attended Occidental College, where she is a favorite in social circles.

The wedding will take place some time the last of this month and no attendants have been chosen except the bride's sister, Miss Edith Bond, the talented harpist, who will act as maid of honor.

Connells in Europe.

Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Connell, who left early in the summer for Europe. They are now in London and with them are Miss Edwinna Hammond of San Francisco, who is a great friend of Mrs. Connell's, with her mother and sister. The Connells and the Hammonds are having a jolly time, touring England by automobile, and speak in words of high praise of the beauties of the surrounding country. They have been going to many of the swell functions and are altogether much charmed with London and environs.

Wed in St. John's Church.

Last evening a pretty wedding took place beneath the arched roof of St. John's Episcopal Church: Miss A. Lois Harper becoming the bride of Sherrill B. Osborne, with Rt. Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, bishop of the Los Angeles diocese, conducting the service. The church bloomed with the glow of pink and white amaryllis and soft ferns. Over the reed screen a tracery of delicate ferns was woven, in whose meshes were caught delicate amaryllis blossoms, and over the arches ferns were softly wound, while fancy baskets overflowing with the same dainty blossoms added much to the beauty of the effect. Pews for the family were marked with clusters of Shasta daisies tied with fetching bows of pink satin ribbon.

As the party approached the altar the "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin" was played, while accompanying the ceremony "Elsa's Brantang" from "Lohengrin" was softly played. Just after the benediction the Mendelssohn march was rendered. The dark-eyed bride was charming in a gown of crystal gauze silk made over taffeta with full train and elaborate lace trimmings. With the soft tulle veil was worn a wreath of orange blossoms fastened in place with a diamond and pearl pin, the gift of the groom.

Miss Edith Helen Osborne, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and was attired in a lovely frock of white silk over white taffeta, and carried a cluster of pink amaryllis. The bridesmaids were all attired in dainty frocks of white organdie made in quaint fashion, with which they carried pink carnations. Included in the number were: Misses Bertha Jones, Ethelwyn Walker, Florence Grace, Lillian Montague, Margaret Robinson and Josephine Dillon.

H. Z. Osborne, Jr., was best man, and the following young men acted as ushers: Messrs. A. J. Copp, Jr.; Robert Fowler, R. G. Osborne, Clarence B. Osborne, Haines Reed and Charles Houghton.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David C. Narver of No. 325 West Twenty-seventh street. The entire home was decked with pink and white blossoms in an attractive manner, and in the dining-room, where members of the bridal party were seated, a canopy of white satin ribbons was over the table from which wedding bells swung lightly. The bridal table contained a pleasing arrangement of Shasta daisies and ferns.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborne left last evening on their wedding trip, which will be for more than a month, and on their return they will be at home at No. 1409 West Eleventh street.

Weds Lieutenant.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hampton Hutton of No. 1029 West Twenty-third street was the scene of a lovely little wedding last evening at 8:30 o'clock, their daughter, Miss Mamie Hutton, becoming the bride of Lieut. John S. Upham, U.S.A., with Rev. C. H. Hibbard officiating.

The home was decorated in dainty fashion with sweet peas and asparagus plumosus ferns. In the parlors white and green were the colors chosen, and a canopy of ferns was erected from which three floral wedding bells were suspended. In the hall green and white prevailed, while in the dining-room pink and green were the color tones utilized. Wedding music was rendered by Miss Agnes Barnwell, who is a particular girl friend of the bride. The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was first given and during the reading of the service Schubert's "Serenade" was played. Mendelssohn's march followed the benediction. Little Eleanor Griffin, the three-year-old niece of the bride, was the only attendant. She was gowned in white accordion-plaited organdie over pink silk and carried a basket filled with pink sweet peas, the ring being attached to the basket handle by means of a satin ribbon.

The bride wore an exquisite frock of white Juci over silk elaborately trimmed with lace and pearls. Her veil was fastened with orange blossoms and she carried a shower cluster of bride roses. Her going-away gown was of pongee with blue trimmings, and a hat of the same colored straw with a touch of blue. Mrs. Hutton wore black crepe de chine and lace. Only members of the two families were present at the nuptials.

After August 15 Lieut. Upham and his bride will receive their friends at No. 1122 West Twenty-fourth street, where they will be until October, when they expect to sail for the Philippines, where the lieutenant will be stationed.

Mrs. Francis Returns.

Mrs. John F. Francis of No. 905 South Bonnie Brae street, who has been spending two or three months in the principal cities of the East, returned recently by way of the Portland Fair where she tarried a few days.

Month at Brattlebro.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Irwin Hoy of Santa Monica, who have been spending the year in Washington, have recently returned and are at Brattlebro for a few months, after which they will be at home the remainder of the summer.

Crosses Continent for Bride.

A pretty wedding took place on Tuesday evening at No. 275 Belmont avenue, the home of the bride, Miss Eveline Grenated and George C. Carhart were the contracting parties, being united by Rev. D. A. Wagner, assisted by R. T. Grant. Mr. Carhart came from Syracuse, N. Y., for his bride. Last march the couple were engaged, and shortly after the bride with her parents came to this city to make their home. Mr. and Mrs. Carhart will spend some time visiting Catalina and other interesting points in Southern California. They will return to Syracuse by way of Portland, Or., Yellowstone Park and other places along the way. Among other guests at the nuptials were: Mrs. S. C. Kendall, Miss Evangeline Kendall and Norman Kendall, relatives of the bride from Long Beach.

In Church of Angels.

At the twilight hour, while the sun sent a glow of mellow softness through the stained glass windows of the Church of the Angels, Garvanza, a fair bride met there a groom and together they knelt 'mid the fragrance of sweet blossoms and plighted their troth.

The wedding was that of Miss Edith Barber and Henry Ellison Covert. Rev. J. J. Wilkins of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral officiated, and during the service music was given by Prof. Thomas Wilde. The bride wore a handsome gown of embroidered pongee, with a hat of autumn leaves. She carried a shower cluster of bride roses and maidenhair ferns. Her only attendant was her cousin, Miss Frances Barber. She wore a tailor suit of white cloth and a white lace hat and carried a shower of maidenhair ferns. William Robson stood with the groom during the service.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Margaret Barber of No. 1230 South Union avenue and is well known in local society, having been a resident of this city for a long time. Mr. Covert is a well-known business man. Upon their return from a trip to Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. Covert will be at home with the bride's mother.

SETS TOWN IN A FRIGHT.

MANIAC UBIQUITOUS IN SAN BERNARDINO CITY.

Escapes from Patton Asylum in His Stockings and Causes Police Calls to Come in from Numerous Localities—Sheriff Thinks Killing of Gegeias Was Accidental.

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 2.—Pierre Geraldi, who was committed to the Southern California State Hospital for the Insane at Patton June 29 from Los Angeles, escaped from the institution last evening. At a late hour he arrived in this city in his stocking feet, throwing the residents in the northeast section into fright by his peculiar actions.

His escape had been detected immediately, and the big whistle was sounded, notifying the farmers to be on the lookout, and at the same time two guards were dispatched, who picked up Geraldi's trail, following him to Base Line and E streets, where all trace of him was lost.

In the meantime the police calls were coming in from various sections of the city, bewildering the officers, who did not know to what part of town to hurry. Late in the night a call from a winery on West Third street informed the department that the insane man had appeared there, but by the time the downtown police had reached the winery Policeman Emerson of the uptown squad had taken the man into custody.

Geraldi had called at the winery to visit friends, and it just happened that two Los Angeles Italians, who had come up from there, intending to visit Geraldi today at the hospital, were in the winery, and were considerably surprised when he walked in upon them.

He talked rationally, admitting that he had allowed the impulse of a moment to lead him to run away. He made no resistance when handcuffed, but wept at the disgrace which his arrest had brought upon him. His friends say he has mining property on the desert for which he has refused $12,000, and that his insanity was induced by losing $2000 in Los Angeles, having been robbed of that amount a few days before he was committed to the asylum.

ACCIDENTAL, SHERIFF THINKS.

Sheriff Ralphs returned this afternoon from Hesperia, where he went yesterday to investigate the killing of Ramon Gegeias by Victor Melendes, while the two were out rabbit hunting. He states that he is satisfied that the shooting was purely accidental, notwithstanding that Melendes has become a fugitive.

The Sheriff learned from the seven-year-old son of the dead man, who witnessed the killing, that when Melendes saw Gegeias fall he dropped the gun and rushing to his side threw himself over the prostrate form, and crying like an infant called upon the dead man to speak to him.

The Sheriff also found that the gun is a dangerous one, and has several times before gone off unexpectedly, being defective in the hammer. Melendes's disappearance is attributed to his ignorance, and an effort will be made to arrest him, that the full story of the shooting may be known.

HACKING OF A JAP.

With the right side of his face laid open from the eye to the corner of the mouth, and covered with blood flowing from the awful injury, T Komaise, proprietor of a local poolroom, was hurried to the office of Dr. C. D. Dickey last night, where eighteen stitches were taken to close the wound. Komaise had encountered a Mexican, who had used a knife on him. The trouble arose in the poolroom over a dispute in the course of a game of pool, when the Jap insisted that the Mexican leave the place. The latter replied by drawing his knife, and had dealt the Jap a wicked blow in the face before other frequenters of the place could interfere. The Mexican easily made his escape in the confusion, and has not been captured. The victim of the assault will lose the sight of his right eye. Early in the day Komatse's partner was viciously assaulted by a young tough.

CLATTER IN STILLY NIGHT.

At 1 o'clock this morning the business center was echoing with the tones of a piano and the clatter of a horse, the combination making a weird and ghostly effect. An investigation disclosed that a number of young men, headed by Fred Pierce and Bob Emerson, had rented a loft room in the Farmers' Exchange Bank building and were organizing a glee club. Will Kavanaugh, at the unearthly hour the club was practicing, was riding his horse on the sidewalk.

WATER IMPROVEMENT.

The extension of the city water system through the big Hart-Marshal tract, in the northeast section of town, was completed yesterday morning so quickly that few of the residents in the section affected were aware that the water had been momentarily turned off so that the contractors could connect the new with the old system. The completion of the contract was not expected for almost three weeks. In preparing for the connection George M. Cooley discovered several gate valves shut, and a new problem confronts the water commission, as each closed gate makes a dead end, and while creating a water hammer, also increases the danger to health. It is possible that most of the new system will have to be closely inspected for closed gate valves.

LOVERS SMASH OUT TEETH.

The love affairs of John Reeves and Harry Warner, youths of the town, led to another personal encounter on the main business street of the town last evening. Though they fought so long and savagely that finally they were compelled to desist from sheer exhaustion, no arrests were made. Reeves got the worst of the encounter, losing several teeth and being bruised up generally. A short time ago he attacked Warner with a revolver, laying open his face, and at that time Warner warned him that he would not forget.

The trouble arises over the courtship of two sisters by the two youths; one sister is lined up with her father and lover against Warner, and the sister Warner is courting has fled her father's home and is living with the mother of her lover. That the trouble is not ended is the statement of the friends of the youths.

SAN BERNARDINO BRIEFS.

An inquest was held today by Coroner Pittam on the remains of Earnest Hudson, who died recently here of injuries sustained in a mysterious manner near Holbrook, Ariz., the jury returning a verdict that death was produced by a fracture of the skull, the cause of the facture being unknown.

That there is money this season in lemons is indicated by each report of sales made, the returns equalling the best ever known in this section. The Fruit Exchange has received $80,000 as proceeds for eighty cars of lemons shipped in July. The best sale reported by the exchange is $1812 for one car f.o.b., California.

The Merchants' Association has raised $300 of the $1000 which the association is to contribute toward the bonus of $5000 asked by Rialto in order to secure an electric railway to this city. Seth Hartley, who is promoting the railway, has returned from Portland and will meet the citizens of Rialto this evening. It is understood that other railway men are also taking an interest in the projected line.

Joe Nelson and A. E. Moore of San Bernardino have sold to William V. Holley and J. Meyer of Los Angeles the Excelsior lode group of mines; also a half interest in the Copper King mill site, seven miles northerly from Kesler Springs, on the desert; consideration named, $40,000. An agreement of sale was filed for record today, which gives the purchasers until July, 1906, to make final payment, and until that date they are to pay the owners $400 per month.

The Salt Lake Overland arrived here this afternoon from the East twelve hours late. It was delayed by heavy washouts near Caliente and Las Vegas, Nev., where cloudbursts yesterday made a lake of the country for miles, washing the roadbed in numerous places.

A dispatch was received here this morning announcing the death at Los Angeles of George Rockoff, for many years prominent in business circles in this city. The remains were received this afternoon. Mr. Rockoff was taken to Los Angeles only a few days ago to undergo an operation for some affliction or injury of the head, and died while under the knife. His death was wholly unexpected. He was 18 and of a prominent family here.

The remains of Lucas Hoagland, the San Bernardino pioneer, who died suddenly last Monday at Salt Lake City, were received here this afternoon. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon, Hoakland had gone to Salt Lake City as a delegate of the local pioneer society to the celebration of the founding of the Mormon City.

"Hotel del Coronado" always pleases.

COLTON.

BIGGER WATER SUPPLY.

COLTON, Aug. 2.—Colton's supply of water has been greatly increased through the installation of a cement pit (the first of its kind here,) which has just been sunk at the city pumping plant No. 1. The water supply per day from this plant is now 104.70 inches, with the use of a No. 8 centrifugal Byron & Jackson pump, and a thirty-horse-power engine. Heretofore it has averaged forty-five inches daily.

The cost of the cement pits is comparatively small. A pit similar to the one just completed is being sunk at pumping plant No. 2.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 2.—Grover Turpin, a shop employé, has resigned as secretary of the Young Men's Christian Club on account of the persecution which he and his family are undergoing at the hands of the lawless sympathisers of the Santa Fé strikers.

He intends to move to Colton, which has proved a haven for a large number of the shopmen. Turpin says that he and his family have continuously been insulted by the lawless element.

They have decided to stand it no longer, and so will leave the town, though still continuing in the employ of the shops, where he is highly respected as a first-class machinist.

ROCKY BED IS MT. RUBIDOUX.

Make Camp on the Hill Where Potatoes Roasted in the Hot Ashes are One of the Chief Attractions. Arrest of Alleged Liquor Seller of Perris—Model Lawn.

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 2.—A good method of getting a summer outing—or at least a night of it—was hit upon last evening by the Boy's Outing Bible class of the Y.M.C.A. Armed with a blanket apiece, and with pockets filled with potatoes and marshmallows, the youngsters assailed Rubidoux Mountain, bearing a huge torch to light their way. They pitched their camp on the highest point of the hill, and built their fire, with Secretary Tom Caldwell as leader.

Then they toasted marshmallows and unearthed the potatoes from the hot ashes, where they had been roasting. Each rolled up in his blanket, selected what he thought was the softest spot on the whole rock-strewn ridge, and tried to hold still long enough to go to sleep. In the morning the boys awoke in the midst of a heavy fog, with no sign of a city below them. Picking up their blankets, they found their way down the slope and got home in time for breakfast.

ALLEGED LIQUOR SELLER.

On the story told by Dannie Marsh concerning the liquor sold to his father in Perris, Simeon R. Waller, better known as "Bud" was arrested today an appeared before Justice Stevenson. Attorney Densmore appeared with him and he was granted until next Monday to plead. The boy related that his father stopped in Perris, on their way to Winchester, and went to see a man that he called "Bud." From him he obtained the whisky that caused his death by shooting. Waller has been in similar scrapes before, so the authorities brought him in.

TROUBLE TO GET IN.

Mrs. T. O'Hashi, wife of T. O'Hashi of the Eighth-street restaurant, has had much trouble in returning from Japan. A week ago she landed at Vancouver and the immigration officials would not admit her to the United States. Mr. O'Hashi appealed to Dist.-Atty. Evans for assistance, in the matter. Mr. Evans yesterday telegraphed to the United States Consul at Vancouver that Mrs. O'Hashi was entitled to return to Riverside. Today Mr. O'Hashi was made happy when the District Attorney received a reply stating that she would be passed into the land of the free and would come on her way rejoicing.

SALARIES HELD UP.

The warrants for the monthly salaries of the county justices and Constables were held up yesterday by Auditor Clancy. This was done by the advice of Dist.-Atty. Evans, as the constitutionality of the law fixing these salaries is yet to be settled. Until the Supreme Court has decided this matter, the justices and constables will probably have to wait several months for their money.

The recent decision by the Appellate Court against the salary law in the case of Yuba county, makes this advisable as a protection for the bondsmen of the auditor. Comparisons show that for the fiscal year of 1904-05, the fees for these officials were nearly twice as much as for their salaries for the year just ended. Taking into account the great growth of the county in those ten years, it is feared that a return to the fee system will add greatly to the expenses of the county.

LAWN MAGNIFICENT.

Riverside claims the most magnificent lawn in Southern California. It spreads around the new courthouse a big expanse of green, every inch of it in perfect condition. It rises from the cement sidewalks in gently swelling curves that are a joy to the soul. It occupies the entire front of a city block, and when Gardener Fabb starts his lawn mower to clattering, people come by the dozen to get the clippings for their chickens. Fabb is an expert on lawns. He has put in a watering system that reduces the labor of sprinkling to a picnic. By a simple twist of a stop-cock, he can start sparkling showers from a dozen sprays all at once and a score of rainbows go dancing over the green grass. The lawn with its fountains is a coolness and a delight to everyone who comes and goes.

TRAINING AS MARKSMEN.

With interest and enthusiasm aroused by the showing made by four of their members, Company M held an informal meeting after the drill Monday night, and asked the members selected for the Seagirt team how they did it. There are a number of good marksmen in the company, and several are sorry now that they didn't improve each shining hour in practice, and capture this honor for themselves. To keep the boys in the best condition, it was decided to hold a shooting match. Sides were chosen, under the leadership of two of the best marksmen, and at the end of the match the losing side will provide an oyster supper for the crowd. After this, a company team of ten will be chosen, and a series of competitions arranged with companies in the near-by towns.

The building, which was erected in 1874, was for several years the largest and finest in Orange and has been used at various times as sanatorium, lodging-house and hotel, and for several years has sheltered the city officials and the books of the public library. Nothing remains of it now but the foundation. Since the old building was condemned a few months ago, many persons have been afraid to enter the library, the books of which have been removed to a more suitable place.

LOCAL POLITICS.

HOTTEST FIGHT OF POLITICIANS.

Republicans Stir Over Next County Convention.

All Sorts of Splits Promised in Party Lines.

Longden Gunning for Job of Ben Ward.

Preliminaries are being arranged for the hottest Republican county convention. Every similar party contest of the past is to be paled to insignificance by comparison with the convention of next year, if the activity of workers and the rumors of combinations at this early date count for anything.

Under cover of the greatest secrecy there are hints of a bitter struggle against the "push;" not so much by the element that has opposed it in the

On the other hand, there are indications that men who formerly opposed the machine are not so greatly averse to organization rule and in turn are looked upon with more favor by those who hold the party reins.

In the uncertain alignment that reigns a year before a convention there is little on the surface to give indication of what the "line-up" will be, but those who have watched the game for many years say that the Los Angeles county Republican convention for 1906 will be a "stem-winder," with more candidates for nomination, more offices to pass around, and more scheming for place and power than ever before has been the case.

LONGDEN FOR ASSESSOR?

The latest rumor is that Supervisor O. W. Longden of the First District is to be a candidate for nomination to the Assessorship. Should Mr. Longden go in for this nomination, it is said he is almost certain to cross swords with the present Assessor, Ben Ward, who is understood to wish a renomination as an endorsement of his administration, if for nothing more.

Mr. Longden's term as Supervisor expires next year, when he will have served two terms, during which he has had much experience as member of the Board of Equalization, in becoming acquainted with the duties of Assessor.

A point urged in favor of the Supervisor, in the event that he should be a candidate for the Assessorship nomination, is that he would have a large country following in addition to his strength in the city, and that, by giving him the nomination, the convention would dispose of one of the most trying problems that comes before it—the placating of the delegates from the country, who have been compelled in some previous conventions to carry the news back home that the city had gobbled all the places.

It has been urged on some of these occasions that the country failed to produce candidates who could command the necessary support. This objection cannot be used against Mr. Longden.

Another interesting rumor is that Percy V. Harmon, Councilman from the Second Ward, and a former member of the City Board of Education, is to be a candidate for nomination as Supervisor in the Third District, the position now held by Al. Graham. Harmon has proved himself to be a lively political worker during the few years he has been in public office and, though a young man, and even more youthful in appearance than his face would indicate, is said to have cemented a following that will help him in any fight in which he may engage.

M'GARVIN TO RETIRE.

One of the definite announcements that have been made is that D. C. McGarvin, present Public Administrator, will not be a candidate for a second term. One of the best and cleanest, as well as most ardent political workers in the local ranks of Republicanism, Mr. McGarvin states without reserve that he wants no more of public office, although he is equally emphatic in declaring that he will continue his activity in politics, wherefore there is occasion for rejoicing on the part of those who have come in contact with him during his services as secretary of the Republican County Central Committee, as campaign manager, or in the various other political duties he has performed.

The reason given by Mr. McGarvin for his determination to quit is that he cannot afford to hold office. He will engage in the practice of law at the expiration of his present term.

County Auditor Herbert Dow is another who is said to be ready to give up office. It is of general opinion that Louis Schwaebe, City Auditor, will seek nomination as Dow's successor.

BOILING SHRIEVALTY POT.

The shrievalty pot, always boiling, promises to be full and running over, with at least six candidates nominally in the race and the likelihood that as many more will appear within the next few months.

Chief of Police Hammel, former Sheriff, cannot or will not deny that he would like his old county position, while Sheriff White, Under Sheriff Yonkin and former Sheriff John Burr have yearnings. Recorder Calvin Hartwell of Pasadena would exchange his present inside job, it is said, for the outdoor life of Sheriff, while County Surveyor Leo Youngworth is supposed to have leanings in the same direction, although his activity in Senator Flint's fight has led to the report that he would be the new United States Marshal.

Little has been heard of the "four years and out" slogan that sometimes has been shouted in connection with the county offices. No pledges of that kind were made during the convention of 1902, and some of the incumbents look with decided disfavor upon any proposition that they should make way for new blood.

The argument is made that, in many instances, the officials require two years or so to get their offices organized for the intelligent and proper transaction of business, and that it would be a positive mistake to make a change at the close of the first term.

TROUT IS FISHING.

Coroner Trout has let it be understood that he is willing to succeed himself, and so far very few other names have been mentioned in connection with the place, although Dr. E. O. Sawyer, who was a candidate before the last convention, is spoken of as a possibility.

Charles Logan, chief deputy in the office of the County Treasurer, is urged by his friends as a candidate for nomination to the place of his chief, Mark Jones, who is serving his second term, but who has not yet manifested any great desire to let go.

Capt. J. D. Fredericks, who is serving his first term as District Attorney, and who had long and valuable experience as a deputy in that office before becoming its head, is said by his friends to be willing to take a renomination only in the event that the people manifest a desire for another four years of the positive and sort of Jerome-Folk manner in which he has gone after the gamblers, illegal liquor sellers and other violators of the law.

With all these situations to meet, and with the shrievalty contest promising the liveliest time in convention, there remains the important matter of the judgeships, wherein six nominations are to be made and which, some months before the convention, promises to warm up into a fracas that will make former contests over the shrievalty shrivel to the importance of a dry leaf in a high wind.

THE DATE.

It is the expectation that the Republican County Central Committee will call the convention for August 20 of next year, four years and a day later than the 1902 convention. The primaries, under the law, will be held on the second Tuesday in August, 1906, which will be the 14th of the month, and, should the convention be called for the following Monday, the 20th, there would be an entire week for the transaction of its business.

NEW CHIEF, PERHAPS.

It is intimated that Chief of Police Hammel may soon resign. He is annoyed by political pressure and by the persistency of some of his superiors in office. He is likely to throw up his hands and stake everything on the Sheriff race.

OXNARD.

SEWER BONDS VOTED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

OXNARD, Aug. 2.—There was a city election here Monday for bonding the city for $45,000 for a sewer system. Although the vote was light, the majority in favor of the bonds was overwhelming. There were 270 votes cast; of these only five were against the bonds. It was feared by some that the American Beet Sugar Company would exert its influence against the issue, as that company pays a large part of the taxes and has its own sewer system. The result of the election is looked upon as showing that the sugar company is as desirous of the improvement of the town as its citizens are. Bids for contracts are being received and work will begin as soon as possible.

Excavating has been begun on a two-story brick building on B street, between Fourth street and Fifth street. It is being put up by Dr. Livingston at a cost of $5000.

B. Miller of Boston, a stockholder in the American Beet Sugar Company, has come up from Los Angeles for a few days with his son to see the factory here.

Strange Eye Disease.

A somewhat remarkable eye disease is at present prevalent in several parts of British Central Africa, Northeastern Rhodesia and in Portuguese Zambesia. At first it was noticeable in cattle, sheep and goats, and only recently was it found to have attacked the natives.

The disease is at present raging from Fort Herald, a British station on the Zambesi, right on toward Tete, a distance of over two hundred miles, and at this latter place it is reported to be quite an epidemic.

William Arnott, a traveler, who recently returned from Tete, states that he observed hundreds who were suffering from the disease, and a large number were totally blind. One of the sights of Tete on a Sunday morning is the long lines of blind people who enter the town to beg, each string being led by a little boy or girl.

At first a white spot is observed on the eyeball, and this in a short space of time becomes highly inflamed. The eye then discharges a white, milky fluid, and the whole of the eye becomes covered with a white film. This is the critical stage of the malady, and if the disease is very severe the eyeball bursts, thus destroying the sight entirely.—[London Mail.

Danger Spot in India.

It seems rather strange that at the very time Russia appears utterly exhausted by a disastrous war the British Empire should be carefully and systematically strengthening its defenses in India. That it has been always Russia's ambition to reach the open sea through the conquest of India is a fact too well known to be even called into question. That her defeat at the hands of Japan has in any way altered that determination is not at all probable; on the contrary, the failure to secure the coveted ports in far east Asia has probably increased the desire to secure them elsewhere, either on the peninsula of India or in the Persian Gulf. An attempt in either direction England would be compelled, in self-defense, to oppose.—[New Orleans Picayune.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

COMPLAIN OF WATER SUPPLY.

RESIDENTS OF SOUTHEASTERN PASADENA TALKING.

They Say That the Liquid is Sending Forth a Foul Smelling Odor and That It Is Bitter and Brackish. Secretary Says Water May Have Backed Into Some of End Pipes.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 24 South Raymond avenue, Aug. 3.—Residents of the southeast section of the city are complaining of the condition of their domestic water supply. They allege that the water as now being used in their homes from the pipes of the Pasadena Lake Vineyard Land and Water Company send forth a foul-smelling odor, besides being bitter and brackish to the taste.

This announcement of protest comes as a surprise in view of the fact that the Lake Vineyard water has long been considered to be of the finest quality of any of the plants operating in Pasadena and its equipment is rated at the highest figure in the contemplated municipal purchase.

"I do not think the complaint is general," said Secretary Durrell of the Lake Vineyard company last night. "It may be that the water has backed into some of the end pipes as a result of low consumption during the summer months, and in not being drawn off, has naturally become stagnated. Where the water mains leave off there is apt to be a considerable quantity of water accumulate and such is apparently the condition of the mains near the McKinley school, where the complaint comes from."

He announced that the company will do all in its power to do away with the alleged nuisance.

ROGERS ON COURSING.

Earl Rogers, counsel for the Los Angeles County S.P.C.A., broke his customary silence yesterday long enough to issue an explanation for the delay in the prosecution of the Arcadia coursing cases, in which he makes some rather startling statements regarding the inside history of this form of cruelty in this State.

Incidentally, one of "Lucky" Baldwin's henchmen, Henry Lyons, found opportunity to plead not guilty upon being arraigned yesterday before Justice Congdon, and it is openly avowed that all the other defendendants will do likewise, following the frank admission by Attorney Rogers that the only cases of this nature which have gone to a jury in Los Angeles county have resulted in the acquittal of the accused.

In an authorized statement to the press of this city Mr. Rogers reverted to the fact that the only coursing case tried locally have resulted in acquittal and goes on to say: "Bearing in mind this seeming unwillingness of an average jury to convict in a coursing case, and in view of the fact that coursing runs wide open in San Francisco, where two parks have immense crowds every Sunday and holiday, I have thought it bad policy to take the chances of a trial if I could close coursing without it. Since I have been attorney for the Humane Society there has never been a rabbit coursed in Los Angeles county, except this one instance at Arcadia, where arrest immediately followed. This result has been accomplished rather by the fear of prosecution than by actual prosecution. Coursing is not running at Arcadia or elsewhere in Los Angeles county. The result were desired has been accomplished without a trial. The Santa Fé avenue park, where they coursed for about two years, has fallen into ruin, and the Arcadia park is in fair way to do likewise. When we are accomplishing the objects for which the society was organized, namely, the prevention of cruelty to animals, rather than the prosecution of offenders, I have seen no reason why we should risk the uncertainties of lawsuits. Still, in response to an unwise public demand, I am willing that these cases shall go on trial and take the chances of the Superior and Appellate courts as well as the Justice Court. I make this public statement simply to place myself on record. The Santa Fé park was closed without a prosecution, the Arcadia park has remained closed without a prosecution; coursing is dead. If this unwise howl for punishment rather than prevention results disastrously, and coursing recommences, I want the blame to rest where it belongs."

Old "Lucky" Baldwin, dapper in spite of his years, was in the courtroom yesterday shaking hands with acquaintances and ready to back his man Lyons. Attorney Jones entered a demurrer in behalf of the defendant, contending that Justice Congdon has no jurisdiction to set in the case, the demurrer being promptly overruled. Lyons then entered a plea of not guilty and demanded a jury trial. The case was set for next Thursday morning, and "Lucky" himself pleaded not guilty, the latter's case to come up the day following.

MORE TROUBLE AHEAD.

Former members of the city official family, who became inoculated with the germ of "resignationitis" following the ruling of City Attorney Fitzgerald, cutting down their salaries, are said to be considering the advisability of bringing suit against the city to recover the various amounts clipped off their salaries as a result of the ruling. Only yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Council, one demand for the sum of $25 from Dr. F. F. Rowland for one-third of a month's service as City Health Officer was rejected by the Finance Committee of the Council presumably because of the City Attorney's ruling, and Dr. Rowland admitted last night that if no other course presented itself he for one will bring suit. Similarly affected are C. C. Brown, formerly Superintendent of Streets, Maj. Henry Rasmel, formerly deputy city engineer, and a number of others, all of whom are said to be contemplating concerted action against the city.

CONFER OVER WATER.

The recent agitation over the municipal water issue has again stirred the officials to action and a conference of the members of the City Council with officials of the West Side Water Company has been arranged for Friday morning in the City Hall. It is understood the meeting will be private.

Apropos of the water issue there will also be a meeting of the stockholders of the North Pasadena Land and Water Company this evening in the W.C.T.U. reading-rooms in North Pasadena for the purpose of discussing the project to sell the company's holdings to the city of Pasadena. This is the plant that was estimated at $275,000 by Ex-Mayor Schuyler, while former City Engineer Allin acting for the city appraised the plant at only $80,000. The actual supply of water was what constituted the difference in the figures and it is said a number of the stockholders are in favor of selling.

CONDENSED PARAGRAPHS.

Joseph Schultz, the new member of the police department, succeeding W. S. McIntyre, who goes into the treasurer's office, distinguished himself by making three arrests on his first day of service yesterday. Two of them were for bicycles carelessly treading the sidewalk, and the third was for a violation of the hitching ordinance. All told, the fines will more than cover Schultz's salary for the day.

Samuel Van Ornum has been appointed to the office of Deputy City Engineer, recently made vacant by the resignation of Maj. Henry Ramel.

B. H. Crow, chief of the United States forest rangers, who has recently been transferred from Arizona to the department of California, has decided to make Pasadena his home, having just purchased a residence in Garfield Heights.

P. M. Curtis and C. B. Cornwell, rival sewing-machine agents, who charged each other with assault during an altercation on the street Tuesday, were each found guilty yesterday morning by Justice Congdon, who imposed a fine of $10 in each instance.

Secretary Coolidge of the Pasadena Board of Trade, who has just returned from Portland, predicts an unusual influx of easterners and not a small number of northerners to this section within the next few months. While away Secretary Coolidge did some excellent work of advertising Pasadena at the Portland Fair.

Members of the City Council will convene as a committee of the whole this afternoon commencing at 2 o'clock in the Council chamber for the purpose of discussing the advisability of calling a special election to slightly increase the tax rate in order to meet the expenses of the city for next year. City Auditor Kernaghan, from whom the suggestion came first, has issued a statement declaring that it was by no means his intention to create strife over the matter, but he merely offered the suggestion for the people to act upon.

The quarterly conference of the First Methodist Church of Pasadena was held last night. The church has gained in membership by seventy-eight since the last quarter. The conference unanimously voted to retain the pastor, Dr. Lamport.

The Sioux Indian baseball team has succeeded in arranging a match with the local aggregation of gas company employés who style themselves with the euphonious title of "Pascongascos," the contest to be pulled off Friday.

SANTA MONICA.

CYCLONE OF BUYERS.

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 2.—There was a riotous carnival of racket store shoppers on Third street today and the affair had no ending until the last of the store had been sold. It is a strange story of possession winning with nine points in its favor against the slower machinery of legal process.

Several months ago a slick young Hebrew, Paul Auer by name, drifted onto the sands of this shore from Los Angeles and straightway opened the little Greater New York 5 and 10-cent store. Business prospered seemingly and Auer was to have moved yesterday into more commodious quarters. Sunday he departed, ostensibly for San Francisco, to buy goods. Before bidding farewell to the seaside he turned the keys of the store over to F. J. Van Houghten, with instructions to run the business and pack the goods for removal during his absence. Last night Van Houghten smelled a rat. Auer was absent and bills from Los Angeles wholesalers were flooding the store. The more valuable of the goods—those that were susceptible of removal and that occupied but small space—were among the missing. Van Houghten says that Auer owes him money and in order to make himself safe, Van Houghten slaughtered prices as long as the goods remained. Anything and everything was sold for whatever the would-be purchaser might offer and after a few hours the place looked as if a Kansas cyclone might have stayed over night in the store.

Auer is still gone. So is the store. Van Houghten got his money out of it, and the other creditors are inquiring one from the other in a vain endeavor to learn where they get off.

LAWSUIT ON ANNEXATION.

Santa Monica is threatened with a lawsuit as result of the election, held on Monday, which resulted in favor of annexation. It is understood the Simons Brick Company, whose manufacturing plant was taken into the city, will ask that the courts set the election aside. The contention is that R. P. Elliott, one of the election judges in the outside territory, is not a qualified elector in that voting precinct. He is a taxpayer and resident of Santa Monica, but it is alleged he is not registered in the precinct in which he served as a member of the election board.

By that election Santa Monica more than doubled her area. She now has two miles of ocean frontage and the city limits on the east extend almost two miles inland. While the new territory adds many thousands of dollars of taxable property to the city, it increases the town's population by only about 500, making Santa Monica a city of 7700 souls.

The contract has been let by the Palisades Investment Company to Memann & Kneen for the improvement of the Palisades tract of fifty acres, which adjoins the city on the north and extends to the cañon. The work, which is to cost approximately $23,000, will be commenced at once. It includes the grading, oiling, sidewalking and curbing of the streets and the installation of sewers, water, gas and electricity and the planting of the parks and avenues to shade trees.

The first official move looking to the preparation and adoption of a freeholders' charter was taken this week when the City Trustees introduced an ordinance calling a special election for the purpose of choosing fifteen freeholders as a committee to prepare the charter. The new regulation cannot be effective until the people vote on the charter and it is approved by the Legislature.

The receipts of the Santa Monica postoffice for July were $1151.92. For the same month last year they were $807.67.

CAR STRIKES AN UNKNOWN.

OLD MAN CRITICALLY INJURED AT LONG BEACH.

Steps on Track and Fails to Heed Whistle and Gong Sounded by the Motorman—Ruction Among City Trustees Becomes Acute — Hot Words With Campaign Leader.

LONG BEACH, Aug. 2.—Pacific Electric car No. 600, in charge of Motorman J. R. Greiner and Conductor C. H. Bell, while rounding a curve at Asbury west of town, at 7:40 o'clock this morning, struck an old man and fatally injured him. The car was running at moderate speed and Greiner had slowed to take the curve when an old man stepped on the track ahead. Greiner whistled and used the gong, but the old man paid no attention. Greiner reversed and threw on the air, but was too close to stop and the victim was struck squarely in the back and hurled to one side. He was brought to the city at once and the company surgeons, Drs. Wood and Hamman, after an examination, found that the spine was fractured, with probable internal injuries. The sufferer was unconscious and continued so while being taken to a Los Angeles hospital. No name or address was found in his clothing, but it was learned that he lived in a tent at Seaside Park, where Marshal Conklin later found a trunk with the name Pillsbury, No. 139 East Walnut street, Pasadena.

The victim is baldheaded, with a stubby beard of white with a sandy tint. He is apparently about 65 or 70 years of age. He has only been here a few days, and is said to be very deaf, which accounts for his taking no notice of the motorman's signals.

RUCTION OF TRUSTEES.

There is trouble brewing in the ranks of the City Trustees as the result of the police troubles. A year and a half ago there was a reversal of factions in the board, and Messrs. Eno, Losee and Oakford were elected. Holdovers were Trustees Cate and Campbell of the old régime, but they were in the minority. The board was reorganized by electing R. A. Eno president of the board. In his appointments of committees President Eno endeavored to be fair and to this end appointed Messrs. Cate and Campbell the majority end of the Committee on Finance and also that of Police and Sanitary Matters, Trustee Oakford being the minority member of both committees. The Police and Sanitary Committee at that time was considered important only from the point of being targets for indignant citizens who found their garbage at times accumulating until it became a nuisance.

Then came Marshal Conklin's attempt to name a patrolman, whom the committee declined to approve and elected their own choice, Leslie W. Folsom. Since then the Marshal and Police Committee have been at loggerheads and the Marshal's refusal to recognize Folsom as an officer denying him access to the jail, led to charges being preferred against the Marshal and his removal from office by Judge Bordwell because of alleged irregularities found in his accounts by experts selected by the Finance and Auditing Committee. Gradually this fight made itself manifest in the Trustees' meetings and Mayor Eno and Trustee Losee, who are standing by the Marshal, find themselves deserted by Trustees Oakford, who is lined up with Messrs. Cate and Campbell. Within the past week it is asserted plans have been maturing for the new big tree to take control of the Council and elect a new president of the board, but this is denied by the majority members. This morning Mayor Eno said that a leader of the faction which was successful a year and a half ago called on him at his office and in so many words requested him to resign. The Mayor got his mad up and returned an emphatic refusal. He reminded the leader that when he went East a year ago he offered to resign, but the person begged him earnestly not to, and he did not propose to quit under fire now. He reminded his audience that a few months ago, when Attorney Knight was ill, and pressure was brought to appoint a new City Attorney, he had stood by the leader and refused.

"Now," he said, "you have gone over to the other side and if it's fight, I am ready for you. I have a few corner lots left and can raise enough for a short 'go' at least."

ALLEGED BRUTAL ASSAULT.

Deputy Sheriff Harry Wilson went to Los Alamitos last night and arrested Peter Labourdette, owner of a winery, and Honore von Sternberg, on a warrant charging them with deadly assault on Domingo Silvais. Last Saturday night, so it is stated, Silvais was on his way to his sweetheart's home, riding a bicycle, when he met the two men in a buggy. Labourdette, who was drunk, sprang out of the buggy and wanted to fight and on Silvais's refusal knocked him off the wheel, following the attack with another blow. Silvais, cornered, knocked his assailant down, and then Von Sternberg in turn felled Silvais, and while he was down, both men beat him unmercifully, and kicked him brutally, breaking several ribs. Labourdette and Von Sternberg were arraigned before Justice Brayton this morning and held in $1000 bond each for preliminary examination on August 12.

FAILS AT SUICIDE.

While Wharfinger Beattge was patrolling the lower deck of the pier at 2 o'clock this morning, he heard footsteps overhead and followed them out to the outer end of the wharf and saw a man descend the steps on the west side and walk east toward the officer. When he saw Beattge the unknown turned and walking rapidly to the edge of the wharf either fell or jumped overboard in twenty-five feet of water. The wharfinger seized a life preserver and threw it overboard, where it was seized by the sputtering, drowning man, who held on while Beattge towed him around to one of the boat ladders. It was an awkward job and the victim bumped against every cylinder, but reached the ladder and climbed to the deck, where he fell gasping and exhausted. Allowing him to recover, the officer recoiled the rope on the life buoy and was hanging it up when a noise caused him to look around in time to see the fellow disappearing in the gloom beyond. He called out, but it only lent wings to the fellow, and the old captain, after a short pursuit, gave up the chase.

PISTOL PLAY ACCIDENT.

The little daughter of Mrs. Rowena Foster, living in Knoll Park, found a toy pistol today belonging to a brother, and pointing it at her mother, playfully threatened to shoot. No attention was paid to the child, who pulled the trigger and exploded a blank cartridge into Mrs. Foster's face, the wadding becoming imbedded in the muscles, requiring the services of a physician. The skin on the victim's face is broken, but the wound is not regarded as serious, unless blood poisoning sets in.

LONG BEACH JOTTINGS.

OCEAN PARK.

YOUNGSTER IN DEADLY PERIL.

OCEAN PARK, Aug. 2.—There came near being a fatality on the Venice beach near the new surf bath-house at noon today. A number of little boys who were in swimming were playing "banter" in the vicinity of the bath-house pier. They could all swim and several of them successfully made the leap from the pier into the surf and came ashore unharmed.

John Woodrick, a brave little nine-year-old who lives with his parents at No. 17 Breeze avenue, was not the one to take a dare, and into the breakers he leaped. When his companions rescued him the little fellow was nearly all in.

Walter Aken, 14 years old, saw at a glance that the Woodrick boy was in trouble and through the breakers he ploughed until he reached the little fellow's side and dragged him upon the sand, more dead than alive, salt water issuing from nose and mouth. Prompt ministration soon restored the boy to consciousness and health.

SAME POSTMASTER IN.

The beach is beginning to wonder why Dorsey Patton doesn't take charge of the Pier-avenue postoffice. He received the appointment many weeks ago and it was then announced that Postmaster Meigs would take a vacation on July 1, but July passed without a transfer and August is fast falling into history with no new face at the wicket. Patton says the powers that rule postoffices and other great affairs of state promised him that the office should forthwith be advanced from third to second class, but that promotion has not yet been made. As Mr. Patton stated that he would not qualify as a third-class postmaster, this may be accepted as the explanation for the delay.

The postoffice business, in the meantime, is showing remarkable gains. The receipts for July of this year were $1466.35, as compared with a business amounting to $882.14 during the same month one year ago.

STRIKES GOLD IN CANYON.

COVINA MAN'S LUCKY FIND IN THE SAN GABRIEL.

Ledge is Located Between the Fork and Follows's Camp and Porphyry Taken from It Assays Four Hundred and Twenty-three Dollars Gold Per Ton—Near Main Road.

COVINA, Aug. 2.—S. G. Bragg, a well-known resident here, who has been spending his vacation camping in the San Gabriel Cañon, arrived home on Sunday, bringing with him some porphyry rock which assays $423 gold to the ton. The ledge is located between the Fork and Follows's Camp, and has laid undiscovered these many years, within 100 feet of the regular road traveled by the San Gabriel stage. The ledge can be plainly traced for several thousand feet. Mr. Bragg has filed on the claim, and on account of its accessibility expects little difficulty in interesting the necessary capital to work it. This late find has created considerably interest in mining in the San Gabriel.

BIGGER SCHOOL GROUNDS.

Additional grounds for the Covina High School have been secured this week, the school trustees having closed a deal with Mrs. I. I. Cook for the purchase of seven lots, comprising a piece of ground 175x150 feet, for $2000. This gives a frontage of 175 feet on Second street. With this additional purchase the Covina High and grammar schools only lack a small corner of occupying the entire block between Second and Citrus avenue, with a frontage of 600 feet on the San Bernardino road.

Sixteen teams, men and grading outfits from San Dimas passed through here yesterday on their way to Redondo, where they will work on the Huntington extensions at that point. The men are hired for an indefinite period for $7.50 a day for a four-horse team.

REDONDO.

BOOMER AGENTS MELT AWAY.

REDONDO, Aug. 2.—The realty market is still firm although the sales lately have not been numerous. While a large number of the real estate agents who started curbstone and other offices during the boom, have quietly folded up their tents and vanished, there still remains a number who have made permanent locations and will remain here in the business.

PLANS FOR IMPROVEMENTS.

The Board of Trustees held a prolonged meeting last evening and laid plants for the improvement of a large number of streets. Final ordinances establishing the grade of Vincent, Opal and Jasper streets and Francisco and Chautauqua avenues were adopted. These will be immediately followed by resolutions of intention to improve those thoroughfares. A resolution to improve Domingues avenue was passed, as well as to improve the southern part of Catalina avenue. This means the expenditure of a good many thousands of dollars.

Petitions for saloon licenses, accompanied by the usual bonds, maps, etc., were read from M. Mayer, H. Althamer, Larger & Company and James Murphy and were granted.

Application from John S. Wollacott for a side board license and Charles Elgin for a restaurant liquor license were also granted.

A petition from the local butchers asking to have their licenses reduced was denied.

The board confirmed the appointment of Samuel Arthur as deputy City Marshal. Five hundred street signs were ordered yesterday. The Redondo Improvement Company pays one-half the expense.

The health officer was instructed to investigate all nuisances and take the most stringent measures to have them abated.

CURVE CITY RIPPLES.

Work on grading the streets for the proposed road from Redondo to San Pedro is progressing rapidly. Two new construction companies have entered the fields and many teams are engaged on this project.

Grading has been completed for the new W. M. Garland building on Pacific avenue.

Mrs. Frank T. Smith, wife of the local agent of the Santa Fé, is spending a few weeks at Monrovia.

Mrs. M. Stowell, accompanied by her daughters from Albuquerque, N. M., is spending the summer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Fisher.

Shipping has been extensive here for the past week. All the berths at the three wharves are occupied and a number of vessels are lying in the stream. Thirteen new vessels are expected within a few days.

The Redondo school trustees have just received the resignation of three of the new appointees as teachers. Miss Ada B. Cline has resigned to take a position in Washington, D. C. Miss Marie Dixson has accepted the principalship of the Escondido school. Miss Jocintha Smith has also sent in her resignation. This leaves three vacancies which must be filled prior to opening of school in the middle of September.

AFTER RUSTLERS OF THE PINALS.

FORMER SHERIFF ARMSTRONG IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

Territorial Cattle Inspectors Allege That the Erstwhile Officer's Gang Has Burned Over the Brands of Many Head of Stock Belonging to Other People, Rebranding Animals.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Aug. 1.—The southwestern slopes of the Pinal Mountains in Pinal county are generally considered the worst district in the Territory for cattle stealing. The chief of the band of rustlers, according to popular estimation, has been Tom Armstrong, formerly Sheriff of Gila county, but latterly an inmate of the Territorial prison. Released after serving only about a tenth of his term of five years, he has gotten into trouble again and has been held under bond to answer a charge of cattle stealing, August 23, in Florence. The Territorial cattle inspectors claim that Armstrong's gang has burned over the brands of many cattle owned by George Pusk and Mrs. Lattan, rebranding with the Armstrong brand.

SUICIDE EXTRAORDINARY.

The suicide of S. O. Lewis at Tempe yesterday is one of the most extraordinary ever known in Arizona. Lewis was principal of the Tempe schools, a lucrative position to which he had been reélected for the coming year. He was popular and highly esteemed. His health seemed good and he was believed to be at peace with the world. But, after announcing that he was about to depart for Agua Caliente Springs, he was seen no more for three days, till workmen found his decomposing body in a closet at the schoolhouse, by its side a small revolver purchased for the deed. The only thing left that indicated any cause was a brief letter addressed to Dr. B. B. Moeur, in which he asked to be forgiven "for the wrong I am doing you as well as others. I should like to stay and pay what I owe, but I feel that my health and mind are both gone. Appreciating your kindness and that of other people of Tempe I bid you good-by." The letter was written in Lewis's room in the Casa Loma Hotel. The deceased teacher was 33 years of age. He came to Tempe from Corsicana, Tex., where he was a member of the Masonic order. The only debt of any consequence he left in Tempe was a note of $175, which had been indorsed by Dr. Moeur.

STORMS—DEPARTURES.

Small storms have been drifting all over Arizona for the past week. In Phoenix they have been very light, though the river has raised and the farmers have been benefitted thereby. At the Relief mine north of Phoenix, a hurricane occurred in which a number of the light buildings were moved, but little actual damage was done.

Among late departures for Southern California are included: W. B. Mizell and Carl Keller for San Diego; Mrs. Mae Kirkland, Miss Ina Maddox, Mrs. R. A. Maddox for Los Angeles; Dr. A. H. Hawley, W. L. Chambers, G. A. Tweed, wife and mother, S. C. Barkley and family, John Lewis, L. C. Ransom, Frank Avila, Michael Delon, J. E. Tualson, J. J. Lipsohn and Edna C. Peterson.

VALUATIONS HIGHER.

FOR LOWER TAX RATES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Aug. 1.—A movement toward higher taxation values in Arizona and lower tax rates has been joined in by Coconino county, which now has the highest tax rate of any in the Territory, over 4 cents. The Arizona Lumber and Timber Company, for instance, has been raised nearly $100,000, practically doubling its assessment; El Tovar Hotel at the Grand Cañon, the New Santa Fé-Harvey Hotel has been shot up to $201,500, the return having been $100,000; the Saginaw and Manistee Lumber Company of Williams has had its assessment pushed up about $115,000; Babbitt Bros. of Flagstaff were raised nearly $50,000.

MINER'S UGLY FALL.

Richard A. Roberts, a miner at Walker, ran an ore car into the open shaft of the Sheldon mine, late on a night shift, and followed it to the bottom, a distance of 100 feet. Though terribly mangled and bruised, with not a few bones broken, it is believed that Roberts will recover from his awful fall. He is now at the hospital at Walker, and is reported doing well.

HER FOOT PETRIFIED.

A few days ago, in the excavations for the new buildings at Fort. Whipple, was dug up a curiosity in the shape of a perfect woman's foot, petrified into stone. Investigation shows the foot to have been at one time the property of a Mrs. Thompson, wife of a soldier stationed at the fort. She fell upon a staircase and so badly crushed her ankle that amputation of the foot had to be made by the post surgeon, Dr. F. C. Ainsworth, then a first lieutenant, now Military Secretary, U.S.A., with the rank of major-general. The foot was buried near the hospital, to be dug up again twenty-eight years afterward and sent to Washington to be an exhibit in the service surgical museum.

"EXAMINER" KILLED HIM.

Sometime ago the Los Angeles Examiner published a story that Henry Ritter with his wife and child had perished while en route from Williams, Ariz., to Goldfield, Nev. The story was circumstantially told—that their bodies had been found by miners near their horses and dog, which had survived though the family had perished from thirst. It may be of interest to learn that Ritter is still in Williams, doing a square day's work each day as a carpenter for Contractor A. H. Herold.

MEXICANS WHIP JAPS.

Along the Santa Fé the reputation of the Jap as a fighter has had a serious setback because of an episode on the Grand Cañon Railroad. Two grading gangs became involved in a row over a shovel. One of the gangs comprised forty-five Mexicans, generally esteemed the gentlest people on earth. The other was of eighty-five Japanese. When the rocks stopped flying and the shovels were at rest, the only Japanese left in the vicinity were eight who were taken down by rail to the hospital at Williams to have their wounds dressed.

About a month ago the Navajo Indians began rain dances. For the past week their reservation has been deluged and the Indians have been shown that their "medicine" is efficacious.

The largest bond ever given in the Probate Court of this county was for $150,000, presented by J. M. Watts and M. B. Hazeltine, as administrators of the estate of David Grubb. Besides valuable mines, the estate is estimated worth $100,000 in cash and good securities.

TWO BUSINESS

It was practically all Associated on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday so far as transactions were concerned, the latter being confined to only a few of the securities, though these strengthened under active bidding.

Trading in Associated was 25,000 shares mostly at 55; a block of 1000 at 55½; one at 55¾, and another at 56. The closing was 55. It was entirely a professional market in Associated and was manipulated on the bear side for a haul in view of an anticipated early recovery. Central stiffened 2½ points; but Mexican Petroleum lost fractionally.

The bank stocks were in much request and prices hardened from 1½ to 2 points. Los Angeles National gained another 2 points, closing at 262; Los Angeles Trust 2 next to 198; and Southwestern National to 110, but no offerings were made in any of the three.

Edison Electric preferred gained ¾, Santa Monica Home telephone 1 points, and San Diego Home Telephone 2.

An extra dividend of 1 cent was declared Tuesday on Claremont Oil listed on the California Stock and Oil Exchange, and on assessment of 2½ cents levied on Occidental Oil.

Time money, 60 to 90 days, 6 per cent.; from 4 to 6 months, 6 per cent.

Commercial paper, 60 to 90 days, indorsed bills, 6 per cent.; from 4 to 6 months, single names, 7 per cent.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

The receipts for August 1 as reported by the Produce Exchange yesterday were: Eggs, 186 cases; butter, 15,820 pounds; cheese 4530 pounds; Irish potatoes, 28 sacks; onions, 1 sack; beans none; sweet potatoes, 20 sacks.

The arrivals of chief fruit and vegetables in the produce market were generally on a liberal scale; fairly good trading was reported and few changes were made in the prices.

Susquehanna peaches were in liberal supply and of good quality, and dealers had no difficulty in securing 50 to 75 cents; a, while strawberry peaches brought 1.00 to 1.15.

The supply of local plums was plentiful, satsumas jobbing at 1.00 to 1.10; Hungarians 1.35 in 4 basket crates; sugar plums, 75 egg plums and Germans, 85.

Tropico strawberries arrived in light quantity, and were firm at 1.30; Monetas 85 to 1.10. There were few raspberries, but were steady at 5 cents; blackberries 4, and loganberries 4 to 5.

Watermelons and cantaloupes arrived in abundance, the former being easy at 60 cents a dozen, and cantaloupes 1.50 to 2.00 a box.

Cabbage rates, and 1.00 to 1.25 for standard.

Onions were easier under a moderate demand, at 60 to 75 cents; Yellow Danvers, 85 to 1.00.

Green corn was steady at 25 cents; tomatoes 40 to 50; okra 10 cents a pound; cucumbers were weak at 20 to 25; beans 2 to 2½ on quality; peas 2 to 3; celery 35 to 50.

What Coast butter came in was cleaned up in the early morning market; Valley creamery was moving well, and the market was firm at the quoted prices.

Large fish were plenty; but smelts were scarce and wanted. Northern receipts were sufficient to meet the demand and crabs were plentiful.

RAISIN COMBINE. A few days ago we reported the meeting of the California Raisin Growers' Company at San Francisco when a combination was entered into between the principal packers and raisin growers.

This combine calls for four corporations and inter-contracts. There will be a contract between the California Raisin Growers Company, party of the first part, and the packing company of the growers, party of the second part; the following packing firms: Pacific Coast, Griffin-Skelley, the Phoenix, Castle Brothers, Fresno Home, J. K. Armsby, Guggenheim Company, Madison & Bonner, and the A. L. Hobbs Packing Company, party of the third part, and the Mercantile Company, party of the fourth part. The last named company is merely to distribute profits and expenses among the packers proportionately. The Coast growers and packers packing company will be known as the Central California Packing Company, with a capital stock to be agreed upon, and to be owned by seven directors, five from the packers and five from the growers, with one neutral director. The stock will be equally divided, with provision for neutral shares.

The present packing houses are to be purchased by the company, at their appraised valuation by insurance adjusters, upon a fire basis. The growers will purchase their interest with the half-cent provided in the contract. The new joint packing company is to do all the packing, seeding and selling for three years. The packing is to be done at actual cost. In previous years certain definite sums were fixed as actual cost, but as a matter of fact large profits were made, as the actual cost was under the arbitrary figures. The growers will also have their share of the returns from the by-products. The matter of seeds alone runs up into the thousands of dollars, and the profit for the packing company is fixed definitely at $20 a ton on seeded and layer raisins, and $10 a ton on loose goods.

A WORD TO THE PUBLIC

Probably you are one of our patrons this week who have been a little disappointed in getting some one or more packages late in delivery. We regret the fact but owing to the immense business we have been and are doing in the great granite ware sale, our large force of employees in the shipping and delivery room have been unable to handle other merchandise promptly though we have fourteen wagons engaged in the delivery service. We have however, made arrangements whereby we hope that the delivery for the balance of the week will be prompt as heretofore.
